Thus he left open the possibility t some of MacArthur's hit-the-ds-harder demands will be car-d out if the Chinese Communists voke them.

The President said there must be ionwide organization to meet the vesome and terrible possibility" of mic attack.

But he declared: "The best de-se against atomic bombing is to vent the outbreak of another rld war and achieve a real peace."

Red Forces Shoved Back Up To 3 Miles

Enemy Reported Angry At Russia For Failure To Provide Tanks, Planes

TOKYO, Tuesday, May 8 (AP)—South Korean troops smashed hard into a North Korean army corps northwest of Seoul Monday and rolled it back three miles to points 13 miles from the capital.

Other Allied forces in the east forced back hard fighting Reds a mile and a half.

These Red setbacks on the flanks and a withdrawal north of Chunchon in the center coincided with reports of dissatisfaction in Communist ranks.

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported some Allied officers on the western front believe North Korean and Chinese Reds were angry because they felt Russia had let them down on tanks and planes for their now stalled spring offensive.

Half Of Ground Won Back

The Allies have won back nearly half of the ground lost north of Seoul to 300,000 Reds who aimed the main weight of their futile offensive at capture of the capital by May Day.

"There is no denying that before the offensive began April 22 there were many signs that the Reds were counting on tanks and aircraft," Randolph said in his dispatch from the western front.

"Behind their front, roads were being widened and improved and for weeks there had been constant work on regular fields and new airstrips.

"'Uncle Joe (Stalin) sold them down the river again,' one officer exulted after the first few hours of the offensive showed no tanks or planes."

Last weekend, some 7,000 North Koreans northwest of Seoul stood their ground and defeated Allied attempts to dislodge them.

2,940 More Reds Kayoed

U. S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea estimated that 2,940 Reds were killed or wounded in the first day of the limited Allied push Monday. Red losses since their ill-fated offensive of April 22 have exceeded 80,000.

The main Chinese resistance was northwest of Seoul.

Bulky Red forces were concentrated in an area between Munsan and the Han River, roughly 20 miles northwest of Seoul.

Front dispatches speculated that the Chinese might be considering an attack down the Kimpo peninsula in a flanking attempt.

Kimpo airfield, still being used by Allied aircraft, is about 12 air miles northwest of Seoul on the peninsula. When the Chinese struck south last New Year's Eve, they sent a similar striking force across the Han, but it was eliminated.

VETERAN SCREEN ACTOR SUCCUMBS

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 7 (AP)—Warner Baxter (above), 62, veteran motion picture actor, died at his home tonight after a long illness. He had suffered from arthritis for years and a lobotomy was performed three weeks ago to alleviate his pain. Bronchial pneumonia set in recently and hastened the death of the movies' original "Cisco Kid."

Administration Seeks Standby Subsidy Power

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, asked Congress today for standby authority to pay federal subsidies on food and farm products to forestall any lag in defense production.

Along with this request, Wilson cautioned that the worst shortages of materials and "the biggest threat of inflation" are yet to come.

The mobilization chief appeared as leadoff witness before the Senate Banking Committee in opening the administration's fight to extend and strengthen federal inflation controls. The hearings are scheduled to last 20 days. Price, wage and credit control provisions of the Defense Production Act expire June 30.

Even before Wilson testified, the committee, meeting behind closed doors, as least temporarily sidetracked President Truman's proposal for rent controls on stores, office space and other commercial properties.

Chairman Maybank (D-SC) told newsmen the question will be left until the end of the hearings "if it is taken up at all."

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) quickly challenged the administration's bid for subsidy power by asking if it was not a limited version of the controversial Brannan plan — the program advocated by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan to make direct federal payments to farmers in an effort to halt rising food prices.

"It is like the Brannan plan in a marginal way," Wilson replied.

"I want to make it absolutely clear that these proposals for subsidy aid to producers can be used only in those cases where necessary defense production would otherwise be lost or interfered with," he emphasized.

Wilson also told the lawmakers that speculative trading in the commodity markets should be controlled in approximately the same way that stock market dealings are regulated.

In brief, the proposed subsidies would cover (1) production of materials from high-cost sources, (2) high-cost processing of farm commodities, such as meat packing, and (3) temporary increases in costs of production, distribution or transportation.

Russia Demands 4-Power Talks On Jap Treaty

Turns Down Separate Negotiations With U. S.

MOSCOW, May 7 (AP) — Russia today rejected separate negotiations with the United States on a Japanese peace treaty and demanded the calling of a council of foreign ministers to take up the question.

Russia insisted that Communist China, Russia, the United States and Britain make up the council that would begin preparation of a treaty in June or July.

She attacked what she said was the use of Japanese territory and human resources for "armed intervention in Korea," and demanded withdrawal of all occupation troops within a year after conclusion of the treaty.

Formosa To Red China

The treaty must provide for the transfer of Formosa and the Pescadores in Formosa Straits to Communist China, and the Ryukyu (including Okinawa) and Bonin Islands must be left under Japanese soverignty rather than transferred to United States trusteeship, Russia said.

Further, Russia said Japan's armed forces must be limited to self-defense and she must not be allowed to enter any coalition against a state which fought her in the war.

"Bad Idea," French Say

(London dispatches said Russia obviously was trying to throw a monkey wrench into the machinery which the United States is putting into motion to conclude a treaty. A French Foreign Office spokesman said a foreign ministers council "is a bad idea.")

Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander E. Bogomolov called on U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk at noon and handed him the 11-page note in reply to a draft treaty submitted by the United States on March 29.

The note charged the United States was usurping to itself what should be a "joint affair."

Ex-Secretary Hull's Condition Critical

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull is in precarious condition at the naval medical center at nearby Bethesda, Md.

He was admitted to the hospital on Saturday.

Hull is nearly 80 years of age.

He has been put on the critical list, hospital officials said.

"Ike" In Belgium

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 7 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived by plane today for an inspection of Belgian armed forces. He had spent the earlier part of the day watching Belgian occupation forces go through field maneuvers at Wahn, Germany.

Four Lose Lives As Planes Collide

HOUSTON, May 7 (AP) — Two military planes collided in the air here tonight. Four bodies were recovered.

The planes collided six miles northeast of Ellington Air Force base. Ellington is about 15 miles southeast of Houston.

There were reports that at least one crewman was seen to parachute from one of the planes.

There was no immediate information on the size, destination, or base of origin of the planes but it was believed they were from Ellington.

Earlier a man reported a plane exploded at high altitude.

John Carrigan, Pasadena resident, said he saw a plane explode at 7:14 p. m.

Quake Leaves Thousand Dead In El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvadore, May 7 (AP) — New earthquakes were reported in southeastern El Salvador today, in the wake of a devastating quake yesterday which killed approximately 1,000 persons in Jucuapa alone.

The new tremors were reported in the cities of Santiago De Maria and in Berlin, both in Usulutan department. Santiago De Maria was damaged by the first quake. It has a population of 20,000 and Berlin of 15,000. No casualties have been reported thus far in the second day's quake.

Hundreds were injured yesterday. The president of the republic, Lt. Col. Oscar Osorio, accompanied by high military and civil authorities, led a vanguard of Red Cross and other relief and rescue workers into the stricken area. The government decreed three days of national mourning for the worst earthquake disaster in the country's history.

The greatest damage was reported at Jucuapa, a city of about 12,000 situated 90 miles east of San Salvador, and at Chinameca, about 17,000 population, two miles farther east. The nearby towns of Nueva Guadalupe and Caserios also suffered considerable damage.

The newspaper La Prensa Grafica reported today that Jucuapa, Chinameca and the other nearby towns were "destroyed" in a few minutes by a series of three shocks that "began at 5:30 p. m. (6:30 p. m. EST) yesterday, leaving everything shrouded in dust clouds that choked the residents in despair."

The paper said that "desolation, ruin, and death prevail in the eastern region of the republic." It added that "there were great landslides on the International Highway, which was speedily being cleared. Jucuapa offered a frightful aspect, and words cannot express the anxiety and destruction, with the streets filled with debris and the moaning of the injured heard."

Truman Speeded M'Arthur Ouster Because Of 'Leak'

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) —Secretary of Defense Marshall disclosed today that President Truman decided on April 9 to fire Gen. Douglas MacArthur and speeded the announcement 20 hours because of a "leak."

Marshall told the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees that it was hoped that Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, then in Tokyo, could deliver the decision to MacArthur but Pace could not be reached in time.

The announcement of MacArthur's dismissal was made by the White House at 1 a. m. (EST) on April 11.

American Troops Back In Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 7 (AP) — U. S. Brig. Gen. Edward J. McGaw landed by air today with the first contingent of American Army, Navy and Air Forces to help defend this North Atlantic republic.

(The Defense Department in Washington said the force consisted of 200 men.)

Icelandic newspapers got out extras announcing the second coming of the Yanks. The government issued a statement saying the troops had arrived at the invitation of this country, an independent member of the North Atlantic alliance.

It was believed the force will be built up gradually in the next few weeks. Its activities will center around the two main airports, Keflavik, 30 miles from the capital, and Reykjavik, but listening posts and other strategic installations about the island will also be manned.

American troops were stationed here from early in the Second World War and were the only defense force for this island close to the Arctic Circle. Iceland's airfields and bases were an important factor in the protection of convoy routes across the North Atlantic.

Iceland, a nation of 140,000 people, has no army, navy or air force of its own.

Baltimore Voters Elect Mayor Today

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—Baltimore, the nation's sixth biggest city, will elect a mayor tomorrow after a campaign in which opponents of incumbent Thomas D'Alesandro, Jr. made the national Democratic administration the main issue.

D'Alesandro, a former Democratic congressman seeking his second four-year term as mayor, has stuck to defending his municipal administration.

But Joseph L. Carter, Republican, and C. Markland Kelly, a Democrat running as an independent, have concentrated their campaigns on national issues.

Britain, France Leaning Toward China Embargo

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 7 (AP)—Britain and France indicated today that they support an American proposal for a world-wide embargo against shipping arms, ammunition and war material to Red China and North Korea.

The United States proposal was put formally before a 12-member U. N. committee studying methods of punishing Red China and the Communist aggressors in Korea. U. S. Ambassador Ernest A. Gross outlined the terms of the resolution when the committee met last week.

Committee To Meet Soon

Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain, told the committee he could not give a definite answer now, but it was possible that Britain would feel the time has come to submit such a resolution to the General Assembly.

Francis Lacoste, France, said it was proper to expect the U. S. resolution would receive sympathetic treatment by his government.

The committee will meet by next Monday or before, with a final vote expected at that time.

It was indicated the resolution would be approved and passed on to the 60-nation Political Committee of the General Assembly for action there.

Red Military Stepup Feared

Britain thus far has opposed any restrictive measures against Red China on the ground it might spur the Communists on to greater military efforts.

In recent days, the Conservative Party in the House of Commons has been asking the government questions about the British trade with Peiping. Jebb told the committee that his government had announced direct exports of war materials from the United Kingdom to Red China had been prohibited. Informed quarters said he also stated that shipment of these materials to Hong Kong had been barred and that no oil is going to Hong Kong now for Red China.

General's Plea To Reds Broke Up Peace Try

Secretary Denies He Overruled JCS

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Marshall told senators today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's peace appeal to the enemy last March destroyed for the time being any chances of a Korean war settlement.

He said the United Nations was preparing an announcement of preparations to discuss a war settlement — the announcement to come from President Truman — when MacArthur issued a statement on March 24 that he was ready to talk peace terms with the Red commander in Korea.

"In view of the serious impact of Gen. MacArthur's statement on the negotiations of these nations," Marshall said, "it became necessary to abandon the effort, thus losing whatever chance there may have been at that time to negotiate a settlement of the Korean conflict."

Marshall made this statement after declaring that MacArthur's war plans would risk an all-out war with Russia, expose Europe to attack, and perhaps split the free world into two camps.

But he hinted this country will hit Red China by air and sea if the Reds strike at American forces outside Korea, presumably those in Japan and with the 7th Fleet off Formosa.

Much Of Testimony Deleted

The closed door testimony by the Secretary—himself a five-star general and one-time Army chief of staff—spotlighted the conflict of ideas that has been underway for months over the best way to wage the war in Korea.

Marshall came to the hearing—by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees — armed with a big pile of secret documents. And whole chunks of his testimony were deleted by the Defense and State Department censors who are "combing" the record for security purposes before it is released to newsmen.

Almost sadly, the 70-year-old Marshall struck back at a "brother officer" in defense of the conduct of the Korean war which he said was approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and himself.

He said he did not believe—as MacArthur does — that bombing Chinese bases in Manchuria will bring victory in Korea. And he added that while MacArthur never violated military campaign directives—he did violate orders against public statements.

Further, he denied as MacArthur had suggested, that he or President Truman had overruled the Joint Chiefs of Staff in war plans which agreed in part to those proposed by the deposed General. And he denied the administration is considering Red China's admission to the United Nations and the fate of Formosa as the basis of a Korean peace treaty.

"Distressing Occasion"

MacArthur had told senators the JCS had urged against any consideration of U. N. membership for Red China and Formosa's future in peace discussions—and that he understood the recommendation had been vetoed by Marshall.

Marshall replied vigorously to MacArthur as the first administration witness to be heard by the Senate committees. These groups are studying U. S. Asia policy and the reasons for MacArthur's ouster.

Deploring this "very distressing occasion," Marshall pictured MacArthur as a commander who had grown so far out of sympathy with U. S. policy that his superiors doubted his ability to make the proper command decisions in the field.

"He would have us accept the risk of involvement not only in an extension of the war with Red China," Marshall said, "but in an all-out

Richter's "The Town" Wins Pulitzer Prize For Fiction

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Conrad Richter's novel, "The Town," a story of an American family growing up in the wilderness of the 19th century, today won the Pulitzer prize for fiction.

There was no award this year for drama in the theater.

Awards for meritorious public service in the newspaper field went to the Miami, Fla., Herald and the Brooklyn Eagle. Both were cited for crime reporting in 1950.

Columbia University trustees, who announce the Pulitzer selections, named six foreign correspondents—including the first woman ever so honored—as prize winners for international reporting.

The woman, 30-year-old Marguerite Higgins of the New York Herald Tribune, was cited for her work as a war correspondent in Korea.

She shared honors with five men, including a colleague, Homer Bigart of the Herald Tribune, who became a two-time winner. He first won a Pulitzer prize in 1946 for his World War II reporting in the Pacific.

Besides Miss Higgins and Bigart, those named for Korean war reporting were Relman Morin and Don Whitehead of the Associated Press, and Keyes Beech of the Chicago Daily News.

The sixth winner in that field was Fred Sparks, also of the Chicago Daily News, for a Berlin series on reborn German nationalism.

Cyrus L. Sulzberger of the New York Times was given a special citation for a number of exclusive interviews, including one with Archbishop Stepinac of Yugoslavia in the Prelate's prison cell.

There was no 1950 award for national reporting. But Arthur Krock's exclusive interview with President Truman was called "the outstanding instance of national reporting" for the year.

Edward S. Montgomery of the San Francisco Examiner won the Pulitzer prize for local reporting on the basis of a series of stories which led to an expose in the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

William Harry Fitzpatrick of the New Orleans, La., States won the editorial writing award, with a series analyzing and clarifying the constitutional limits on American treaties.

Max Desfor of the Associated Press snapped a picture of refugees fleeing across a wrecked bridge in Korea and this was selected as the best news photograph of 1950.

Top cartoonist was Reg (Reginald W.) Manning, whose cartoon "Hats" showed a bullet-pierced helmet in Korea in contrast to the silk top hats of United Nation's diplomats. He is with the Arizona Republic of Phoenix, Ariz.

Besides Bigart, another two-time winner in the 34th annual series of awards in many fields of creative endeavor was Carl Sandburg, who won a poetry award for his complete poems.

For biography, Margaret Louise Coit was cited for her "John C. Calhoun: American Portrait."

Supporters Battle To Save McGee From Electric Chair

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Willie McGee, Mississippi negro, lost an eleventh hour appeal tonight to Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black to stay McGee's execution for the rape of a white woman.

Justice Black's decision was announced at 9:50 p. m. (EST). McGee is scheduled to die at 1:01 a. m. (EST) (12:01 CST) tonight—a little over three hours later.

The negro's attorneys immediately took a similar appeal for a stay to Chief Justice Fred Vinson.

JACKSON, Miss., May 7 (AP) — Only the possibility of last minute action by either the U. S. Supreme Court or the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals remained tonight between Willie McGee and execution in the electric chair.

U. S. District Court Judge Sidney Mize refused a civil injunctive action to save the thrice-convicted 37-year-old negro rapist of a white woman.

McGee was taken by authorities from his Hinds (Jackson) County jail cell for the 90-mile trip to Laurel, Miss., to be executed a minute after midnight (CST). Under Mississippi procedure execution is held in the courtroom of the county where a capital crime is committed.

Attorneys for McGee claimed his civil rights had been violated; that he is innocent; that he was convicted on perjured testimony and sentenced to die only because he is a negro. They contended no white man ever has been executed in Mississippi for rape.

Chairman Maybank (D-SC) told newsmen the question will be left until the end of the hearings "if it is taken up at all."

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) quickly challenged the administration's bid for subsidy power by asking if it was not a limited version of the controversial Brannan plan — the program advocated by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan to make direct federal payments to farmers in an effort to halt rising food prices.

"It is like the Brannan plan in a marginal way," Wilson replied.

"I want to make it absolutely clear that these proposals for subsidy aid to producers can be used only in those cases where necessary defense production would otherwise be lost or interfered with," he emphasized.

Wilson also told the lawmakers that speculative trading in the commodity markets should be controlled in approximately the same way that stock market dealings are regulated.

In brief, the proposed subsidies would cover (1) production of materials from high-cost sources, (2) high-cost processing of farm commodities, such as meat packing, and (3) temporary increases in costs of production, distribution or transportation.

Russia Demands 4-Power Talks On Jap Treaty

Turns Down Separate Negotiations With U. S.

MOSCOW, May 7 (AP) — Russia today rejected separate negotiations with the United States on a Japanese peace treaty and demanded the calling of a council of foreign ministers to take up the question.

Russia insisted that Communist China, Russia, the United States and Britain make up the council that would begin preparation of a treaty in June or July.

She attacked what she said was the use of Japanese territory and human resources for "armed intervention in Korea," and demanded withdrawal of all occupation troops within a year after conclusion of the treaty.

Formosa To Red China

The treaty must provide for the transfer of Formosa and the Pescadores in Formosa Straits to Communist China, and the Ryukyu (including Okinawa) and Bonin Islands must be left under Japanese soverignty rather than transferred to United States trusteeship, Russia said.

Further, Russia said Japan's armed forces must be limited to self-defense and she must not be allowed to enter any coalition against a state which fought her in the war.

"Bad Idea," French Say

(London dispatches said Russia obviously was trying to throw a monkey wrench into the machinery which the United States is putting into motion to conclude a treaty. A French Foreign Office spokesman said a foreign ministers council "is a bad idea.")

Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander E. Bogomolov called on U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk at noon and handed him the 11-page note in reply to a draft treaty submitted by the United States on March 29.

The note charged the United States was usurping to itself what should be a "joint affair."

Quake Leaves Thousand Dead In El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvadore, May 7 (AP) — New earthquakes were reported in southeastern El Salvador today, in the wake of a devastating quake yesterday which killed approximately 1,000 persons in Jucuapa alone.

The new tremors were reported in the cities of Santiago De Maria and in Berlin, both in Usulutan department. Santiago De Maria was damaged by the first quake. It has a population of 20,000 and Berlin of 15,000. No casualties have been reported thus far in the second day's quake.

Hundreds were injured yesterday. The president of the republic, Lt. Col. Oscar Osorio, accompanied by high military and civil authorities, led a vanguard of Red Cross and other relief and rescue workers into the stricken area. The government decreed three days of national mourning for the worst earthquake disaster in the country's history.

The greatest damage was reported at Jucuapa, a city of about 12,000 situated 90 miles east of San Salvador, and at Chinameca, about 17,000 population, two miles farther east. The nearby towns of Nueva Guadalupe and Caserios also suffered considerable damage.

The newspaper La Prensa Grafica reported today that Jucuapa, Chinameca and the other nearby towns were "destroyed" in a few minutes by a series of three shocks that "began at 5:30 p. m. (6:30 p. m. EST) yesterday, leaving everything shrouded in dust clouds that choked the residents in despair."

The paper said that "desolation, ruin, and death prevail in the eastern region of the republic." It added that "there were great landslides on the International Highway, which was speedily being cleared. Jucuapa offered a frightful aspect, and words cannot express the anxiety and destruction, with the streets filled with debris and the moaning of the injured heard."

Truman Speeded M'Arthur Ouster Because Of 'Leak'

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) —Secretary of Defense Marshall disclosed today that President Truman decided on April 9 to fire Gen. Douglas MacArthur and speeded the announcement 20 hours because of a "leak."

Marshall told the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees that it was hoped that Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, then in Tokyo, could deliver the decision to MacArthur but Pace could not be reached in time.

The announcement of MacArthur's dismissal was made by the White House at 1 a. m. (EST) on April 11.

American Troops Back In Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 7 (AP) — U. S. Brig. Gen. Edward J. McGaw landed by air today with the first contingent of American Army, Navy and Air Forces to help defend this North Atlantic republic.

(The Defense Department in Washington said the force consisted of 200 men.)

Icelandic newspapers got out extras announcing the second coming of the Yanks. The government issued a statement saying the troops had arrived at the invitation of this country, an independent member of the North Atlantic alliance.

It was believed the force will be built up gradually in the next few weeks. Its activities will center around the two main airports, Keflavik, 30 miles from the capital, and Reykjavik, but listening posts and other strategic installations about the island will also be manned.

American troops were stationed here from early in the Second World War and were the only defense force for this island close to the Arctic Circle. Iceland's airfields and bases were an important factor in the protection of convoy routes across the North Atlantic.

Iceland, a nation of 140,000 people, has no army, navy or air force of its own.

Britain, France Leaning Toward China Embargo

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 7 (AP)—Britain and France indicated today that they support an American proposal for a world-wide embargo against shipping arms, ammunition and war material to Red China and North Korea.

The United States proposal was put formally before a 12-member U. N. committee studying methods of punishing Red China and the Communist aggressors in Korea. U. S. Ambassador Ernest A. Gross outlined the terms of the resolution when the committee met last week.

Committee To Meet Soon

Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain, told the committee he could not give a definite answer now, but it was possible that Britain would feel the time has come to submit such a resolution to the General Assembly.

Francis Lacoste, France, said it was proper to expect the U. S. resolution would receive sympathetic treatment by his government.

The committee will meet by next Monday or before, with a final vote expected at that time.

It was indicated the resolution would be approved and passed on to the 60-nation Political Committee of the General Assembly for action there.

Red Military Stepup Feared

Britain thus far has opposed any restrictive measures against Red China on the ground it might spur the Communists on to greater military efforts.

In recent days, the Conservative Party in the House of Commons has been asking the government questions about the British trade with Peiping. Jebb told the committee that his government had announced direct exports of war materials from the United Kingdom to Red China had been prohibited. Informed quarters said he also stated that shipment of these materials to Hong Kong had been barred and that no oil is going to Hong Kong now for Red China.

General's Plea To Reds Broke Up Peace Try

Secretary Denies He Overruled JCS

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Marshall told senators today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's peace appeal to the enemy last March destroyed for the time being any chances of a Korean war settlement.

He said the United Nations was preparing an announcement of preparations to discuss a war settlement — the announcement to come from President Truman — when MacArthur issued a statement on March 24 that he was ready to talk peace terms with the Red commander in Korea.

"In view of the serious impact of Gen. MacArthur's statement on the negotiations of these nations," Marshall said, "it became necessary to abandon the effort, thus losing whatever chance there may have been at that time to negotiate a settlement of the Korean conflict."

Marshall made this statement after declaring that MacArthur's war plans would risk an all-out war with Russia, expose Europe to attack, and perhaps split the free world into two camps.

But he hinted this country will hit Red China by air and sea if the Reds strike at American forces outside Korea, presumably those in Japan and with the 7th Fleet off Formosa.

Much Of Testimony Deleted

The closed door testimony by the Secretary—himself a five-star general and one-time Army chief of staff—spotlighted the conflict of ideas that has been underway for months over the best way to wage the war in Korea.

Marshall came to the hearing—by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees — armed with a big pile of secret documents. And whole chunks of his testimony were deleted by the Defense and State Department censors who are "combing" the record for security purposes before it is released to newsmen.

Almost sadly, the 70-year-old Marshall struck back at a "brother officer" in defense of the conduct of the Korean war which he said was approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and himself.

He said he did not believe—as MacArthur does — that bombing Chinese bases in Manchuria will bring victory in Korea. And he added that while MacArthur never violated military campaign directives—he did violate orders against public statements.

Further, he denied as MacArthur had suggested, that he or President Truman had overruled the Joint Chiefs of Staff in war plans which agreed in part to those proposed by the deposed General. And he denied the administration is considering Red China's admission to the United Nations and the fate of Formosa as the basis of a Korean peace treaty.

"Distressing Occasion"

MacArthur had told senators the JCS had urged against any consideration of U. N. membership for Red China and Formosa's future in peace discussions—and that he understood the recommendation had been vetoed by Marshall.

Marshall replied vigorously to MacArthur as the first administration witness to be heard by the Senate committees. These groups are studying U. S. Asia policy and the reasons for MacArthur's ouster.

Deploring this "very distressing occasion," Marshall pictured MacArthur as a commander who had grown so far out of sympathy with U. S. policy that his superiors doubted his ability to make the proper command decisions in the field.

"He would have us accept the risk of involvement not only in an extension of the war with Red China," Marshall said, "but in an all-out

Richter's "The Town" Wins Pulitzer Prize For Fiction

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Conrad Richter's novel, "The Town," a story of an American family growing up in the wilderness of the 19th century, today won the Pulitzer prize for fiction.

There was no award this year for drama in the theater.

Awards for meritorious public service in the newspaper field went to the Miami, Fla., Herald and the Brooklyn Eagle. Both were cited for crime reporting in 1950.

Columbia University trustees, who announce the Pulitzer selections, named six foreign correspondents—including the first woman ever so honored—as prize winners for international reporting.

The woman, 30-year-old Marguerite Higgins of the New York Herald Tribune, was cited for her work as a war correspondent in Korea.

She shared honors with five men, including a colleague, Homer Bigart of the Herald Tribune, who became a two-time winner. He first won a Pulitzer prize in 1946 for his World War II reporting in the Pacific.

Besides Miss Higgins and Bigart, those named for Korean war reporting were Relman Morin and Don Whitehead of the Associated Press, and Keyes Beech of the Chicago Daily News.

The sixth winner in that field was Fred Sparks, also of the Chicago Daily News, for a Berlin series on reborn German nationalism.

Cyrus L. Sulzberger of the New York Times was given a special citation for a number of exclusive interviews, including one with Archbishop Stepinac of Yugoslavia in the Prelate's prison cell.

There was no 1950 award for national reporting. But Arthur Krock's exclusive interview with President Truman was called "the outstanding instance of national reporting" for the year.

Edward S. Montgomery of the San Francisco Examiner won the Pulitzer prize for local reporting on the basis of a series of stories which led to an expose in the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

William Harry Fitzpatrick of the New Orleans, La., States won the editorial writing award, with a series analyzing and clarifying the constitutional limits on American treaties.

Max Desfor of the Associated Press snapped a picture of refugees fleeing across a wrecked bridge in Korea and this was selected as the best news photograph of 1950.

Top cartoonist was Reg (Reginald W.) Manning, whose cartoon "Hats" showed a bullet-pierced helmet in Korea in contrast to the silk top hats of United Nation's diplomats. He is with the Arizona Republic of Phoenix, Ariz.

Besides Bigart, another two-time winner in the 34th annual series of awards in many fields of creative endeavor was Carl Sandburg, who won a poetry award for his complete poems.

For biography, Margaret Louise Coit was cited for her "John C. Calhoun: American Portrait."

Baltimore Voters Elect Mayor Today

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—Baltimore, the nation's sixth biggest city, will elect a mayor tomorrow after a campaign in which opponents of incumbent Thomas D'Alesandro, Jr. made the national Democratic administration the main issue.

D'Alesandro, a former Democratic congressman seeking his second four-year term as mayor, has stuck to defending his municipal administration.

But Joseph L. Carter, Republican, and C. Markland Kelly, a Democrat running as an independent, have concentrated their campaigns on national issues.

Supporters Battle To Save McGee From Electric Chair

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Willie McGee, Mississippi negro, lost an eleventh hour appeal tonight to Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black to stay McGee's execution for the rape of a white woman.

Justice Black's decision was announced at 9:50 p. m. (EST). McGee is scheduled to die at 1:01 a. m. (EST) (12:01 CST) tonight—a little over three hours later.

The negro's attorneys immediately took a similar appeal for a stay to Chief Justice Fred Vinson.

JACKSON, Miss., May 7 (AP) — Only the possibility of last minute action by either the U. S. Supreme Court or the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals remained tonight between Willie McGee and execution in the electric chair.

U. S. District Court Judge Sidney Mize refused a civil injunctive action to save the thrice-convicted 37-year-old negro rapist of a white woman.

McGee was taken by authorities from his Hinds (Jackson) County jail cell for the 90-mile trip to Laurel, Miss., to be executed a minute after midnight (CST). Under Mississippi procedure execution is held in the courtroom of the county where a capital crime is committed.

Attorneys for McGee claimed his civil rights had been violated; that he is innocent; that he was convicted on perjured testimony and sentenced to die only because he is a negro. They contended no white man ever has been executed in Mississippi for rape.

Might Lead To Rain Of A-Bombs On U. S.

ASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Pres-t Truman declared tonight that nding the Korean war—as Gen. glas MacArthur proposed — ht lead to a rain of atomic bs on America's cities.
evising a major foreign policy ch after copies of it had been ributed, Mr. Truman said:
Remember this: If we do have ther world war, it will be an mic war. We could expect many mic bombs to be dropped on erican cities. And a single one of n could cause many times more ualties than we have suffered in the fighting in Korea.
do not want to be responsible bringing that about."
he President added these state-nts to a speech in which he de-ed anew that spreading the war ond Korea might well incite ld War III.
e said the free nations, by their nd in Korea, have stopped the rch of Communism in Asia and alt a heavy blow to the Kremlin spiracy" all over the world. Al-dy, he said, there are signs of rackup behind the iron curtain.

No "Go It Alone" Policy

nd he declared that a "go it ne" policy in the Far East might ck the whole western defense ef-and thus amount to "a tremen-s Soviet victory."
MacArthur, testifying before Sen-investigators last Thursday, pro-ed an ultimatum to the Chinese s. If Allied nations failed to go ng, he said, the United States uld "go it alone."
We do not intend to fall into t trap," Mr. Truman asserted in address prepared for a national l defense conference.
he President declared that "the t collective military advice in this ntry" backs his policy of limit-the war in Korea, and that—trary to MacArthur's statements our policy is designed to win."
But if the aggressor takes fur-r action which threatens the se-ity of the United Nations in rea," he said, "we will counter t action."
Thus he left open the possibility t some of MacArthur's hit-the-ds-harder demands will be car-d out if the Chinese Communists voke them.
The President said there must be ionwide organization to meet the esome and terrible possibility" of mic attack.
But he declared: "The best de-se against atomic bombing is to vent the outbreak of another rld war and achieve a real peace."
Then he went on to say:
"We have been urged to take asures which would spread the nting in the Far East. We have n told that this would bring the rean conflict to a speedy conclu-n; that it would save the lives of troops.
In my judgment, this is not true. believe we have a better chance stopping the aggression in Korea,

Red Forces Shoved Back Up To 3 Miles

Enemy Reported Angry At Russia For Failure To Provide Tanks, Planes

TOKYO, Tuesday, May 8 (AP)—South Korean troops smashed hard into a North Korean army corps northwest of Seoul Monday and rolled it back three miles to points 13 miles from the capital.

Other Allied forces in the east forced back hard fighting Reds a mile and a half.

These Red setbacks on the flanks and a withdrawal north of Chunchon in the center coincided with reports of dissatisfaction in Communist ranks.

AP Correspondent John Randolph reported some Allied officers on the western front believe North Korean and Chinese Reds were angry because they felt Russia had let them down on tanks and planes for their now stalled spring offensive.

Half Of Ground Won Back

The Allies have won back nearly half of the ground lost north of Seoul to 300,000 Reds who aimed the main weight of their futile offensive at capture of the capital by May Day.

"There is no denying that before the offensive began April 22 there were many signs that the Reds were counting on tanks and aircraft," Randolph said in his dispatch from the western front.

"Behind their front, roads were being widened and improved and for weeks there had been constant work on regular fields and new airstrips.

"'Uncle Joe (Stalin) sold them down the river again,' one officer exulted after the first few hours of the offensive showed no tanks or planes."

Last weekend, some 7,000 North Koreans northwest of Seoul stood their ground and defeated Allied attempts to dislodge them.

2,940 More Reds Kayoed

U. S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea estimated that 2,940 Reds were killed or wounded in the first day of the limited Allied push Monday. Red losses since their ill-fated offensive of April 22 have exceeded 80,000.

The main Chinese resistance was northwest of Seoul.

Bulky Red forces were concentrated in an area between Munsan and the Han River, roughly 20 miles northwest of Seoul.

Front dispatches speculated that the Chinese might be considering an attack down the Kimpo peninsula in a flanking attempt.

Kimpo airfield, still being used by Allied aircraft, is about 12 air miles northwest of Seoul on the peninsula. When the Chinese struck south last New Year's Eve, they sent a similar striking force across the Han, but it was eliminated.

VETERAN SCREEN ACTOR SUCCUMBS

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 7 (AP)—Warner Baxter (above), 62, veteran motion picture actor, died at his home tonight after a long illness. He had suffered from arthritis for years and a lobotomy was performed three weeks ago to alleviate his pain. Bronchial pneumonia set in recently and hastened the death of the movies' original "Cisco Kid."

Administration Seeks Standby Subsidy Power

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, asked Congress today for standby authority to pay federal subsidies on food and farm products to forestall any lag in defense production.

Along with this request, Wilson cautioned that the worst shortages of materials and "the biggest threat of inflation" are yet to come.

The mobilization chief appeared as leadoff witness before the Senate Banking Committee in opening the administration's fight to extend and strengthen federal inflation controls. The hearings are scheduled to last 20 days. Price, wage and credit control provisions of the Defense Production Act expire June 30.

Even before Wilson testified, the committee, meeting behind closed doors, as least temporarily sidetracked President Truman's proposal for rent controls on stores, office space and other commercial properties.

Chairman Maybank (D-SC) told newsmen the question will be left until the end of the hearings "if it is taken up at all."

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) quickly challenged the administration's bid for subsidy power by asking if it was not a limited version of the controversial Brannan plan — the program advocated by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan to make direct federal payments to farmers in an effort to halt rising food prices.

The United States proposal was put formally before a 12-member U. N. committee studying methods of punishing Red China and the Communist aggressors in Korea. U. S. Ambassador Ernest A. Gross outlined the terms of the resolution when the committee met last week.

Committee To Meet Soon

Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain, told the committee he could not give a definite answer now, but it was possible that Britain would feel the time has come to submit such a resolution to the General Assembly.

Francis Lacoste, France, said it was proper to expect the U. S. resolution would receive sympathetic treatment by his government.

The committee will meet by next Monday or before, with a final vote expected at that time.

It was indicated the resolution would be approved and passed on to the 60-nation Political Committee of the General Assembly for action there.

Red Military Stepup Feared

Britain thus far has opposed any restrictive measures against Red China on the ground it might spur the Communists on to greater military efforts.

In recent days, the Conservative Party in the House of Commons has been asking the government questions about the British trade with Peiping. Jebb told the committee that his government had announced direct exports of war materials from the United Kingdom to Red China had been prohibited. Informed quarters said he also stated that shipment of these materials to Hong Kong had been barred and that no oil is going to Hong Kong now for Red China.

General's Plea To Reds Broke Up Peace Try

Secretary Denies He Overruled JCS

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Marshall told senators today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's peace appeal to the enemy last March destroyed for the time being any chances of a Korean war settlement.

He said the United Nations was preparing an announcement of preparations to discuss a war settlement — the announcement to come from President Truman — when MacArthur issued a statement on March 24 that he was ready to talk peace terms with the Red commander in Korea.

"In view of the serious impact of Gen. MacArthur's statement on the negotiations of these nations," Marshall said, "it became necessary to abandon the effort, thus losing whatever chance there may have been at that time to negotiate a settlement of the Korean conflict."

Marshall made this statement after declaring that MacArthur's war plans would risk an all-out war with Russia, expose Europe to attack, and perhaps split the free world into two camps.

But he hinted this country will hit Red China by air and sea if the Reds strike at American forces outside Korea, presumably those in Japan and with the 7th Fleet off Formosa.

Much Of Testimony Deleted

The closed door testimony by the Secretary—himself a five-star general and one-time Army chief of staff—spotlighted the conflict of ideas that has been underway for months over the best way to wage the war in Korea.

Marshall came to the hearing—by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees — armed with a big pile of secret documents. And whole chunks of his testimony were deleted by the Defense and State Department censors who are "combing" the record for security purposes before it is released to newsmen.

Almost sadly, the 70-year-old Marshall struck back at a "brother officer" in defense of the conduct of the Korean war which he said was approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and himself.

He said he did not believe—as MacArthur does — that bombing Chinese bases in Manchuria will bring victory in Korea. And he added that while MacArthur never violated military campaign directives—he did violate orders against public statements.

Further, he denied as MacArthur had suggested, that he or President Truman had overruled the Joint Chiefs of Staff in war plans which agreed in part to those proposed by the deposed General. And he denied the administration is considering Red China's admission to the United Nations and the fate of Formosa as the basis of a Korean peace treaty.

"Distressing Occasion"

MacArthur had told senators the JCS had urged against any consideration of U. N. membership for Red China and Formosa's future in peace discussions—and that he understood the recommendation had been vetoed by Marshall.

Marshall replied vigorously to MacArthur as the first administration witness to be heard by the Senate committees. These groups are studying U. S. Asia policy and the reasons for MacArthur's ouster.

Deploring this "very distressing occasion," Marshall pictured MacArthur as a commander who had grown so far out of sympathy with U. S. policy that his superiors doubted his ability to make the proper command decisions in the field.

"He would have us accept the risk of involvement not only in an extension of the war with Red China," Marshall said, "but in an all-out

Richter's "The Town" Wins Pulitzer Prize For Fiction

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Conrad Richter's novel, "The Town," a story of an American family growing up in the wilderness of the 19th century, today won the Pulitzer prize for fiction.

There was no award this year for drama in the theater.

Awards for meritorious public service in the newspaper field went to the Miami, Fla., Herald and the Brooklyn Eagle. Both were cited for crime reporting in 1950.

Columbia University trustees, who announce the Pulitzer selections, named six foreign correspondents—including the first woman ever so honored—as prize winners for international reporting.

The woman, 30-year-old Marguerite Higgins of the New York Herald Tribune, was cited for her work as a war correspondent in Korea.

She shared honors with five men, including a colleague, Homer Bigart of the Herald Tribune, who became a two-time winner. He first won a Pulitzer prize in 1946 for his World War II reporting in the Pacific.

Besides Miss Higgins and Bigart, those named for Korean war reporting were Relman Morin and Don Whitehead of the Associated Press, and Keyes Beech of the Chicago Daily News.

The sixth winner in that field was Fred Sparks, also of the Chicago Daily News, for a Berlin series on reborn German nationalism.

Cyrus L. Sulzberger of the New York Times was given a special citation for a number of exclusive interviews, including one with Archbishop Stepinac of Yugoslavia in the Prelate's prison cell.

There was no 1950 award for national reporting. But Arthur Krock's exclusive interview with President Truman was called "the outstanding instance of national reporting" for the year.

Edward S. Montgomery of the San Francisco Examiner won the Pulitzer prize for local reporting on the basis of a series of stories which led to an expose in the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

William Harry Fitzpatrick of the New Orleans, La., States won the editorial writing award, with a series analyzing and clarifying the constitutional limits on American treaties.

Max Desfor of the Associated Press snapped a picture of refugees fleeing across a wrecked bridge in Korea and this was selected as the best news photograph of 1950.

Top cartoonist was Reg (Reginald W.) Manning, whose cartoon "Hats" showed a bullet-pierced helmet in Korea in contrast to the silk top hats of United Nation's diplomats. He is with the Arizona Republic of Phoenix, Ariz.

Besides Bigart, another two-time winner in the 34th annual series of awards in many fields of creative endeavor was Carl Sandburg, who won a poetry award for his complete poems.

For biography, Margaret Louise Coit was cited for her "John C. Calhoun: American Portrait."

In the field of music, Douglas Stuart Moore's three-act opera, "Giants In The Earth," won prize.

Supporters Battle To Save McGee From Electric Chair

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Willie McGee, Mississippi negro, lost an eleventh hour appeal tonight to Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black to stay McGee's execution for the rape of a white woman.

Justice Black's decision was announced at 9:50 p. m. (EST). McGee is scheduled to die at 1:01 a. m. (EST) (12:01 CST) tonight—a little over three hours later.

The negro's attorneys immediately took a similar appeal for a stay to Chief Justice Fred Vinson.

JACKSON, Miss., May 7 (AP) — Only the possibility of last minute action by either the U. S. Supreme Court or the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals remained tonight between Willie McGee and execution in the electric chair.

U. S. District Court Judge Sidney Mize refused a civil injunctive action to save the thrice-convicted 37-year-old negro rapist of a white woman.

McGee was taken by authorities from his Hinds (Jackson) County jail cell for the 90-mile trip to Laurel, Miss., to be executed a minute after midnight (CST). Under Mississippi procedure execution is held in the courtroom of the county where a capital crime is committed.

Attorneys for McGee claimed his civil rights had been violated; that he is innocent; that he was convicted on perjured testimony and sentenced to die only because he is a negro. They contended no white man ever has been executed in Mississippi for rape.

Gen. Wedemeyer Asks Retirement

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, whose long-secret report warned of a Red attack on South Korea, has asked for retirement from the United States Army.

Gen. Wedemeyer is commanding general of the Sixth Army, whose headquarters here today confirmed that he had applied for retirement.

Headquarters said the General would not issue a statement at this time because he felt it was "not appropriate for him to make any further statement until the application is acted upon."

Gen. Wedemeyer headed a special mission to China and Korea in 1947, then submitted his report to President Truman on Sept. 9, 1947.

In the report the General pictured the Communist buildup of North Korean armies. He also suggested several steps to prepare South Korea to meet the menace.

Some portions of the now famous Wedemeyer report were made public in Washington last week. Other parts remain confidential.

Lost Child Sought Near Pen Mar, Pa.

PEN MAR, Pa., May 7 (AP)—A searching party of 150 was scouring this hilly countryside tonight, searching for a two-year-old child missing since suppertime.

Little Susan Jane Brechbill has been missing since 6 p. m. when she scooted out of her high chair and went out to play.

Her mother Mrs. Elsie Brechbill, looked for her 45 minutes later. The child was nowhere to be found. Mrs. Brechbill raised the alarm and soldiers at a National Guard meeting at Camp Ritchie joined with civilians to form a scouting party.

Larry Parks' Film Contract Cancelled

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (AP)—Columbia Studios announced today its contract with Actor Larry Parks has been cancelled by "mutual consent." Parks recently told the House Un-American Activities Committee he once was a Communist.

The contract called for one picture a year for the next three years.

Parks told the committee on March 21 that he was a party member from 1941 to 1945. His frankness was praised by committee member Rep. Velde (R-Ill), who described the star of "The Jolson Story" as a "great actor" and "loyal American."

at a smaller cost in the lives of our troops and those of our allies, by following our present course."

Mr. Truman did not refer by name to MacArthur, who has advocated air action, a naval blockade and the use of Chinese Nationalist troops on Formosa against the Chinese Reds.

Plainly firing at Republican supporters of MacArthur, the President asserted:

"We are right in the midst of a big debate on foreign policy. A lot of people are looking at this debate as if it were just a political fight. But the stakes are a lot more important that the outcome of an election. The thing that is at stake in this debate may be atomic war.

Matter Of Life And Death

"Our foreign policy is not a political issue. It is a matter of life and death. It is a matter of the future of mankind."

Since "the terrible destruction of cities and of civilization as we know it, is a real possibility," the President said, the country must organize "in every city, factory, office and home" to "reduce the number of deaths and injuries and to check panic."

He said the civil defense workers must:

1. Teach all Americans "how to protect themselves in the event of enemy attack."

2. Organize and train "millions of volunteers as active members of the United States Civil Defense Corps."

Mr. Truman expressed confidence that "this country would survive and win an atomic war."

But even if we win, he said, an atomic war "would be a disaster."

war with the Soviet Union.

"He would have us do this even though the effect of such action might expose Western Europe to attack by the millions of Soviet troops poised in Middle and Eastern Europe."

And then, point by point, Marshall disputed many of MacArthur's statements and warned against the General's proposal to step up the Korean war by bombing Red China and forcing a Communist surrender. It was MacArthur's outspoken calls for this action — and the use of Chinese Nationalist troops—which led to his dismissal.

"Crusade" Best Atomic Defense

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The nation's civil defense chief, Millard Caldwell, said today there is a good defense against the atom bomb. He called for a nationwide crusade to make the public aware of it.

Caldwell said such a crusade also should aim at awakening people to the real danger that atomic bombs may fall.

A well-organized civil defense program, he said, could reduce the casualties at least by half and "keep the cities and production lines in operation."

Caldwell spoke at the opening session of a two-day civil defense conference attended by leaders of some 250 national organizations with a total membership of 50,000,000.

Caldwell told the delegate that "we cannot stop an atomic bombing if the enemy decides to make the attack."

"Despite our best military efforts, at least 70 out of 100 bombers will get through," Caldwell said.

Marshall Explains Why Bombing Banned

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Censorship cloaks were pulled today from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's story of how he was forbidden to bomb one North Korean seaport and supply center. At the same time, Secretary of Defense Marshall said the bombing was banned because the town is so close to the Soviet border.

MacArthur told Senate inquiry committees about it last Thursday, but censors knocked the account from the text of his testimony as given to newsmen. Several senators, taking issue with the censors' judgment, gave reporters the gist of the testimony next day.

The town is Rashin, a seaport on Rashin Bay in Northeast Korea. It was described by MacArthur as "the great central distributing point from Manchuria down the east coast of Korea." He said it was about 35 miles from the Soviet border.

MacArthur said he repeatedly appealed for permission to bomb the town but was denied it.

Israel Demands U. N. Halt Syrian 'Armed Aggression'

ISRAEL - SYRIAN FRONTIER, May 7 (AP) — Israel accused Syria today of "armed aggression" in the six-day fighting along the northern frontier and demanded a U. N. Security Council meeting to take up the issue.

All was quiet, however, in the disputed area today following Israeli reports of an early morning assault by the Syrians on the frontier village of Ein Geb on the east shore of the Sea of Galilee. Sporadic rifle fire on the village hit some houses but injured no one, according to Israeli military spokesmen.

The heavy artillery and mortar fire of the past few days around the Israeli hill of Tel El Muteila, north of the Sea of Galilee, was not heard today.

But Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett has said Israel will not heed a united nations-sponsored ceasefire order as long as Syrian forces remain in the demilitarized zone. This zone was set up as a buffer area between the two countries at the end of the Palestine war in 1948.

The Israeli government, in a message to the Security Council president, accused Syria of "flagrant violation of the armistice agreement by organizing infiltration of armed forces into the demilitarized zone," and "armed aggression against Israel territory outside the demilitarized zone."

Israel Demands U. N. Halt Syrian 'Armed Aggression'

ISRAEL - SYRIAN FRONTIER, May 7 (AP) — Israel accused Syria today of "armed aggression" in the six-day fighting along the northern frontier and demanded a U. N. Security Council meeting to take up the issue.

All was quiet, however, in the disputed area today following Israeli reports of an early morning assault by the Syrians on the frontier village of Ein Geb on the east shore of the Sea of Galilee. Sporadic rifle fire on the village hit some houses but injured no one, according to Israeli military spokesmen.

The heavy artillery and mortar fire of the past few days around the Israeli hill of Tel El Muteila, north of the Sea of Galilee, was not heard today.

But Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett has said Israel will not heed a united nations-sponsored ceasefire order as long as Syrian forces remain in the demilitarized zone. This zone was set up as a buffer area between the two countries at the end of the Palestine war in 1948.

The Israeli government, in a message to the Security Council president, accused Syria of "flagrant violation of the armistice agreement by organizing infiltration of armed forces into the demilitarized zone," and "armed aggression against Israel territory outside the demilitarized zone."

Gen. Wedemeyer Asks Retirement

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, whose long-secret report warned of a Red attack on South Korea, has asked for retirement from the United States Army.

Gen. Wedemeyer is commanding general of the Sixth Army, whose headquarters here today confirmed that he had applied for retirement.

Headquarters said the General would not issue a statement at this time because he felt it was "not appropriate for him to make any further statement until the application is acted upon."

Gen. Wedemeyer headed a special mission to China and Korea in 1947, then submitted his report to President Truman on Sept. 9, 1947.

In the report the General pictured the Communist buildup of North Korean armies. He also suggested several steps to prepare South Korea to meet the menace.

Some portions of the now famous Wedemeyer report were made public in Washington last week. Other parts remain confidential.

Lost Child Sought Near Pen Mar, Pa.

PEN MAR, Pa., May 7 (AP)—A searching party of 150 was scouring this hilly countryside tonight, searching for a two-year-old child missing since suppertime.

Little Susan Jane Brechbill has been missing since 6 p. m. when she scooted out of her high chair and went out to play.

Her mother Mrs. Elsie Brechbill, looked for her 45 minutes later. The child was nowhere to be found. Mrs. Brechbill raised the alarm and soldiers at a National Guard meeting at Camp Ritchie joined with civilians to form a scouting party.

The Polish View

LAKE SUCCESS, May 7 (AP)—The Polish delegate to the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women boasted today that 15 times as many women as before the war now are employed in Polish mines.

That, said Mrs. Zofia Dembinska, was one result of giving the women of Poland equal educational opportunities with men since the war.

Larry Parks' Film Contract Cancelled

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (AP)—Columbia Studios announced today its contract with Actor Larry Parks has been cancelled by "mutual consent." Parks recently told the House Un-American Activities Committee he once was a Communist.

The contract called for one picture a year for the next three years.

Parks told the committee on March 21 that he was a party member from 1941 to 1945. His frankness was praised by committee member Rep. Velde (R-Ill), who described the star of "The Jolson Story" as a "great actor" and "loyal American."

"Mac's" Views

at a smaller cost in the lives of our troops and those of our allies, by following our present course."

Mr. Truman did not refer by name to MacArthur, who has advocated air action, a naval blockade and the use of Chinese Nationalist troops on Formosa against the Chinese Reds.

Plainly firing at Republican supporters of MacArthur, the President asserted:

"We are right in the midst of a big debate on foreign policy. A lot of people are looking at this debate as if it were just a political fight. But the stakes are a lot more important that the outcome of an election. The thing that is at stake in this debate may be atomic war.

Matter Of Life And Death

"Our foreign policy is not a political issue. It is a matter of life and death. It is a matter of the future of mankind."

Since "the terrible destruction of cities and of civilization as we know it, is a real possibility," the President said, the country must organize "in every city, factory, office and home" to "reduce the number of deaths and injuries and to check panic."

He said the civil defense workers must:

1. Teach all Americans "how to protect themselves in the event of enemy attack."

2. Organize and train "millions of volunteers as active members of the United States Civil Defense Corps."

Mr. Truman expressed confidence that "this country would survive and win an atomic war."

But even if we win, he said, an atomic war "would be a disaster."

General's Plea

war with the Soviet Union.

"He would have us do this even though the effect of such action might expose Western Europe to attack by the millions of Soviet troops poised in Middle and Eastern Europe."

And then, point by point, Marshall disputed many of MacArthur's statements and warned against the General's proposal to step up the Korean war by bombing Red China and forcing a Communist surrender. It was MacArthur's outspoken calls for this action — and the use of Chinese Nationalist troops—which led to his dismissal.

"Crusade" Best Atomic Defense

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The nation's civil defense chief, Millard Caldwell, said today there is a good defense against the atom bomb. He called for a nationwide crusade to make the public aware of it.

Caldwell said such a crusade also should aim at awakening people to the real danger that atomic bombs may fall.

A well-organized civil defense program, he said, could reduce the casualties at least by half and "keep the cities and production lines in operation."

Caldwell spoke at the opening session of a two-day civil defense conference attended by leaders of some 250 national organizations with a total membership of 50,000,000.

Caldwell told the delegate that "we cannot stop an atomic bombing if the enemy decides to make the attack."

"Despite our best military efforts, at least 70 out of 100 bombers will get through," Caldwell said.

Marshall Explains Why Bombing Banned

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Censorship cloaks were pulled today from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's story of how he was forbidden to bomb one North Korean seaport and supply center. At the same time, Secretary of Defense Marshall said the bombing was banned because the town is so close to the Soviet border.

MacArthur told Senate inquiry committees about it last Thursday, but censors knocked the account from the text of his testimony as given to newsmen. Several senators, taking issue with the censors' judgment, gave reporters the gist of the testimony next day.

The town is Rashin, a seaport on Rashin Bay in Northeast Korea. It was described by MacArthur as "the great central distributing point from Manchuria down the east coast of Korea." He said it was about 35 miles from the Soviet border.

MacArthur said he repeatedly appealed for permission to bomb the town but was denied it.

$75,000 Suit Is Settled

A $75,000 damage suit filed in Circuit Court by a local girl who was badly injured in a two-car crash December 8, 1949, has been settled out of court, according to attorneys in the case.

Miss Greta Hinkle docketed the action against Glenn H. Burkett and Robert Robinette, drivers of the two cars in the collision. Miss Hinkle was a passenger in the machine operated by Burkett.

Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., attorneys for Miss Hinkle, would not divulge the exact amount of the settlement, but said it was for a substantial sum.

The crash between the two cars occurred at the intersection of Greene and Fayette Streets at Dingle Circle.

Miss Hinkle suffered a fractured hip and neck and fractures of both jaws. She also suffered lacerations of the chin and deep cuts on the legs. Miss Hinkle also charged she suffered from bruises and shock.

An employe of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company at the time of the accident, Miss Hinkle was a patient in Allegany Hospital five or six months and later was treated in a Baltimore hospital. She was in a body cast many weeks and only recently improved enough so that she could walk without the aid of crutches.

Besides her injuries, she also sued for loss of earnings and medical and hospital expenses.

W. Earle Cobey and William H. Geppert were attorneys for the two defendants in the court action.

$75,000 Suit Is Settled

A $75,000 damage suit filed in Circuit Court by a local girl who was badly injured in a two-car crash December 8, 1949, has been settled out of court, according to attorneys in the case.

Miss Greta Hinkle docketed the action against Glenn H. Burkett and Robert Robinette, drivers of the two cars in the collision. Miss Hinkle was a passenger in the machine operated by Burkett.

Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., attorneys for Miss Hinkle, would not divulge the exact amount of the settlement, but said it was for a substantial sum.

The crash between the two cars occurred at the intersection of Greene and Fayette Streets at Dingle Circle.

Miss Hinkle suffered a fractured hip and neck and fractures of both jaws. She also suffered lacerations of the chin and deep cuts on the legs. Miss Hinkle also charged she suffered from bruises and shock.

An employe of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company at the time of the accident, Miss Hinkle was a patient in Allegany Hospital five or six months and later was treated in a Baltimore hospital. She was in a body cast many weeks and only recently improved enough so that she could walk without the aid of crutches.

Besides her injuries, she also sued for loss of earnings and medical and hospital expenses.

W. Earle Cobey and William H. Geppert were attorneys for the two defendants in the court action.

Reciprocal Trade Agreements

The State Department is to publish this week the import duty schedules carried in the 100 or so reciprocal trade agreements signed at the recent UN tariff conference at Torquay, England. The new agreements invoving this country go into effect without action by Congress.

Our reciprocal tariff act is due to expire on the coming June 12. The House, in voting for renewal, has added restrictions which evidently have much support in the Senate—in fact, have been accepted in large part by the Senate Finance Committee.

The restrictions voted by the House would: (1) Forbid future tariff concessions to countries in the Soviet bloc; (2) authorize the Tariff Commission, after investigation, to recommend that a concession be withdrawn if an American firm claimed to be injured by it; (3) bar entry (in effect) to farm products that would be sold at less than the government support price here; (4) require the Tariff Commission to establish "peril points" below which an import duty would be expected to injure an American industry.

The Administration says these restrictions are mischievous and unworkable. If they are in the renewal bill as submitted to President Truman, he might well kill it by a veto. Then the reciprocal tariff act would be off the statute books, at least for a time, but the Administration would not have to face the ticklish issue of whether Congress can change reciprocal agreements put into effect before June 12, 1951.

Or the President might sign the bill with the House restrictions, or something like them, and then let it become a dead letter. He did that after the Republican 80th Congress in 1948 added the "peril points" provision, which the Democratic 81st Congress threw out in 1949.

Orders On Beef Prices

The new ceilings over beef prices charged by wholesalers are scheduled to to take effect on Wednesday. The ceilings over beef prices charged by retailers on May 14. Meat packers have been ordered to pay 10 per cent less for beef cattle on and after May 20, and other orders on beef prices are to take effect later. The result, says the Office of Price Stabilization, will be to reduce retail beef prices by four or five cents a pound in mid-summer, by another four or five cents in the fall.

But first the OPS must have its regulations obeyed, and obedience cannot be taken for granted. On May 2 the Senate Agriculture Committee demanded that the beef-price orders be withdrawn without delay, and senators from cattle states charged OPS with ignoring the "elementary fact that prices must cover production costs."

Price Administrator Di Salle replies that beef cattle are (as of April 15) selling at 52 per cent above parity, and as for retail beef prices — ! Rib roast that sold for 34 cents a pound and round steak that sold for 42 cents in June, 1946, were selling at the end of March, 1951, for 85 cents and $1.08, respectively.

When producers of cattle refused to move the animals to market at the OPA prices in 1946, the whole postwar price fixing program was abandoned. Price-fixed meat all but disappeared from the butchers' shelves, much of the little meat available was bought and sold on the black market, the public outcry was intense, President Truman abolished price control over meat, soon said there was no point then in trying to control other prices.

GOP Convention City

The time and the place for the 1952 Republican National Convention will be chosen by the Republican National Committee at a meeting opening on Friday in Tulsa, Okla. A subcommittee will have presented its recommendations after considering offers from the various cities that would like to be selected. The sum donated by the convention city for the honor not only goes toward the convention expenses but sometimes provides some funds for launching the campaign itself.

In each of the two preceding presidential election years, both parties held their nominating conventions in the same city—in Chicago in 1944, in Philadelphia in 1948. Chicago, because of its central location, has been the favorite convention place for both parties since the Civil War. It has been chosen by the Republicans 11 times out of 21, by the Democrats seven times out of 21.

Prior to the Civil War the favorite convention city for all parties was Baltimore. Travel was difficult in those days; many of the delegates were in Congress or in the government; Baltimore is only 40 miles from Washington.

The Republicans have gone west of the Mississippi only once, in 1928 to Kansas City, where Hoover was nominated. The Democrats have gone west of the Mississippi four times—in 1900 to Kansas City (Bryan for the second time); in 1908 to Denver (Bryan again); in 1920 to San Francisco (Cox); in 1928 to Houston (Smith). Since the Civil War the Republicans have only once, in 1888, failed to meet earlier than the Democrats.

What Men Dislike

An informal poll of males in show business has produced a list of what they think is funny in women's dress. Although the survey has the unmistakable aroma of a publicity gag, it is a refreshing contrast to the interminable 10-best-dressed lists.

The male view of what a well-dressed woman should not do or wear includes big hats, crooked stocking seams, low-healed shoes, gloves at cocktail parties, low-cut dresses on informal occasions, strange colors in fingernails, and untidy hair.

None of this, probably, will be news to married women, for every wife has endured domestic nagging about one or more of these items, especially the big hat. Like all such lists and such generalizing, there are flaws in this one. Big hats are becoming to some women, also low-heeled shoes, colored fingernails and gloves at cocktail parties. All would be well if only those wore these things to whom they are becoming.

What the survey tends to prove is that if women dress to please men, many of them aren't succeeding. If they consulted male taste alone there would be no big hats and no colored fingernails and also mighty sparing use of lipstick.

Of the men polled in the survey, Marion Brandon's comment was least subject to dispute. He didn't care, he said, what a girl had on if she had a pleasant personality. "If she doesn't, clothes won't help that either," added Mr. Brandon. It is a point to be kept in mind by those who may be concerned.

How To Keep Well

Baby's Best Food

BREAST MILK is the finest birthday gift a mother can give her brand new baby. This is as nature intended and nursing is one of the few age old customs that has not been superseded or matched by modern science and ingenuity. It still is the safest, cleanest and most convenient method of feeding infants.

The process of nursing comes instinctively to all babies; they just seem to know what to do. Those who are wideawake are likely to go at the job in a big way during the latter part of their first day on earth. Others are too sleepy but this makes little difference because true breast milk does not flow before the third or fourth day. Physicians often refer to this time as a practice period for the baby. It is a mutual arrangement as the busy newborn helps to stimulate the formation of milk. Furthermore, both are satisfied when everything is serene and the mother cuddles the tiny fellow in her arms.

Most youngsters require no urging. The mother ought to take time to find a comfortable position, preferably with the head of the bed elevated. The child should not be forced as this upsets the tike and make him cry. After four or five minutes of nursing it is advisable to burp the infant to aid in the elimination of swallowed air.

Crying is the only effective way babies have of calling attention to their needs. This is evident even in the first week of life. The hospital nursery is quiet just after the little rascals have been fed; but as the next period comes due, first one candidate and then another is heard. In time the place is in an uproar as each child lets it be known that he is hungry. Many stop wailing at the sound of mother's voice; others, as soon as they begin to nurse. Their expression and attitude is one of satisfaction, comfort, and security. Some psychiatrists believe that this is an essential part of growing up. It sets into motion the reflexes that are necessary for the development of a healthy emotional make-up and the sense of security needed at his time of life.

There are numerous old wives' tales connected with nursing. For example, it is said to prevent pregnancy but many women have found out otherwise. Another story has it that beer encourages the manufacture of more milk. Actually all it does is contribute fluid and calories. Milk is much better because it supplies not only liquid but calcium and other essential ingredients. Still another fallacy is that the mother should overeat in order to have an adequate milk supply. But here, as in pregnancy, quality rather than quantity should be stressed.

In the first few days of life the child usually loses weight. At this time he is not receiving much nourishment but as the milk "comes in" many tots become hungry. From this point on, growth proceeds in an orderly and individual fashion. The ability to feed is not the only reflex that the baby can boast of. He has a sense of touch, and smell. He cannot see much except to follow light. A startle reflex is another innate quality and is used by physicians to test the nervous system. The tot throws his arms and legs about when a loud noise is made or the examining table is tapped. In time, mother is able to control this reaction also with her soothing voice.

TOMORROW: Newer resuscitating methods are described by Dr. Van Dellen.

INFECTED TOE

C. V. writes: What causes pus in a big toe?

REPLY

Infection. The most common causes are infected ingrown toenails, runarounds (paronychia), and felons. Other origins are osteomyelitis and bacterial invasion of corns, calluses, and bunions.

•—•—•

NOCTURNAL HEADACHE

Mrs. H. writes: What causes severe headache every night after retiring?

REPLY

Eyestrain, sinus trouble, fatigue, and even nervousness are possibilities. Thoro examination would be needed to determine the origin in an individual case.

•—•—•

VISUAL DISORDERS

M. J. writes: What is a refractive error?

REPLY

The term includes nearsightedness (myopia), farsightedness (hyperopia), aging sight (presbyopia), and astigmatism. In these conditions the focusing ability of the eyes is disturbed.

•—•—•

FAST PULSE

Mrs. K. writes: My 7 year old son's pulse beats 104 to 120 per minute. Could this be caused by infected tonsils?

REPLY

Possibly, but youngsters normally have a more rapid pulse than adults. You fail to mention whether the pulse was taken after the child had exercised or eaten; these factors in themselves influence the rate more than do infected tonsils.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Some Of MacArthur's Press Statements Boomerang; MacArthur Opposed More Arms For South Koreans While Urging Arms To Defend Japan

WASHINGTON — It isn't often that the newspaper denials issued by high public officials catch up to them so quickly as is now shown by the MacArthur Senate hearings.

Usually a newspaperman's word counts for little compared with that of a Cabinet officer, the President or a general—especially a general as high as Douglas MacArthur. However, the Senate hearings have now shed interesting light on some of these denials. Here are a few illustrations:

1. Home by Christmas—When the Associated Press cabled from Korea that MacArthur had made a statement promising to bring American troops home by Christmas, it was promptly denied. Not only did Gen. Floyd Parks, the Army press relations officer at the Pentagon rush into print with a statement claiming the AP had misquoted MacArthur. But MacArthur personally cabled a denial to Ray Henle for use on his five-star final radio program,

"At no time have I ever attempted to predict the course of termination of this or any other military campaign," MacArthur cabled on Nov. 28—just after our disastrous North Korean retreat had begun.

Last week, however, it was disclosed that MacArthur officially informed the President that he expected to bring American troops home by Christmas. In other words, the AP had not misquoted MacArthur after all.

2. U. S. Troops on Chinese Border —On Nov. 8, this column reported that "the State Department had warned that if we approached the Yalu River area, the Chinese would react in about the same way as the people of Los Angeles if a Mexican army should approach Boulder Dam which supplies much of their water. Therefore the State Department long ago urged that UN troops stop this side of the Manchurian border. . . . The Joint Chiefs of Staff heartily concurred in this.

"However, when MacArthur reached the neutrality belt," this column reported on Nov. 8, "he wired Washington for permission to send South Korean troops beyond to the Manchurian border. He said they were to go on mopping-up missions and as military police to maintain order.

"However, MacArthur's intelligence was faulty and the South Korean troops found themselves badly outnumbered. When they got into trouble, MacArthur wired Washington for permission to send U. S. troops to rescue them. While the Joint Chiefs of Staff didn't like this, they found it difficult to overrule the commander in the field."

This story was denied from Tokyo at the time. Again only a few days ago, MacArthur stated that at no time did he receive any warning that Chinese troops might intervene.

When grilled by senators, however, MacArthur confirmed the information carried in the Nov. 8 column. He admitted that the Joint Chiefs recommended halting UN troops on a defensible ridge south of the Manchurian border, that they wanted South Korean troops only to go into North Korea, he explained, "but that tactical conditions were such that South Koreans were not able to do the job."

3. Arms to Japan — Another hot dispute has been over the question of using extra arms for arming South Koreans or using them to defend Japan. On March 31, 1951, MacArthur was asked by Freeman magazine why he had refused more arms to the South Koreans. Here is his reply, dated April 5:

"The issue is one determined by the Republic of Korea and the United States government and involves basic political decisions beyond my authority."

However, MacArthur's cable to the Joint Chiefs, dated Jan 6, 1951, does not jibe with this. Taking exactly the opposite position, he recommended: "That the over-all interests of the United States will be better served by making these weapons available to increase the security of Japan rather than arming additional Republic of Korea forces."

He was referring to additional arms which Washington was making available for the South Koreans if MacArthur agreed. Significantly he did not propose that these extra arms be used for Chiang Kai-Shek's troops though he has told members of Congress that he repeatedly urged such a step.

4. Wake Island Transcript—Following the New York Times publication of the Wake Island conference story, MacArthur issued a statement casting doubt on its authenticity and stating that no transcript was made of the Wake Island conference.

Since then General Bradley has stated that five copies of the transcript were sent to MacArthur in Tokyo, and MacArthur, under cross examination by senators, has also admitted that the transcript is accurate. Anyone comparing the official transcript with the New York Times story, which MacArthur belittled, can see that it, also, is accurate.

5. No Directives Violated—Testifying before the Senate, MacArthur stated that in his long career as a soldier he had never violated any order from a superior. However, on Dec. 6, his superiors, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, gave him a directive categorically ordering him to make no speech, press release or public statement concerning foreign policy without clearing it first with the State Department; and no statement, speech, or press release on military policy without clearing it first with the Defense Department.

Democracy In Germany

U. S. High Commissioner Jack McCloy, one of the busiest men in Europe, frequently takes time to visit town meetings in various parts of Germany. He considers this one of the best ways to get the German people working at Democracy; also it gives him a chance to find out what people are thinking and to answer their gripes.

At one such meeting, an old German got up and delivered a tirade on the high cost of living.

"When I was a boy," he said, "it cost my grandfather 20 pfennigs to buy a whip. Later when my father bought a whip he had to pay a mark for it. Now, when I buy a whip I have to pay 10 marks, and then the whip is no good."

When the old German, who was inclined to blame all this on the U. S. Army, sat down, the U. S. High Commissioner got up and, speaking in German, said something like this:

"When I was a boy my grandfather didn't have to pay any income taxes whatsoever. Later my father had to pay about one-tenth of his income in taxes. Now I have to pay about 50 per cent of my income to the government."

McCloy went on to tell how the American people were paying more than their share of the world's burdens. He went into this in some detail, and when he had finished, it was obvious that he had won some new friends for the U.S.A.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON.—A breath of fresh air has swept across the country in the person of a man who, without bitterness or rancor, rises above the petty and the irrelevant to state honestly his convictions on a highly controversial subject of national policy.

What General MacArthur has accomplished by his three days of testimony and by his ready submission to cross-examination is to put the whole question of our military policy in a true perspective.

Not a word of resentment did he express against the President or anyone else. He brushed aside with a simple statement of facts the many misrepresentations of his position which critics have flung at him.

Nobody can truly claim the right to state General MacArthur's position hereafter unless he has read the 150,000 words of testimony covering the three days of hearings.

Many Statements Untrue

This correspondent has read every word of it and is amazed at the number of things that have been written about the General or his proposals which simply are not true. The atmosphere here is so surcharged with political tactics and with the polemics of partisanship that it is refreshing to find a spokesman, who, without regard to how his remarks jibe with the speeches of Republican or Democratic leaders, in the "great debate" of recent weeks, states with candor and frankness what he really believes.

People may differ as to whether he has the right proposals and whether they should be adopted but, after reading the testimony, one is more puzzled than ever that the President should have listened to the smears of the "palace guard" and tried to destroy the reputation of one of the world's greatest soldiers, if not one of her most dynamic statesmen.

The same man who wrote out in longhand on his plane the historic speech to Congress and then read it without glasses, the same man who, though 71 years of age, sat for nine hours a day for three successive days and faced a barrage of questions from the Senate's best interrogators won spontaneous praise from Republicans and Democrats in the committee. The tribute by Senator Russell of Georgia, Democrat, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, at the end of the final session on Saturday, is significant. He said:

Praised By Russell

"General MacArthur, I wish to state to you that the three days that you have been here with us are without parallel in my legislative experience. I have never seen a man subjected to such a barrage of questions in so many fields and on so many varied subjects. I marvel at your physical endurance. More than that, I have been profoundly impressed by the vastness of your patience and the thoroughness and the frankness with which you have answered all of the questions that have been propounded.

"We have certainly drawn freely on your vast reservoir of knowledge and experience, not only as a great military captain, but as a civilian administrator of eighty million people."

One wonders how such a man could have been summarily dismissed. One finds nowhere in the official record the slightest evidence that he disobeyed a military command or failed to fulfill the highest traditions of our military service. One wonders if President Truman will not be inspired when he has read all the testimony to show the same courage that he showed when he apologized to the Marines for an intemperate remark. For the instinct to redress a wrong is the mark of courage and spiritual understanding. General MacArthur cannot be restored to his command, of course, but the unworthy manner by which he was abruptly relieved can still be expunged from the record by an act of christian atonement.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

ATHENS

IT IS easy to sum up the impression of American policy making that is left by a tour in the Middle East and Eastern Mediteranean. Evidently the men who make our national policy are like distracted cooks confronting an enormous stove covered with dozens of different pots, all bubbling away simultaneously. The cooks only watch the most conspicuous pots—Western Europe, for example. The other pots get no attention until they either scorch or boil over.

Even from the perspective of Athens, it is all too clear that Iran must now be placed in the category of pots that have boiled over, like China in the past. When this reporter left Teheran, the American and British motto was that "time would cure all things, and that in time an agreed settlement of the oil nationalization issue could be arranged with the Iranian government." Even then, it seemed that time was more likely to produce an explosion than a settlement, unless the Foreign Office and State Department could concert strong preventive measures.

The explosion has now occurred with the political triumph of the National Front leader, Dr. Mohammed Mussadegh, an aged extremist who lives in a private world of violent dreams. With Dr. Mussadegh as Prime Minister, it is pretty safe to predict that one of two things will have happened in Iran within the next few days. Either the British will have moved troops into southern Iran (presumably flying them from Suez) in order to protect their oil properties, or the Iranian extremists will have seized the British oil properties by main force.

Major Disaster Possible

In addition, there are signs that Dr. Mussadegh is contemplating a deal with the Soviet Union, and that the Shah, the only relatively stable element in Iranian politics, is again planning to flee. Certainly it is childishly unrealistic to talk about "negotiating" with Dr. Mussadegh, as Foreign Minister Morrison has been talking. A minor disaster is the best result that can now be hoped for from the long neglected Iranian situation; a major disaster, engulfing all the vital region of the Middle East, is all too possible.

Meanwhile, the situation in the Eastern Mediterranean is clearly in the other category, of pots that neglect will cause to scorch. At present, the opportunity still exists to tie the Greek, Turkish and Yugoslav armies into the Western security system. But it is troublesome to do what is really necessary in order to exploit this great opportunity—to offer the Yugoslaves a sensible and adequate program of arms aid, and to give the Turks and Greeks the guarantees they want against aggression.

Moreover, there is the crucial problem of the Mediterranean command. Until recently, it was thoroughly taken for granted that Adm. Robert Carney would be the Mediterranean commander of the future. Carney even journeyed to Ankara and Athens to discuss liaison arrangements. If Adm. Carney were given the Mediterranean command, he could easily tie in the NATO area in the Western Mediterranean with this area in the Eastern Mediterranean. A British commander, for various local reasons of prejudice and sentiment, can not possibly wield the same authority.

Command Problem Fumbled

But the American Chiefs of Staff, with unparalleled short sightedness, accepted the Atlantic command for Adm. William Fletcher. As the British Chiefs of Staff must have realized at the time, this made it inevitable that a British appointment would be regarded as "only fair" here in the Mediterranean. And it is also troublesome to disentangle this silly mess, and name a British commander in the Atlantic and an American commander in the Mediterranean.

Because of the search for an easy way out, the command problem is fumbled; the Turkish and Greek requests for guarantees are met with empty words; and the Yugoslavs are "aided" in driblets. Thus, the opportunity here is passing. If suspicion and disgust increase much further at Belgrade; if neutralism gains much more ground at Ankara, the opportunity will simply cease to exist.

On the surface, this sort of missed chance may not seem very grave. In fact, however, the Turks, Greeks and Yugoslaves represent a potential of 70 fighting divisions. These divisions are in being, and are located on the most sensitive Soviet flank, the flank of the always distrusted satellites. With reasonable equipment and good air support the Turks, Greeks and Yugoslaves could, in case of trouble, drive to the Danube, threatening the whole satellite area.

In short, throwing away this splendid opportunity in the Eastern Mediterranean will be like passively accepting a gigantic defeat in war. Equally if the Western world loses control of the vital oil resource and strategic positions in the Middle East, this will also amount to a staggering military defeat. And so improvidence, negligence and the search for the easy way will lead us, by a succession of such defeats, over the brink of final disaster.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

John Garfield

WHEN a witness appears before a Congressional committee, he can adopt the attitude that he was called because he has something to contribute or that he was called because the committee wants to get something on him. Certainly those who are called in the Communist cases often feel embarrassed by the subpoena, for there is always the fear that the public might assume that being called for evidence is being accused of subversion.

John Garfield, the motion picture actor, went to the House Committee on Unamerican Activities accompanied by his lawyer, Louis Nizer, and by public relations counsel and his testimony was glibly and cleverly told, but there was in it something that I do not understand. Here it is:

John Garfield said that he went out to Hollywood in 1938. So he was asked by Congressman Velde:

"When did you first come to the realization that there was a Communist party in Hollywood?

"Mr. Garfield. As I said before, when I quit the Wallace thing I felt he was being captured by a group of Communists . . .

"Mr. Velde. You didn't know before that time that there was a Communist party organization in Hollywood?

"Mr. Garfield. I did not.

"Mr. Velde. That was approximately what date that you decided there was a Communist movement in Hollywood?

"Mr. Garfield. Late 1947 or 1948."

How could any man be in Hollywood, be situated there, live there, read the newspapers and not know that there was a Communist movement in Hollywood between 1938 and 1948? I should like to know how the whole history of those 10 years could be missed by John Garfield or by anyone else who can read.

Mr. Velde was also surprised. He asked:

"Do you want to go on record as saying you had no knowledge whatsoever of any Communist party movement in Hollywood until the time you broke with the Wallace party?

"Mr. Garfield. Absolutely and positively."

So Congressman Jackson got into it and this colloquy occurred:

"Mr. Jackson. Mr. Garfield, I am still afraid that I am not entirely convinced of the accuracy of your testimony or the measure of cooperation you are giving this committee. You have stated your contention that you did not know, during the period of time you were in New York and affiliated with the Group Theater, which for all of its artistry was pretty well shot through with the philosophy of communism, —

"Mr. Garfield. That is not true.

"Mr. Jackson. That is a matter of opinion. You contend that during all of that time in New York you did not know a Communist?

"Mr. Garfield. That is right.

"Mr. Jackson. And you contend that during the seven and one-half years or more that you were in Hollywood and in close contact with a situation in which a number of Communist cells were operating on a week-to-week basis, with electricians, actors, and every class represented, that during the entire period of time you were in Hollywood you did not know of your own personal knowledge a member of the Communist party?

"Mr. Garfield. That is absolutely correct, because I was not a party member or associated in any shape, way or form.

"Mr. Jackson. During that period it might interest you to know attempts were made to recruit me into the Communist party, and I was making $32.50 a week.

"Mr. Garfield. They certainly stayed away from me, sir."

I do not say that Mr. Garfield is or is not a Communist. I do not know and I am not called to sit in judgment. Nor do I question the veracity of his statements. Nor can he assuage my doubts that any man who lives in cities like New York or Hollywood, who moves in intellectual circles, who gives evidence of being literate and intelligent, could possibly live between the years 1938 and 1948 and not know anything at all about a Communist movement in Hollywood. Maybe it is possible, but as Mr. Jackson said, I am not convinced. Congressman Jackson said:

"I do say that for one who is as intelligent and as well qualified as this witness has proven himself to be, it shows a naive or unintelligent approach to this problem for him to contend that he could have lived with this activity 10, 11, or 15 years and not know more about it than he acknowledges."

It just does not ring the bell.

Reciprocal Trade Agreements

The State Department is to publish this week the import duty schedules carried in the 100 or so reciprocal trade agreements signed at the recent UN tariff conference at Torquay, England. The new agreements invoving this country go into effect without action by Congress.

Our reciprocal tariff act is due to expire on the coming June 12. The House, in voting for renewal, has added restrictions which evidently have much support in the Senate—in fact, have been accepted in large part by the Senate Finance Committee.

The restrictions voted by the House would: (1) Forbid future tariff concessions to countries in the Soviet bloc; (2) authorize the Tariff Commission, after investigation, to recommend that a concession be withdrawn if an American firm claimed to be injured by it; (3) bar entry (in effect) to farm products that would be sold at less than the government support price here; (4) require the Tariff Commission to establish "peril points" below which an import duty would be expected to injure an American industry.

The Administration says these restrictions are mischievous and unworkable. If they are in the renewal bill as submitted to President Truman, he might well kill it by a veto. Then the reciprocal tariff act would be off the statute books, at least for a time, but the Administration would not have to face the ticklish issue of whether Congress can change reciprocal agreements put into effect before June 12, 1951.

Or the President might sign the bill with the House restrictions, or something like them, and then let it become a dead letter. He did that after the Republican 80th Congress in 1948 added the "peril points" provision, which the Democratic 81st Congress threw out in 1949.

Orders On Beef Prices

The new ceilings over beef prices charged by wholesalers are scheduled to to take effect on Wednesday. The ceilings over beef prices charged by retailers on May 14. Meat packers have been ordered to pay 10 per cent less for beef cattle on and after May 20, and other orders on beef prices are to take effect later. The result, says the Office of Price Stabilization, will be to reduce retail beef prices by four or five cents a pound in mid-summer, by another four or five cents in the fall.

But first the OPS must have its regulations obeyed, and obedience cannot be taken for granted. On May 2 the Senate Agriculture Committee demanded that the beef-price orders be withdrawn without delay, and senators from cattle states charged OPS with ignoring the "elementary fact that prices must cover production costs."

Price Administrator Di Salle replies that beef cattle are (as of April 15) selling at 52 per cent above parity, and as for retail beef prices—! Rib roast that sold for 34 cents a pound and round steak that sold for 42 cents in June, 1946, were selling at the end of March, 1951, for 85 cents and $1.08, respectively.

When producers of cattle refused to move the animals to market at the OPA prices in 1946, the whole postwar price fixing program was abandoned. Price-fixed meat all but disappeared from the butchers' shelves, much of the little meat available was bought and sold on the black market, the public outcry was intense, President Truman abolished price control over meat, soon said there was no point then in trying to control other prices.

GOP Convention City

The time and the place for the 1952 Republican National Convention will be chosen by the Republican National Committee at a meeting opening on Friday in Tulsa, Okla. A subcommittee will have presented its recommendations after considering offers from the various cities that would like to be selected. The sum donated by the convention city for the honor not only goes toward the convention expenses but sometimes provides some funds for launching the campaign itself.

In each of the two preceding presidential election years, both parties held their nominating conventions in the same city—in Chicago in 1944, in Philadelphia in 1948. Chicago, because of its central location, has been the favorite convention place for both parties since the Civil War. It has been chosen by the Republicans 11 times out of 21, by the Democrats seven times out of 21.

Prior to the Civil War the favorite convention city for all parties was Baltimore. Travel was difficult in those days; many of the delegates were in Congress or in the government; Baltimore is only 40 miles from Washington.

The Republicans have gone west of the Mississippi only once, in 1928 to Kansas City, where Hoover was nominated. The Democrats have gone west of the Mississippi four times—in 1900 to Kansas City (Bryan for the second time); in 1908 to Denver (Bryan again); in 1920 to San Francisco (Cox); in 1928 to Houston (Smith). Since the Civil War the Republicans have only once, in 1888, failed to meet earlier than the Democrats.

What Men Dislike

An informal poll of males in show business has produced a list of what they think is funny in women's dress. Although the survey has the unmistakable aroma of a publicity gag, it is a refreshing contrast to the interminable 10-best-dressed lists.

The male view of what a well-dressed woman should not do or wear includes big hats, crooked stocking seams, low-healed shoes, gloves at cocktail parties, low-cut dresses on informal occasions, strange colors in fingernails, and untidy hair.

None of this, probably, will be news to married women, for every wife has endured domestic nagging about one or more of these items, especially the big hat. Like all such lists and such generalizing, there are flaws in this one. Big hats are becoming to some women, also low-heeled shoes, colored fingernails and gloves at cocktail parties. All would be well if only those wore these things to whom they are becoming.

What the survey tends to prove is that if women dress to please men, many of them aren't succeeding. If they consulted male taste alone there would be no big hats and no colored fingernails and also mighty sparing use of lipstick.

Of the men polled in the survey, Marion Brandon's comment was least subject to dispute. He didn't care, he said, what a girl had on if she had a pleasant personality. "If she doesn't, clothes won't help that either," added Mr. Brandon. It is a point to be kept in mind by those who may be concerned.

How To Keep Well

Baby's Best Food

BREAST MILK is the finest birthday gift a mother can give her brand new baby. This is as nature intended and nursing is one of the few age old customs that has not been superseded or matched by modern science and ingenuity. It still is the safest, cleanest and most convenient method of feeding infants.

The process of nursing comes instinctively to all babies; they just seem to know what to do. Those who are wideawake are likely to go at the job in a big way during the latter part of their first day on earth. Others are too sleepy but this makes little difference because true breast milk does not flow before the third or fourth day. Physicians often refer to this time as a practice period for the baby. It is a mutual arrangement as the busy newborn helps to stimulate the formation of milk. Furthermore, both are satisfied when everything is serene and the mother cuddles the tiny fellow in her arms.

Most youngsters require no urging. The mother ought to take time to find a comfortable position, preferably with the head of the bed elevated. The child should not be forced as this upsets the tike and make him cry. After four or five minutes of nursing it is advisable to burp the infant to aid in the elimination of swallowed air.

Crying is the only effective way babies have of calling attention to their needs. This is evident even in the first week of life. The hospital nursery is quiet just after the little rascals have been fed; but as the next period comes due, first one candidate and then another is heard. In time the place is in an uproar as each child lets it be known that he is hungry. Many stop wailing at the sound of mother's voice; others, as soon as they begin to nurse. Their expression and attitude is one of satisfaction, comfort, and security. Some psychiatrists believe that this is an essential part of growing up. It sets into motion the reflexes that are necessary for the development of a healthy emotional make-up and the sense of security needed at his time of life.

There are numerous old wives' tales connected with nursing. For example, it is said to prevent pregnancy but many women have found out otherwise. Another story has it that beer encourages the manufacture of more milk. Actually all it does is contribute fluid and calories. Milk is much better because it supplies not only liquid but calcium and other essential ingredients. Still another fallacy is that the mother should overeat in order to have an adequate milk supply. But here, as in pregnancy, quality rather than quantity should be stressed.

In the first few days of life the child usually loses weight. At this time he is not receiving much nourishment but as the milk "comes in" many tots become hungry. From this point on, growth proceeds in an orderly and individual fashion. The ability to feed is not the only reflex that the baby can boast of. He has a sense of touch, and smell. He cannot see much except to follow light. A startle reflex is another innate quality and is used by physicians to test the nervous system. The tot throws his arms and legs about when a loud noise is made or the examining table is tapped. In time, mother is able to control this reaction also with her soothing voice.

TOMORROW: Newer resuscitating methods are described by Dr. Van Dellen.

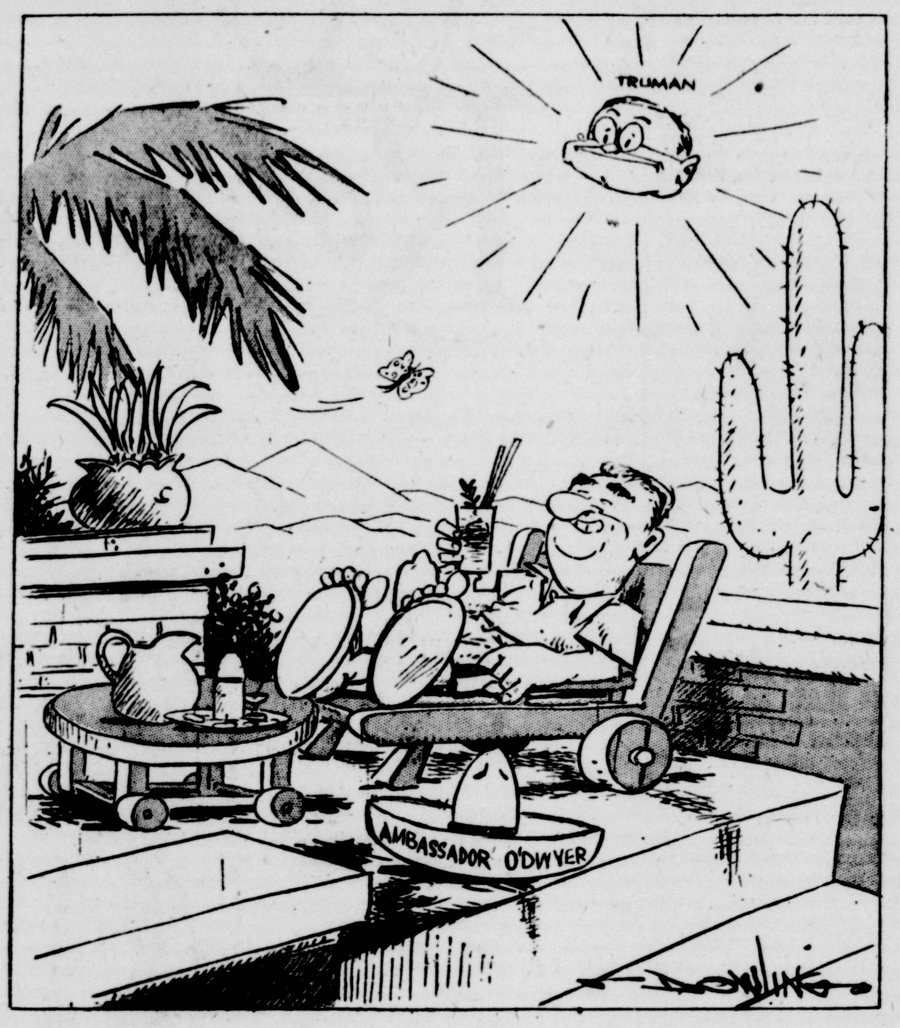
FAST PULSE

Mrs. K. writes: My 7 year old son's pulse beats 104 to 120 per minute. Could this be caused by infected tonsils?

REPLY

Possibly, but youngsters normally have a more rapid pulse than adults. You fail to mention whether the pulse was taken after the child had exercised or eaten; these factors in themselves influence the rate more than do infected tonsils.

What's The Weather In Mexico



DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Some Of MacArthur's Press Statements Boomerang; MacArthur Opposed More Arms For South Koreans While Urging Arms To Defend Japan

WASHINGTON — It isn't often that the newspaper denials issued by high public officials catch up to them so quickly as is now shown by the MacArthur Senate hearings.

Usually a newspaperman's word counts for little compared with that of a Cabinet officer, the President or a general—especially a general as high as Douglas MacArthur. However, the Senate hearings have now shed interesting light on some of these denials. Here are a few illustrations:

1. Home by Christmas—When the Associated Press cabled from Korea that MacArthur had made a statement promising to bring American troops home by Christmas, it was promptly denied. Not only did Gen. Floyd Parks, the Army press relations officer at the Pentagon rush into print with a statement claiming the AP had misquoted MacArthur. But MacArthur personally cabled a denial to Ray Henle for use on his five-star final radio program,

"At no time have I ever attempted to predict the course of termination of this or any other military campaign," MacArthur cabled on Nov. 28—just after our disastrous North Korean retreat had begun.

Last week, however, it was disclosed that MacArthur officially informed the President that he expected to bring American troops home by Christmas. In other words, the AP had not misquoted MacArthur after all.

2. U. S. Troops on Chinese Border—On Nov. 8, this column reported that "the State Department had warned that if we approached the Yalu River area, the Chinese would react in about the same way as the people of Los Angeles if a Mexican army should approach Boulder Dam which supplies much of their water. Therefore the State Department long ago urged that UN troops stop this side of the Manchurian border. . . . The Joint Chiefs of Staff heartily concurred in this.

"However, when MacArthur reached the neutrality belt," this column reported on Nov. 8, "he wired Washington for permission to send South Korean troops beyond to the Manchurian border. He said they were to go on mopping-up missions and as military police to maintain order.

"However, MacArthur's intelligence was faulty and the South Korean troops found themselves badly outnumbered. When they got into trouble, MacArthur wired Washington for permission to send U. S. troops to rescue them. While the Joint Chiefs of Staff didn't like this, they found it difficult to overrule the commander in the field."

This story was denied from Tokyo at the time. Again only a few days ago, MacArthur stated that at no time did he receive any warning that Chinese troops might intervene.

When grilled by senators, however, MacArthur confirmed the information carried in the Nov. 8 column. He admitted that the Joint Chiefs recommended halting UN troops on a defensible ridge south of the Manchurian border, that they wanted South Korean troops only to go into North Korea, he explained, "but that tactical conditions were such that South Koreans were not able to do the job."

3. Arms to Japan—Another hot dispute has been over the question of using extra arms for arming South Koreans or using them to defend Japan. On March 31, 1951, MacArthur was asked by Freeman magazine why he had refused more arms to the South Koreans. Here is his reply, dated April 5:

"The issue is one determined by the Republic of Korea and the United States government and involves basic political decisions beyond my authority."

However, MacArthur's cable to the Joint Chiefs, dated Jan 6, 1951, does not jibe with this. Taking exactly the opposite position, he recommended: "That the over-all interests of the United States will be better served by making these weapons available to increase the security of Japan rather than arming additional Republic of Korea forces."

He was referring to additional arms which Washington was making available for the South Koreans if MacArthur agreed. Significantly he did not propose that these extra arms be used for Chiang Kai-Shek's troops though he has told members of Congress that he repeatedly urged such a step.

4. Wake Island Transcript—Following the New York Times publication of the Wake Island conference story, MacArthur issued a statement casting doubt on its authenticity and stating that no transcript was made of the Wake Island conference.

Since then General Bradley has stated that five copies of the transcript were sent to MacArthur in Tokyo, and MacArthur, under cross examination by senators, has also admitted that the transcript is accurate. Anyone comparing the official transcript with the New York Times story, which MacArthur belittled, can see that it, also, is accurate.

5. No Directives Violated—Testifying before the Senate, MacArthur stated that in his long career as a soldier he had never violated any order from a superior. However, on Dec. 6, his superiors, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, gave him a directive categorically ordering him to make no speech, press release or public statement concerning foreign policy without clearing it first with the State Department; and no statement, speech, or press release on military policy without clearing it first with the Defense Department.

Democracy In Germany

U. S. High Commissioner Jack McCloy, one of the busiest men in Europe, frequently takes time to visit town meetings in various parts of Germany. He considers this one of the best ways to get the German people working at Democracy; also it gives him a chance to find out what people are thinking and to answer their gripes.

At one such meeting, an old German got up and delivered a tirade on the high cost of living.

"When I was a boy," he said, "it cost my grandfather 20 pfennigs to buy a whip. Later when my father bought a whip he had to pay a mark for it. Now, when I buy a whip I have to pay 10 marks, and then the whip is no good."

When the old German, who was inclined to blame all this on the U. S. Army, sat down, the U. S. High Commissioner got up and, speaking in German, said something like this:

"When I was a boy my grandfather didn't have to pay any income taxes whatsoever. Later my father had to pay about one-tenth of his income in taxes. Now I have to pay about 50 per cent of my income to the government."

McCloy went on to tell how the American people were paying more than their share of the world's burdens. He went into this in some detail, and when he had finished, it was obvious that he had won some new friends for the U.S.A.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON.—A breath of fresh air has swept across the country in the person of a man who, without bitterness or rancor, rises above the petty and the irrelevant to state honestly his convictions on a highly controversial subject of national policy.

What General MacArthur has accomplished by his three days of testimony and by his ready submission to cross-examination is to put the whole question of our military policy in a true perspective.

Not a word of resentment did he express against the President or anyone else. He brushed aside with a simple statement of facts the many misrepresentations of his position which critics have flung at him.

Nobody can truly claim the right to state General MacArthur's position hereafter unless he has read the 150,000 words of testimony covering the three days of hearings.

Many Statements Untrue

This correspondent has read every word of it and is amazed at the number of things that have been written about the General or his proposals which simply are not true. The atmosphere here is so surcharged with political tactics and with the polemics of partisanship that it is refreshing to find a spokesman, who, without regard to how his remarks jibe with the speeches of Republican or Democratic leaders, in the "great debate" of recent weeks, states with candor and frankness what he really believes.

People may differ as to whether he has the right proposals and whether they should be adopted but, after reading the testimony, one is more puzzled than ever that the President should have listened to the smears of the "palace guard" and tried to destroy the reputation of one of the world's greatest soldiers, if not one of her most dynamic statesmen.

The same man who wrote out in longhand on his plane the historic speech to Congress and then read it without glasses, the same man who, though 71 years of age, sat for nine hours a day for three successive days and faced a barrage of questions from the Senate's best interrogators won spontaneous praise from Republicans and Democrats in the committee. The tribute by Senator Russell of Georgia, Democrat, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, at the end of the final session on Saturday, is significant. He said:

Praised By Russell

"General MacArthur, I wish to state to you that the three days that you have been here with us are without parallel in my legislative experience. I have never seen a man subjected to such a barrage of questions in so many fields and on so many varied subjects. I marvel at your physical endurance. For the instinct to redress a wrong is the mark of courage and spiritual understanding. General MacArthur cannot be restored to his command, of course, but the unworthy manner by which he was abruptly relieved can still be expunged from the record by an act of christian atonement.

IT IS easy to sum up the impression of American policy making that is left by a tour in the Middle East and Eastern Mediteranean. Evidently the men who make our national policy are like distracted cooks confronting an enormous stove covered with dozens of different pots, all bubbling away simultaneously. The cooks only watch the most conspicuous pots—Western Europe, for example. The other pots get no attention until they either scorch or boil over.

Even from the perspective of Athens, it is all too clear that Iran must now be placed in the category of pots that have boiled over, like China in the past. Even then, it seemed that time was more likely to produce an explosion than a settlement, unless the Foreign Office and State Department could concert strong preventive measures.

The explosion has now occurred with the political triumph of the National Front leader, Dr. Mohammed Mussadegh, an aged extremist who lives in a private world of violent dreams. With Dr. Mussadegh as Prime Minister, it is pretty safe to predict that one of two things will have happened in Iran within the next few days. Either the British will have moved troops into southern Iran (presumably flying them from Suez) in order to protect their oil properties, or the Iranian extremists will have seized the British oil properties by main force.

In addition, there are signs that Dr. Mussadegh is contemplating a deal with the Soviet Union, and that the Shah, the only relatively stable element in Iranian politics, is again planning to flee. Certainly it is childishly unrealistic to talk about "negotiating" with Dr. Mussadegh, as Foreign Minister Morrison has been talking. A minor disaster is the best result that can now be hoped for from the long neglected Iranian situation; a major disaster, engulfing all the vital region of the Middle East, is all too possible.

Meanwhile, the situation in the Eastern Mediterranean is clearly in the other category, of pots that neglect will cause to scorch. At present, the opportunity still exists to tie the Greek, Turkish and Yugoslav armies into the Western security system. But it is troublesome to do what is really necessary in order to exploit this great opportunity—to offer the Yugoslaves a sensible and adequate program of arms aid, and to give the Turks and Greeks the guarantees they want against aggression.

Moreover, there is the crucial problem of the Mediterranean command. Until recently, it was thoroughly taken for granted that Adm. Robert Carney would be the Mediterranean commander of the future. Carney even journeyed to Ankara and Athens to discuss liaison arrangements. If Adm. Carney were given the Mediterranean command, he could easily tie in the NATO area in the Western Mediterranean with this area in the Eastern Mediterranean. A British commander, for various local reasons of prejudice and sentiment, can not possibly wield the same authority.

Command Problem Fumbled

But the American Chiefs of Staff, with unparalleled short sightedness, accepted the Atlantic command for Adm. William Fletcher. As the British Chiefs of Staff must have realized at the time, this made it inevitable that a British appointment would be regarded as "only fair" here in the Mediterranean. And it is also troublesome to disentangle this silly mess, and name a British commander in the Atlantic and an American commander in the Mediterranean.

Because of the search for an easy way out, the command problem is fumbled; the Turkish and Greek requests for guarantees are met with empty words; and the Yugoslavs are "aided" in driblets. Thus, the opportunity here is passing. If suspicion and disgust increase much further at Belgrade; if neutralism gains much more ground at Ankara, the opportunity will simply cease to exist.

On the surface, this sort of missed chance may not seem very grave. In fact, however, the Turks, Greeks and Yugoslaves represent a potential of 70 fighting divisions. These divisions are in being, and are located on the most sensitive Soviet flank, the flank of the always distrusted satellites. With reasonable equipment and good air support the Turks, Greeks and Yugoslaves could, in case of trouble, drive to the Danube, threatening the whole satellite area.

In short, throwing away this splendid opportunity in the Eastern Mediterranean will be like passively accepting a gigantic defeat in war. Equally if the Western world loses control of the vital oil resource and strategic positions in the Middle East, this will also amount to a staggering military defeat. And so improvidence, negligence and the search for the easy way will lead us, by a succession of such defeats, over the brink of final disaster.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

John Garfield

WHEN a witness appears before a Congressional committee, he can adopt the attitude that he was called because he has something to contribute or that he was called because the committee wants to get something on him. Certainly those who are called in the Communist cases often feel embarrassed by the subpoena, for there is always the fear that the public might assume that being called for evidence is being accused of subversion.

John Garfield, the motion picture actor, went to the House Committee on Unamerican Activities accompanied by his lawyer, Louis Nizer, and by public relations counsel and his testimony was glibly and cleverly told, but there was in it something that I do not understand. Here it is:

John Garfield said that he went out to Hollywood in 1938. So he was asked by Congressman Velde:

"When did you first come to the realization that there was a Communist party in Hollywood?

"Mr. Garfield. As I said before, when I quit the Wallace thing I felt he was being captured by a group of Communists . . .

"Mr. Velde. You didn't know before that time that there was a Communist party organization in Hollywood?

"Mr. Garfield. I did not.

"Mr. Velde. That was approximately what date that you decided there was a Communist movement in Hollywood?

"Mr. Garfield. Late 1947 or 1948."

How could any man be in Hollywood, be situated there, live there, read the newspapers and not know that there was a Communist movement in Hollywood between 1938 and 1948? I should like to know how the whole history of those 10 years could be missed by John Garfield or by anyone else who can read.

Mr. Velde was also surprised. He asked:

"Do you want to go on record as saying you had no knowledge whatsoever of any Communist party movement in Hollywood until the time you broke with the Wallace party?

"Mr. Garfield. Absolutely and positively."

So Congressman Jackson got into it and this colloquy occurred:

"Mr. Jackson. Mr. Garfield, I am still afraid that I am not entirely convinced of the accuracy of your testimony or the measure of cooperation you are giving this committee. You have stated your contention that you did not know, during the period of time you were in New York and affiliated with the Group Theater, which for all of its artistry was pretty well shot through with the philosophy of communism, —

"Mr. Garfield. That is not true.

"Mr. Jackson. That is a matter of opinion. You contend that during all of that time in New York you did not know a Communist?

"Mr. Garfield. That is right.

"Mr. Jackson. And you contend that during the seven and one-half years or more that you were in Hollywood and in close contact with a situation in which a number of Communist cells were operating on a week-to-week basis, with electricians, actors, and every class represented, that during the entire period of time you were in Hollywood you did not know of your own personal knowledge a member of the Communist party?

"Mr. Garfield. That is absolutely correct, because I was not a party member or associated in any shape, way or form.

"Mr. Jackson. During that period it might interest you to know attempts were made to recruit me into the Communist party, and I was making $32.50 a week.

"Mr. Garfield. They certainly stayed away from me, sir."

I do not say that Mr. Garfield is or is not a Communist. I do not know and I am not called to sit in judgment. Nor do I question the veracity of his statements. Nor can he assuage my doubts that any man who lives in cities like New York or Hollywood, who moves in intellectual circles, who gives evidence of being literate and intelligent, could possibly live between the years 1938 and 1948 and not know anything at all about a Communist movement in Hollywood. Maybe it is possible, but as Mr. Jackson said, I am not convinced. Congressman Jackson said:

"I do say that for one who is as intelligent and as well qualified as this witness has proven himself to be, it shows a naive or unintelligent approach to this problem for him to contend that he could have lived with this activity 10, 11, or 15 years and not know more about it than he acknowledges."

It just does not ring the bell.

Reciprocal Trade Agreements

The State Department is to publish this week the import duty schedules carried in the 100 or so reciprocal trade agreements signed at the recent UN tariff conference at Torquay, England. The new agreements invoving this country go into effect without action by Congress.

Our reciprocal tariff act is due to expire on the coming June 12. The House, in voting for renewal, has added restrictions which evidently have much support in the Senate—in fact, have been accepted in large part by the Senate Finance Committee.

The restrictions voted by the House would: (1) Forbid future tariff concessions to countries in the Soviet bloc; (2) authorize the Tariff Commission, after investigation, to recommend that a concession be withdrawn if an American firm claimed to be injured by it; (3) bar entry (in effect) to farm products that would be sold at less than the government support price here; (4) require the Tariff Commission to establish "peril points" below which an import duty would be expected to injure an American industry.

The Administration says these restrictions are mischievous and unworkable. If they are in the renewal bill as submitted to President Truman, he might well kill it by a veto. Then the reciprocal tariff act would be off the statute books, at least for a time, but the Administration would not have to face the ticklish issue of whether Congress can change reciprocal agreements put into effect before June 12, 1951.

Or the President might sign the bill with the House restrictions, or something like them, and then let it become a dead letter. He did that after the Republican 80th Congress in 1948 added the "peril points" provision, which the Democratic 81st Congress threw out in 1949.

Orders On Beef Prices

The new ceilings over beef prices charged by wholesalers are scheduled to to take effect on Wednesday. The ceilings over beef prices charged by retailers on May 14. Meat packers have been ordered to pay 10 per cent less for beef cattle on and after May 20, and other orders on beef prices are to take effect later. The result, says the Office of Price Stabilization, will be to reduce retail beef prices by four or five cents a pound in mid-summer, by another four or five cents in the fall.

But first the OPS must have its regulations obeyed, and obedience cannot be taken for granted. On May 2 the Senate Agriculture Committee demanded that the beef-price orders be withdrawn without delay, and senators from cattle states charged OPS with ignoring the "elementary fact that prices must cover production costs."

Price Administrator Di Salle replies that beef cattle are (as of April 15) selling at 52 per cent above parity, and as for retail beef prices—! Rib roast that sold for 34 cents a pound and round steak that sold for 42 cents in June, 1946, were selling at the end of March, 1951, for 85 cents and $1.08, respectively.

When producers of cattle refused to move the animals to market at the OPA prices in 1946, the whole postwar price fixing program was abandoned. Price-fixed meat all but disappeared from the butchers' shelves, much of the little meat available was bought and sold on the black market, the public outcry was intense, President Truman abolished price control over meat, soon said there was no point then in trying to control other prices.

GOP Convention City

The time and the place for the 1952 Republican National Convention will be chosen by the Republican National Committee at a meeting opening on Friday in Tulsa, Okla. A subcommittee will have presented its recommendations after considering offers from the various cities that would like to be selected. The sum donated by the convention city for the honor not only goes toward the convention expenses but sometimes provides some funds for launching the campaign itself.

In each of the two preceding presidential election years, both parties held their nominating conventions in the same city—in Chicago in 1944, in Philadelphia in 1948. Chicago, because of its central location, has been the favorite convention place for both parties since the Civil War. It has been chosen by the Republicans 11 times out of 21, by the Democrats seven times out of 21.

Prior to the Civil War the favorite convention city for all parties was Baltimore. Travel was difficult in those days; many of the delegates were in Congress or in the government; Baltimore is only 40 miles from Washington.

The Republicans have gone west of the Mississippi only once, in 1928 to Kansas City, where Hoover was nominated. The Democrats have gone west of the Mississippi four times—in 1900 to Kansas City (Bryan for the second time); in 1908 to Denver (Bryan again); in 1920 to San Francisco (Cox); in 1928 to Houston (Smith). Since the Civil War the Republicans have only once, in 1888, failed to meet earlier than the Democrats.

What Men Dislike

An informal poll of males in show business has produced a list of what they think is funny in women's dress. Although the survey has the unmistakable aroma of a publicity gag, it is a refreshing contrast to the interminable 10-best-dressed lists.

The male view of what a well-dressed woman should not do or wear includes big hats, crooked stocking seams, low-healed shoes, gloves at cocktail parties, low-cut dresses on informal occasions, strange colors in fingernails, and untidy hair.

None of this, probably, will be news to married women, for every wife has endured domestic nagging about one or more of these items, especially the big hat. Like all such lists and such generalizing, there are flaws in this one. Big hats are becoming to some women, also low-heeled shoes, colored fingernails and gloves at cocktail parties. All would be well if only those wore these things to whom they are becoming.

What the survey tends to prove is that if women dress to please men, many of them aren't succeeding. If they consulted male taste alone there would be no big hats and no colored fingernails and also mighty sparing use of lipstick.

Of the men polled in the survey, Marion Brandon's comment was least subject to dispute. He didn't care, he said, what a girl had on if she had a pleasant personality. "If she doesn't, clothes won't help that either," added Mr. Brandon. It is a point to be kept in mind by those who may be concerned.

How To Keep Well

Baby's Best Food

BREAST MILK is the finest birthday gift a mother can give her brand new baby. This is as nature intended and nursing is one of the few age old customs that has not been superseded or matched by modern science and ingenuity. It still is the safest, cleanest and most convenient method of feeding infants.

The process of nursing comes instinctively to all babies; they just seem to know what to do. Those who are wideawake are likely to go at the job in a big way during the latter part of their first day on earth. Others are too sleepy but this makes little difference because true breast milk does not flow before the third or fourth day. Physicians often refer to this time as a practice period for the baby. It is a mutual arrangement as the busy newborn helps to stimulate the formation of milk. Furthermore, both are satisfied when everything is serene and the mother cuddles the tiny fellow in her arms.

Most youngsters require no urging. The mother ought to take time to find a comfortable position, preferably with the head of the bed elevated. The child should not be forced as this upsets the tike and make him cry. After four or five minutes of nursing it is advisable to burp the infant to aid in the elimination of swallowed air.

Crying is the only effective way babies have of calling attention to their needs. This is evident even in the first week of life. The hospital nursery is quiet just after the little rascals have been fed; but as the next period comes due, first one candidate and then another is heard. In time the place is in an uproar as each child lets it be known that he is hungry. Many stop wailing at the sound of mother's voice; others, as soon as they begin to nurse. Their expression and attitude is one of satisfaction, comfort, and security. Some psychiatrists believe that this is an essential part of growing up. It sets into motion the reflexes that are necessary for the development of a healthy emotional make-up and the sense of security needed at his time of life.

There are numerous old wives' tales connected with nursing. For example, it is said to prevent pregnancy but many women have found out otherwise. Another story has it that beer encourages the manufacture of more milk. Actually all it does is contribute fluid and calories. Milk is much better because it supplies not only liquid but calcium and other essential ingredients. Still another fallacy is that the mother should overeat in order to have an adequate milk supply. But here, as in pregnancy, quality rather than quantity should be stressed.

In the first few days of life the child usually loses weight. At this time he is not receiving much nourishment but as the milk "comes in" many tots become hungry. From this point on, growth proceeds in an orderly and individual fashion. The ability to feed is not the only reflex that the baby can boast of. He has a sense of touch, and smell. He cannot see much except to follow light. A startle reflex is another innate quality and is used by physicians to test the nervous system. The tot throws his arms and legs about when a loud noise is made or the examining table is tapped. In time, mother is able to control this reaction also with her soothing voice.

TOMORROW: Newer resuscitating methods are described by Dr. Van Dellen.

INFECTED TOE

C. V. writes: What causes pus in a big toe?

REPLY

Infection. The most common causes are infected ingrown toenails, runarounds (paronychia), and felons. Other origins are osteomyelitis and bacterial invasion of corns, calluses, and bunions.

•—•—•

NOCTURNAL HEADACHE

Mrs. H. writes: What causes severe headache every night after retiring?

Eyestrain, sinus trouble, fatigue, and even nervousness are possibilities. Thoro examination would be needed to determine the origin in an individual case.

VISUAL DISORDERS

M. J. writes: What is a refractive error?

REPLY

The term includes nearsightedness (myopia), farsightedness (hyperopia), aging sight (presbyopia), and astigmatism. In these conditions the focusing ability of the eyes is disturbed.

FAST PULSE

Mrs. K. writes: My 7 year old son's pulse beats 104 to 120 per minute. Could this be caused by infected tonsils?

REPLY

Possibly, but youngsters normally have a more rapid pulse than adults. You fail to mention whether the pulse was taken after the child had exercised or eaten; these factors in themselves influence the rate more than do infected tonsils.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Some Of MacArthur's Press Statements Boomerang; MacArthur Opposed More Arms For South Koreans While Urging Arms To Defend Japan

WASHINGTON — It isn't often that the newspaper denials issued by high public officials catch up to them so quickly as is now shown by the MacArthur Senate hearings.

Usually a newspaperman's word counts for little compared with that of a Cabinet officer, the President or a general—especially a general as high as Douglas MacArthur. However, the Senate hearings have now shed interesting light on some of these denials. Here are a few illustrations:

1. Home by Christmas—When the Associated Press cabled from Korea that MacArthur had made a statement promising to bring American troops home by Christmas, it was promptly denied. Not only did Gen. Floyd Parks, the Army press relations officer at the Pentagon rush into print with a statement claiming the AP had misquoted MacArthur. But MacArthur personally cabled a denial to Ray Henle for use on his five-star final radio program,

"At no time have I ever attempted to predict the course of termination of this or any other military campaign," MacArthur cabled on Nov. 28—just after our disastrous North Korean retreat had begun.

Last week, however, it was disclosed that MacArthur officially informed the President that he expected to bring American troops home by Christmas. In other words, the AP had not misquoted MacArthur after all.

2. U. S. Troops on Chinese Border—On Nov. 8, this column reported that "the State Department had warned that if we approached the Yalu River area, the Chinese would react in about the same way as the people of Los Angeles if a Mexican army should approach Boulder Dam which supplies much of their water. Therefore the State Department long ago urged that UN troops stop this side of the Manchurian border. . . . The Joint Chiefs of Staff heartily concurred in this.

"However, when MacArthur reached the neutrality belt," this column reported on Nov. 8, "he wired Washington for permission to send South Korean troops beyond to the Manchurian border. He said they were to go on mopping-up missions and as military police to maintain order.

"However, MacArthur's intelligence was faulty and the South Korean troops found themselves badly outnumbered. When they got into trouble, MacArthur wired Washington for permission to send U. S. troops to rescue them. While the Joint Chiefs of Staff didn't like this, they found it difficult to overrule the commander in the field."

This story was denied from Tokyo at the time. Again only a few days ago, MacArthur stated that at no time did he receive any warning that Chinese troops might intervene.

When grilled by senators, however, MacArthur confirmed the information carried in the Nov. 8 column. He admitted that the Joint Chiefs recommended halting UN troops on a defensible ridge south of the Manchurian border, that they wanted South Korean troops only to go into North Korea, he explained, "but that tactical conditions were such that South Koreans were not able to do the job."

3. Arms to Japan—Another hot dispute has been over the question of using extra arms for arming South Koreans or using them to defend Japan. On March 31, 1951, MacArthur was asked by Freeman magazine why he had refused more arms to the South Koreans. Here is his reply, dated April 5:

"The issue is one determined by the Republic of Korea and the United States government and involves basic political decisions beyond my authority."

However, MacArthur's cable to the Joint Chiefs, dated Jan 6, 1951, does not jibe with this. Taking exactly the opposite position, he recommended: "That the over-all interests of the United States will be better served by making these weapons available to increase the security of Japan rather than arming additional Republic of Korea forces."

He was referring to additional arms which Washington was making available for the South Koreans if MacArthur agreed. Significantly he did not propose that these extra arms be used for Chiang Kai-Shek's troops though he has told members of Congress that he repeatedly urged such a step.

4. Wake Island Transcript—Following the New York Times publication of the Wake Island conference story, MacArthur issued a statement casting doubt on its authenticity and stating that no transcript was made of the Wake Island conference.

Since then General Bradley has stated that five copies of the transcript were sent to MacArthur in Tokyo, and MacArthur, under cross examination by senators, has also admitted that the transcript is accurate. Anyone comparing the official transcript with the New York Times story, which MacArthur belittled, can see that it, also, is accurate.

5. No Directives Violated—Testifying before the Senate, MacArthur stated that in his long career as a soldier he had never violated any order from a superior. However, on Dec. 6, his superiors, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, gave him a directive categorically ordering him to make no speech, press release or public statement concerning foreign policy without clearing it first with the State Department; and no statement, speech, or press release on military policy without clearing it first with the Defense Department.

Democracy In Germany

U. S. High Commissioner Jack McCloy, one of the busiest men in Europe, frequently takes time to visit town meetings in various parts of Germany. He considers this one of the best ways to get the German people working at Democracy; also it gives him a chance to find out what people are thinking and to answer their gripes.

At one such meeting, an old German got up and delivered a tirade on the high cost of living.

"When I was a boy," he said, "it cost my grandfather 20 pfennigs to buy a whip. Later when my father bought a whip he had to pay a mark for it. Now, when I buy a whip I have to pay 10 marks, and then the whip is no good."

When the old German, who was inclined to blame all this on the U. S. Army, sat down, the U. S. High Commissioner got up and, speaking in German, said something like this:

"When I was a boy my grandfather didn't have to pay any income taxes whatsoever. Later my father had to pay about one-tenth of his income in taxes. Now I have to pay about 50 per cent of my income to the government."

McCloy went on to tell how the American people were paying more than their share of the world's burdens. He went into this in some detail, and when he had finished, it was obvious that he had won some new friends for the U.S.A.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON.—A breath of fresh air has swept across the country in the person of a man who, without bitterness or rancor, rises above the petty and the irrelevant to state honestly his convictions on a highly controversial subject of national policy.

What General MacArthur has accomplished by his three days of testimony and by his ready submission to cross-examination is to put the whole question of our military policy in a true perspective.

Not a word of resentment did he express against the President or anyone else. He brushed aside with a simple statement of facts the many misrepresentations of his position which critics have flung at him.

Nobody can truly claim the right to state General MacArthur's position hereafter unless he has read the 150,000 words of testimony covering the three days of hearings.

Many Statements Untrue

This correspondent has read every word of it and is amazed at the number of things that have been written about the General or his proposals which simply are not true. The atmosphere here is so surcharged with political tactics and with the polemics of partisanship that it is refreshing to find a spokesman, who, without regard to how his remarks jibe with the speeches of Republican or Democratic leaders, in the "great debate" of recent weeks, states with candor and frankness what he really believes.

People may differ as to whether he has the right proposals and whether they should be adopted but, after reading the testimony, one is more puzzled than ever that the President should have listened to the smears of the "palace guard" and tried to destroy the reputation of one of the world's greatest soldiers, if not one of her most dynamic statesmen.

The same man who wrote out in longhand on his plane the historic speech to Congress and then read it without glasses, the same man who, though 71 years of age, sat for nine hours a day for three successive days and faced a barrage of questions from the Senate's best interrogators won spontaneous praise from Republicans and Democrats in the committee. The tribute by Senator Russell of Georgia, Democrat, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, at the end of the final session on Saturday, is significant. He said:

Praised By Russell

"General MacArthur, I wish to state to you that the three days that you have been here with us are without parallel in my legislative experience. I have never seen a man subjected to such a barrage of questions in so many fields and on so many varied subjects. I marvel at your physical endurance. More than that, I have been profoundly impressed by the vastness of your patience and the thoroughness and the frankness with which you have answered all of the questions that have been propounded.

"We have certainly drawn freely on your vast reservoir of knowledge and experience, not only as a great military captain, but as a civilian administrator of eighty million people."

One wonders how such a man could have been summarily dismissed. One finds nowhere in the official record the slightest evidence that he disobeyed a military command or failed to fulfill the highest traditions of our military service. One wonders if President Truman will not be inspired when he has read all the testimony to show the same courage that he showed when he apologized to the Marines for an intemperate remark. For the instinct to redress a wrong is the mark of courage and spiritual understanding. General MacArthur cannot be restored to his command, of course, but the unworthy manner by which he was abruptly relieved can still be expunged from the record by an act of christian atonement.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

ATHENS

IT IS easy to sum up the impression of American policy making that is left by a tour in the Middle East and Eastern Mediteranean. Evidently the men who make our national policy are like distracted cooks confronting an enormous stove covered with dozens of different pots, all bubbling away simultaneously. The cooks only watch the most conspicuous pots—Western Europe, for example. The other pots get no attention until they either scorch or boil over.

Even from the perspective of Athens, it is all too clear that Iran must now be placed in the category of pots that have boiled over, like China in the past. When this reporter left Teheran, the American and British motto was that "time would cure all things, and that in time an agreed settlement of the oil nationalization issue could be arranged with the Iranian government." Even then, it seemed that time was more likely to produce an explosion than a settlement, unless the Foreign Office and State Department could concert strong preventive measures.

The explosion has now occurred with the political triumph of the National Front leader, Dr. Mohammed Mussadegh, an aged extremist who lives in a private world of violent dreams. With Dr. Mussadegh as Prime Minister, it is pretty safe to predict that one of two things will have happened in Iran within the next few days. Either the British will have moved troops into southern Iran (presumably flying them from Suez) in order to protect their oil properties, or the Iranian extremists will have seized the British oil properties by main force.

Major Disaster Possible

In addition, there are signs that Dr. Mussadegh is contemplating a deal with the Soviet Union, and that the Shah, the only relatively stable element in Iranian politics, is again planning to flee. Certainly it is childishly unrealistic to talk about "negotiating" with Dr. Mussadegh, as Foreign Minister Morrison has been talking. A minor disaster is the best result that can now be hoped for from the long neglected Iranian situation; a major disaster, engulfing all the vital region of the Middle East, is all too possible.

Meanwhile, the situation in the Eastern Mediterranean is clearly in the other category, of pots that neglect will cause to scorch. At present, the opportunity still exists to tie the Greek, Turkish and Yugoslav armies into the Western security system. But it is troublesome to do what is really necessary in order to exploit this great opportunity—to offer the Yugoslaves a sensible and adequate program of arms aid, and to give the Turks and Greeks the guarantees they want against aggression.

Moreover, there is the crucial problem of the Mediterranean command. Until recently, it was thoroughly taken for granted that Adm. Robert Carney would be the Mediterranean commander of the future. Carney even journeyed to Ankara and Athens to discuss liaison arrangements. If Adm. Carney were given the Mediterranean command, he could easily tie in the NATO area in the Western Mediterranean with this area in the Eastern Mediterranean. A British commander, for various local reasons of prejudice and sentiment, can not possibly wield the same authority.

Command Problem Fumbled

But the American Chiefs of Staff, with unparalleled short sightedness, accepted the Atlantic command for Adm. William Fletcher. As the British Chiefs of Staff must have realized at the time, this made it inevitable that a British appointment would be regarded as "only fair" here in the Mediterranean. And it is also troublesome to disentangle this silly mess, and name a British commander in the Atlantic and an American commander in the Mediterranean.

Because of the search for an easy way out, the command problem is fumbled; the Turkish and Greek requests for guarantees are met with empty words; and the Yugoslavs are "aided" in driblets. Thus, the opportunity here is passing. If suspicion and disgust increase much further at Belgrade; if neutralism gains much more ground at Ankara, the opportunity will simply cease to exist.

On the surface, this sort of missed chance may not seem very grave. In fact, however, the Turks, Greeks and Yugoslaves represent a potential of 70 fighting divisions. These divisions are in being, and are located on the most sensitive Soviet flank, the flank of the always distrusted satellites. With reasonable equipment and good air support the Turks, Greeks and Yugoslaves could, in case of trouble, drive to the Danube, threatening the whole satellite area.

In short, throwing away this splendid opportunity in the Eastern Mediterranean will be like passively accepting a gigantic defeat in war. Equally if the Western world loses control of the vital oil resource and strategic positions in the Middle East, this will also amount to a staggering military defeat. And so improvidence, negligence and the search for the easy way will lead us, by a succession of such defeats, over the brink of final disaster.

You have stated your contention that you did not know, during the period of time you were in New York and affiliated with the Group Theater, which for all of its artistry was pretty well shot through with the philosophy of communism, —

"Mr. Garfield. That is not true.

"Mr. Jackson. That is a matter of opinion. You contend that during all of that time in New York you did not know a Communist?

"Mr. Garfield. That is right.

"Mr. Jackson. And you contend that during the seven and one-half years or more that you were in Hollywood and in close contact with a situation in which a number of Communist cells were operating on a week-to-week basis, with electricians, actors, and every class represented, that during the entire period of time you were in Hollywood you did not know of your own personal knowledge a member of the Communist party?

"Mr. Garfield. That is absolutely correct, because I was not a party member or associated in any shape, way or form.

"Mr. Jackson. During that period it might interest you to know attempts were made to recruit me into the Communist party, and I was making $32.50 a week.

"Mr. Garfield. They certainly stayed away from me, sir."

I do not say that Mr. Garfield is or is not a Communist. I do not know and I am not called to sit in judgment. Nor do I question the veracity of his statements. Nor can he assuage my doubts that any man who lives in cities like New York or Hollywood, who moves in intellectual circles, who gives evidence of being literate and intelligent, could possibly live between the years 1938 and 1948 and not know anything at all about a Communist movement in Hollywood. Maybe it is possible, but as Mr. Jackson said, I am not convinced. Congressman Jackson said:

"I do say that for one who is as intelligent and as well qualified as this witness has proven himself to be, it shows a naive or unintelligent approach to this problem for him to contend that he could have lived with this activity 10, 11, or 15 years and not know more about it than he acknowledges."

It just does not ring the bell.

Civic Orchestra Asks $500 Budget Grant

The Cumberland Civic Symphony Orchestra has asked the Mayor and Council to include $500 for its use in the recreation budget for the 1951-52 fiscal year.

Such a move would mark the first time the orchestra would be included in the budget. When funds were asked of the Mayor and Council previously by either the orchestra or Choral Society, money was taken from the Contingent Fund. Donations to each usually amounted to $250 or a total of $500.

In a letter to the Mayor and Council, Edmund F. Hoey, recreation director, and Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, the orchestra's director, Lua Sykes, said the orchestra was organized five years ago and the total yearly allowance on which the group has operated has never exceeded $400. It was generally spent, Sykes said, for music, $150; rental of rehearsal hall, $100; janitor service, programs and other incidentals connected with concerts, $50; guest soloist, $50; and $150 for miscellaneous expenses.

Cement Stolen

City police are investigating the theft of 62 bags of cement, owned by the George and Lynch Construction Company, from the Rolling Mill field over the weekend.

Detective Thomas J. See said culprits apparently carried the cement off the field to a vehicle. No tire marks were found in the area.

The cement, he reported, was to be used on flood project work here. Total value was estimated at about $70.

FALLING OVER WITH AGE. According to some geologists, Niagara Falls are approximately 31,000 years old, while the river itself is approximately 32,000 years old. This was concluded from the measured rate of recession of the falls, along with other geologic data. These same geologists think that Niagara Falls have about 5,000 years more to live.

HOW FAR IS UP? Some idea of the vastness of the spaces that separate us from the stars is given by this illustration. It has been said that if people on Sirius, the nearest fixed star to the earth, have telescopes powerful enough to distinguish objects on our planet, and are looking at it now, they are seeing the destruction of Jerusalem, which took place more than eighteen hundred years ago. The reason for this is that light reflected from the earth would take more than eighteen centuries to reach the nearest fixed star.

AND IT IS A FACT THAT . . . the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory make shopping easier . . . save time and trouble. Suppose, for instance, you're looking for a trade-marked product, or a nationally advertised service. IS THAT A FACT! by Ches Peake

FALLING OVER WITH AGE. According to some geologists, Niagara Falls are approximately 31,000 years old, while the river itself is approximately 32,000 years old. This was concluded from the measured rate of recession of the falls, along with other geologic data. These same geologists think that Niagara Falls have about 5,000 years more to live.

HOW FAR IS UP? Some idea of the vastness of the spaces that separate us from the stars is given by this illustration. It has been said that if people on Sirius, the nearest fixed star to the earth, have telescopes powerful enough to distinguish objects on our planet, and are looking at it now, they are seeing the destruction of Jerusalem, which took place more than eighteen hundred years ago. The reason for this is that light reflected from the earth would take more than eighteen centuries to reach the nearest fixed star.

AND IT IS A FACT THAT . . . the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory make shopping easier . . . save time and trouble. Suppose, for instance, you're looking for a trade-marked product, or a nationally advertised service. Just turn to the YELLOW PAGES, find the right heading, and pick out the dealer or service concern you need. It's the convenient way to find almost anything you want. Use the YELLOW PAGES often. You'll find it—pays!

THE MORE SMOKERS TEST FOR MILDNESS... THE MORE CAMEL LEADS IN POPULARITY!...

Latest Published Figures Show Camel Has Increased its Lead as America's Favorite Cigarette—by Many More Billions!

Risë Stevens Sings Praises of Camels!

SWEETHEART OF THE OPERA, Risë Stevens smokes Camels. Says Risë, "Camels have a wonderful taste I never found in any other cigarette — and a mildness that agrees with my throat! I discovered that when I made my own 30-day Camel Test! With Camels — every puff's a pleasure!"

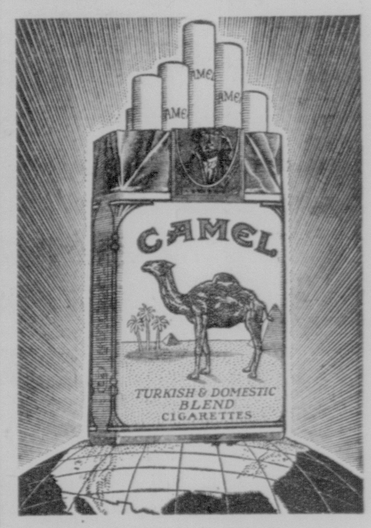
There are several "quick trick" methods for testing mildness — a sniff of this cigarette, a puff of that. But after all is said and done, smoker after smoker has realized that there's only one true test: the sensible test of mildness is steady smoking. That's why millions of smokers have already made their own 30-Day Camel Mildness Tests! Today, more people get more pleasure from Camels than from any other cigarette!

Discover what you've been missing — start your own 30-Day Camel Test. In the best proving ground for a cigarette — your "T-Zone" — see for yourself how well Camels get along with your throat, puff after puff and pack after pack. See how much Camel's full, rich flavor pleases your taste. You'll soon find out for yourself why so many smokers say . . .

ONCE A CAMEL SMOKER, ALWAYS A CAMEL SMOKER!

Will the Phils Win Again?

If Manager Eddie Sawyer has his way, they will! But, win, lose or draw, the Phils are Camel fans. Says Sawyer (below), "I'm a real Camel rooter. Camels are a cool, mild, great-tasting cigarette!"



Again Survey Shows Doctors' Choice

In the latest survey, conducted by an independent research organization, doctors in every branch of medicine—doctors in every State in the Union—were asked, "What cigarette do you smoke, Doctor?" Again—the brand named most was Camel! According to this repeated nationwide survey, more doctors smoke Camels than any other cigarette.

The Best Way to Test Cigarette Mildness

How mild can a cigarette be? Find out for yourself—the sensible, thorough way. No tricks. No one-puff experiments. Smoke Camels regularly for 30 days. Let your own "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) be the judge. You'll soon see why more people smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

Chrysler FirePower

Finest engine ever put in an automobile

180 HORSEPOWER

The new Chrysler Hemispherical Combustion Chamber, heart of the finest car engine built today. In this dome-topped area, you see the only ideal combustion chamber . . . the only way to develop full combustion, full compression, full work and value from every drop of fuel!

With so many engines claiming newness . . . how can we call FirePower the only new type engine today? The answer's very simple, and one you ought to know before you invest in a car.

The fact is that engine "improvements" happen every year . . . but a basically new motor car engine is a very rare thing. And FirePower is the most basic new development since Chrysler introduced high-compression in 1924!

To get to the heart of the matter, just go to the heart of the engine . . . the combustion chamber where the spark fires gas into power.

Here Chrysler brings you something no car has had till now . . . a Hemispherical combustion chamber . . . the only perfect and ideal combustion chamber in any passenger car. Here the same amount of gasoline delivers you far more energy than it could in any other car.

What this means to the man at FirePower's wheel is impossible to tell you till you take that wheel yourself. FirePower's 180 horsepower can outperform any other engine on the road, even on regular grade gas.

Remember, too, that Chrysler now offers the wondrous road-ease of new Oriflow shock absorbers with twice the shock-absorbing power of any others . . . and the exclusive safety and delight of Hydraguide *power steering which takes four-fifths of the work out of steering! You can learn for yourself how Chrysler has changed your motoring life by seeing your Chrysler dealer now!

Are crepy neck and a double chin inevitable with age? Not if you learn to carry your head as all beauties do!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

THERE is powerful appeal in a well-carried head. It's one characteristic that models, movie stars and all distinctive women have in comon. It is also the preventive and antidote for crepy neck and double chin—two dreaded distorters of beauty. Not age, but the way you carry your head determines the youthfulness and beauty of your neck and chin!

Why do so many persons let their heads jut forward and downward? Because of the head's weight (ten pounds or more) and the delicacy of the neck bones and muscles which must support it. But if you give in to this tendency, soon the muscles in your neck will slacken —so will your jawline—and then you'll be seeing a double chin in your mirror.

Are you already plagued by such a woe? Much can be done to efface it by a simple posture correction. Let me show you exactly how you should hold your head:

Stand so that you can see a sharp reflection of your profile in a large mirror. If you are holding your head correctly, your neck will look the same length in front as in the back. But if the back of your neck appears longer than the front, you can be certain that you are habitually carrying your head too far forward.

Raise your head until the underside of your chin is parallel to the floor and the tip of your ear lines up directly over your shoulder blade. Now your posture fault is corrected — yes, it's that easy! Maintain this position as you go about your daily duties, and you will soon see a noticeable improvement in your neck and jaw contours.

For Quick Improvement

You can hasten this happy moment by combining exercise with correct posture. One of the best for tightening the muscles and skin of the neck is this: Lie flat on your back on the floor. Raise your head very slowly off the floor, being sure to point your chin directly toward the ceiling. Then, lower your head very, very slowly and relax. Repeat ten times daily.

All heads turn toward the woman with a magnificently-poised head. That flattering attention might just as well be yours!

Mt. Herman WSCS Elects

Mrs. Eva Hill was elected president of the WSCS of Mt. Herman Church recently at the church. Other officers are Mrs. Geraldine Wilson, vice president; Mrs. Jessie Pratt, corresponding and promotion secretary; Mrs. Barbara Summerfield, recording secetary.

Other secretaries are Mrs. Eliza Pratt, Supply and Publication; Mrs. June Dewitt, Missionary Education; Mrs. Josephine Wentling, Missionary treasurer; Mrs. Olive Witt, Youth Work; Mrs. Elsie Stafford Christian and Social Relations; Mrs. Viola Wentling, Supplies; Mrs. Iona Anderson, treasurer, and Mrs. Olive Witt, Hankie treasurer.

The devotional service, "Be Ye Perfect," and the program, "Women, Their Work and Health," was under the leadership of Mrs. June Dewitt. The program consisted of responsive reading, hymns and talks by Mrs. Josephine Wentling, Mrs. Eva Hill, Mrs. Jessie Pratt. Mrs. Eliza Pratt made the prayer of Thanksgiving and Rev. R. L. Wittig sang a solo.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Olive Witt in the social room following the meeting. Others attending were Mrs. Edith Wilson, Mrs. Catherine May, Mrs. Wittig, Mrs. Stella Hiner and Mrs. Mary Hager, a guest.

The next meeting will be May 17.

"Our Foreign Policy" Is Discussion Topic

A panel discussion on "Our Foreign Policy" was presented by a group of high school students at the meeting of the International Relations Group of the Woman's Civic Club yesterday at the Public Library. Mrs. Courtney Kidwell presided.

Contriversial points on the administration's policy in China, Korea and India were discussed pro and con by Virginia Mitchell, Catholic Girls Central High School; Ann Wolfe, JoAnn Hafer and Douglas Houck, Allegany High School. Joseph Thomas Butler, student at Frostburg State Teachers College, was moderator.

Members of the group joined in a question and answer period following the panel.

Western Maryland Begins Assessment Appeal In Keyser

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Western Maryland Railway Company yesterday opened an appeal action in Mineral County Circuit Court, in an assessment case against the West Virginia Board of Public Works.

The company claims the method of evaluating property used by the board is improper since it imposed taxes on property owned by the company outside of West Virginia. Counsel for the plaintiff argued that no deduction was made for the property outside the state, even though most of the company's holdings are in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Representing the Western Maryland were William C. Russell; E. S. Williams, president of the company; William P. Purnell, vice president and general counsel, and Emory L. Tyler, the company's Keyser attorney.

Attorney General William C. Marland and Mineral County Prosecutor Donald C. Hott represented the State of West Virginia.

Judge Ernest A. See is sitting as an administrative tax official as well as in a judicial capacity.

Russell, who said "the evaluation is in excess of fair and real value of property in West Virginia," cited examples of differences in evaluation between the BPW and the State Tax Commission.

He said the total evaluation in 1941 of $8 million was raised to $8½ million in 1942. The following year, Russell claims, the Tax Commission kept the same evaluation while the BPW raised it to $9 million. In 1944, he added, the BPW raised it again to $10 million but later compromised with the company and dropped the tax valuation to $9½ million. Last year, it was raised again to $11 million.

In rebuttal, Attorney General Marland said the value of the company's holdings were for the entire system and a proportionate share taken for tax valuation in West Virginia. He added that it was up to the railway company to show that the evaluation is not legal.

Hearings in the trial are expected to take the better part of the week.

The trial is being held in Keyser since most of the company's holdings in West Virginia are located in Mineral county.

Piedmont KC Fetes Members

WESTERNPORT—Life members of Piedmont Council No. 685, Knights of Columbus, were honored at a dinner Sunday afternoon in St. Peter's Hall. Approximately 120 persons attended.

Carl D. Avington, Elkins, W. Va., state K. of C. deputy, who was the principal speaker, presented the pins to three new honorary life members. They are Joseph Hannon, Westernport, and William T. Kelly and Michael Graney, both of Piedmont. Hannon has been a member since 1902, Kelly since 1903 and Graney since 1906. Graney served as grand knight in 1912 when Kelly was deputy grand knight.

Michael E. Mullen, of Brunswick, a member since 1902 was also to have been presented a life membership, but was unable to be present because of illness. A group from the council will visit him next Sunday and present the pin.

Avington discussed the "History and Progress of the Knights of Columbus," which was founded in New Haven, Conn., in 1882. Piedmont Council was organized July 27, 1902.

Avington also presented life membership cards to John B. Maybury and M. F. O'Donnell. Life members besides the four new ones, include P. A. Laughlin, P. J. O'Brien, Bernard Faller, John Dugan, Patsy Debona, B. M. Healy, J. V. Healy, P. H. Gallagher, T. A. Moran, H. J. Miller, J. P. Hines, T. P. Murphy, J. V. Niland, Thomas White and Joseph L. Mansfield who gave the response.

Engineers Club Meets Tonight

KEYSER, W. Va.—The spring meeting of the Eastern Chapter of West Virginia Society of Professional Engineers will be held tonight at 7:30 p. m. EST, in the auditorium at Potomac State School. This announcement was made by Prof. Walter A. Jaworek, head of the Pre-Engineering Department at Potomac State.

The meeting will be sponsored and conducted by Harold J. Snyder, Keyser civil engineer, and Prof. Jaworek. Leslie C. Gates, president of the state society, will be the principal speaker.

Engineers of this area have been invited to attend the meeting, in addition to members of the Potomac State Engineers' Club. Approximately 25 chapter members from the Elkins area plan to make the trip to Keyser for the meeting.

A social and refreshment period will conclude the meeting.

Active local members of the chapter are: J. Paul Blundon, Ray F. Small, Cleo Swecker, Joseph J. Melody, Jaworek and Snyder.

Western Maryland Begins Assessment Appeal In Keyser

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Western Maryland Railway Company yesterday opened an appeal action in Mineral County Circuit Court, in an assessment case against the West Virginia Board of Public Works.

The company claims the method of evaluating property used by the board is improper since it imposed taxes on property owned by the company outside of West Virginia. Counsel for the plaintiff argued that no deduction was made for the property outside the state, even though most of the company's holdings are in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Representing the Western Maryland were William C. Russell; E. S. Williams, president of the company; William P. Purnell, vice president and general counsel, and Emory L. Tyler, the company's Keyser attorney.

Attorney General William C. Marland and Mineral County Prosecutor Donald C. Hott represented the State of West Virginia.

Judge Ernest A. See is sitting as an administrative tax official as well as in a judicial capacity.

Russell, who said "the evaluation is in excess of fair and real value of property in West Virginia," cited examples of differences in evaluation between the BPW and the State Tax Commission.

He said the total evaluation in 1941 of $8 million was raised to $8½ million in 1942. The following year, Russell claims, the Tax Commission kept the same evaluation while the BPW raised it to $9 million. In 1944, he added, the BPW raised it again to $10 million but later compromised with the company and dropped the tax valuation to $9½ million. Last year, it was raised again to $11 million.

In rebuttal, Attorney General Marland said the value of the company's holdings were for the entire system and a proportionate share taken for tax valuation in West Virginia. He added that it was up to the railway company to show that the evaluation is not legal.

Hearings in the trial are expected to take the better part of the week.

The trial is being held in Keyser since most of the company's holdings in West Virginia are located in Mineral county.

Piedmont KC Fetes Members

WESTERNPORT—Life members of Piedmont Council No. 685, Knights of Columbus, were honored at a dinner Sunday afternoon in St. Peter's Hall. Approximately 120 persons attended.

Carl D. Avington, Elkins, W. Va., state K. of C. deputy, who was the principal speaker, presented the pins to three new honorary life members. They are Joseph Hannon, Westernport, and William T. Kelly and Michael Graney, both of Piedmont. Hannon has been a member since 1902, Kelly since 1903 and Graney since 1906. Graney served as grand knight in 1912 when Kelly was deputy grand knight.

Michael E. Mullen, of Brunswick, a member since 1902 was also to have been presented a life membership, but was unable to be present because of illness. A group from the council will visit him next Sunday and present the pin.

Avington discussed the "History and Progress of the Knights of Columbus," which was founded in New Haven, Conn., in 1882. Piedmont Council was organized July 27, 1902.

Avington also presented life membership cards to John B. Maybury and M. F. O'Donnell. Life members besides the four new ones, include P. A. Laughlin, P. J. O'Brien, Bernard Faller, John Dugan, Patsy Debona, B. M. Healy, J. V. Healy, P. H. Gallagher, T. A. Moran, H. J. Miller, J. P. Hines, T. P. Murphy, J. V. Niland, Thomas White and Joseph L. Mansfield who gave the response.

Carmen Make No Change In Time Standard

KEYSER, W. Va.—No change was made in the time standard at a recent meeting of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America as to unification of time standards in the B. & O. Shops at Keyser.

The workers in the roundhouse and other departments have favored operation on Daylight Time for a long period, but the carmen have remained firm in their determination to work on slow time.

Keyser Church Celebrates Centennial

First Methodist Holds Banquet

KEYSER, W. Va. — The congregation of the First Methodist Church, North Davis Street, Keyser, opened the centennial celebration of the church with a banquet in the newly decorated dining hall of the church. Close to 200 persons were seated at the tables.

The speakers' table was centered with a large anniversary cake with 100 candles mounted on its crest, being placed in front of the honored guests, the cake was cut and divided among those who attended. Also displayed, were a number of interesting relics covering a goodly portion of the 100 year period, many of these being the property of members of the congregations whose parents were active in the church in the past.

Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke of the Pittsburgh area of the church, and his father, John Wicke, Cleveland, were among the guests. Bishop Wicke spoke following the banquet. Other guests included Mayor John C. Freeland, Keyser; Dr. A. Coleman Brown, pastor of the Diamond Street Methodist Church, Fairmont; Rev. and Mrs. A. H. McKinley, who served the congregation as pastor from 1919 through 1925. Rev. McKinley, now retired, resides at Berkeley Springs. Also included, were Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Jordan, Keyser, and Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd Myers, Rev. Myers is pastor of the Grace Methodist Church, Keyser.

There were three members, who have been affiliated with the congregation for many years, having joined the church when it was conducted on North Main Street, at the present Minnich Building, from 1870 to 1894. They are: Mrs. Ethel Wells, Mrs. Jennie Kate Reynolds and Mrs. Alice Steorts. The present church building was first occupied in 1894.

Church Group Holds Teacher Training Course

Six churches had representatives present with a total enrollment of 62 members. Fifty-one received a certificate of credit.

Mrs. Wayne Irvin of Frostburg is president of the group.

To Meet At College

LONACONING — The teachers of Allegany County who have taken the conservation course at Frostburg State Teachers College this past winter will meet Saturday, May 19, at 9:30 a. m. at the college to go on a forestry field trip.

J. Hartman, of the U. S. Forestry Service, Cumberland, made arrangements with Kendrick Y. Hodgdon, class secretary, to make an all day trip through the forest to study the natural resources of our county.

Teachers will bring their lunches and transportation will be provided.

Sponsor Supper

WESTERNPORT—The Westernport and Luke Civic Club will hold a covered dish supper at the Hammond Street School, this evening at 6:15 o'clock.

After the supper a program open to the public will be presented.

Mrs. Leah Hosey, Cumberland, will speak on "Modern Trends in Furniture and Furnishings".

Joseph Derry, music instructor of Central High School of Lonaconing, will present piano selections.

Plans Monthly Meeting

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Women's Club of Keyser will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight at 7:30 p. m. EST in the First Methodist Church, Davis Street. Mrs. Ernest See, president, will be in charge of the conference. Mrs. Robert Fisher will give the report on the stage convention held in Clarksburg recently.

The Women's Club Chorus will sing several selections under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Church, who directed the all state chorus at the convention. Installation of officers will also be held at this time.

A. G. Springer, assistant superintendent of schools of Mineral county, will show a movie on West Virginia. The social hour will be in the form of an annual tea.

Shirt Factory Interested In Western Maryland Location

A shirt factory which would employ between 350 to 375 is interested in locating in Western Maryland.

The Maryland State Planning Commission said yesterday in its News Letter that it had received the inquiry. The firm was not named.

A check at the Chamber of Commerce here revealed that Richardson Wood, New York industrial consultant for the city and county, is also checking a shirt factory contact.

H. W. Smith, manager of the Chamber, said he did not know if this is the same concern but that the Planning Commission will be contacted.

According to the News Letter the firm would employe approximately 300 females and 50 to 75 males and have a payroll of some $750,000 annually.

List Requirements

It would require:

Minimum population of town, 5,000 or preferably 20,000 or over.

Community ownership of building or plant to be rented at a nominal fee of 20 cents to 25 cents a square foot for a five-year period with special rent concessions the first year.

Building to be of brick or similar construction, in good condition and rectangular containing 40,000 to 75,000 square feet, preferably on one floor, with a minimum of 12 foot ceiling clearance, hardwood floors and free of obstructing structural beams. A sprinkler system and loading dock are also requirements.

The Planning Commission has completed a study of location factors in establishing new manufacturing firms in the state. A total of 201 new concerns which opened in Maryland in the past five year were asked to participate and 118 answered the questionnaire.

It was found location factors in order of their importance are: Labor, market, available factory buildings, location of production materials, personal reasons, transportation facilities and distribution facilities.

Factors given the least weight by new firms are tax structure, cheap rent, financial aid, laws and regulations.

Larger Firms Conduct Studies

Other findings were:

Larger firms undertake studies of location factors to a much greater extent than do smaller companies. Also firms previously located in other states usually make a location survey before relocating their plants.

The "personal preferences" of the owners of new establishments play an important role in the location of their plants.

A wider distribution of manufacturing concerns than existed in 1947 in Maryland is taking place. The Baltimore metropolitan area has obtained 51.7 per cent of the new manufacturing firms with 64.1 per cent of the new production workers. In 1947, the Baltimore metropolitan area contained 63.2 per cent of the concerns and 73.6 per cent of the workers.

Firms locating in Maryland from other states, the survey found, are generally larger than the average new "local" firm.

The development of new firms from resources and skills within Maryland has proven of much greater importance than the attraction of out-of-state industry into the state.

NO SINK SMOG with brighter-whiter Bab-O!

1. Sink Smog . . . ugh! Millions of tiny bits of grease and grime form that dingy, greasy-grey film on your sink.

2. "Surface cleansers" with flimsy foam can't get at Sink Smog, imbedded deep in pits and holes in porcelain.

3. Bab-O's tiny, active suds work down into those pits, dislodge Sink Smog and sweep it down the drain!

4. In seconds, Bab-O removes Sink Smog so your sink is sparkling clean—and Bab-O is kinder to hands, too!

Body Of Local Marine Being Returned

The body of an 18-year-old local Marine, Pfc. Frank B. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thompson, 22 Elder Street, who was killed last September 28 in Korea, has been returned to the United States for reburial.

Pfc. Thompson, first dead hero scheduled for return to Allegany county, was among 118 other Americans who lost their lives while fighting Communist forces. Three branches of service were represented, the Army, Navy and Marines.

Department of Defense officials said the war dead, ranging in rank from private to colonel, were among the first to be sent home from an active theater of war, although bodies of some Korean war casualties who died in hospitals have been returned for burial.

The Army had evacuated military cemeteries south of the 38th Parallel, transfering bodies either to Pusan or Japan.

The bodies arrived over the weekend aboard the Lynn Victory at San Francisco, and next of kin notified after identities were rechecked. An escort will accompany Pfc. Thompson's body to the point designated by relatives.

Pfc. Thompson, who attended Fort Hill High School, left here July 29, 1950, with the Marine Reserves. He received training at Camp LeJeune, N. C., and then went overseas. His death occurred almost two months to the day the contingent departed from Cumberland.

Surviving, besides his parents, are two brother, Paul and Edward Thompson, and six sisters, Thelma and Nettie Thompson, Mrs. Pauline DeLawder, Mrs. Charlotte Hamilton, Mrs. Margaret Truett and Mrs. Frances Poole.

April River Flow Is Above Normal

The mean daily flow of the North Branch of the Potomac River at Cumberland during April was 2,689 cubic feet per second, 118 per cent of the normal flow.

The daily flow varied from 1,360 cubic feet per second on April 28 to 5,740 cubic feet per second on April 13. The flow at the end of the month was 3,770 cubic feet per second.

Under normal conditions of rainfall, the average runoff for the North Branch here during May is expected to be about 115 per cent of normal, or 1,880 cubic feet per second. Under adverse conditions of little or no rainfall, it is expected to be about 36 per cent of normal, or 590 cubic feet per second.

After the Savage River Dam is placed in operation, some time during the middle of the summer, the flow of the stream will be kept at a point above normal by releasing of water from the huge reservoir located above Westernport.

Water Use Increases

Water consumption in the Cumberland metropolitan area averaged 12,762,000 gallons a day last week, more than a million gallons over the same period in 1950, when 11,576,000 gallons a day were consumed. Water was running over the crests of both Lake Koon and Gordon.

The body of an 18-year-old local Marine, Pfc. Frank B. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thompson, 22 Elder Street, who was killed last September 28 in Korea, has been returned to the United States for reburial.

Pfc. Thompson, first dead hero scheduled for return to Allegany county, was among 118 other Americans who lost their lives while fighting Communist forces. Three branches of service were represented, the Army, Navy and Marines.

Department of Defense officials said the war dead, ranging in rank from private to colonel, were among the first to be sent home from an active theater of war, although bodies of some Korean war casualties who died in hospitals have been returned for burial.

The Army had evacuated military cemeteries south of the 38th Parallel, transfering bodies either to Pusan or Japan.

The bodies arrived over the weekend aboard the Lynn Victory at San Francisco, and next of kin notified after identities were rechecked. An escort will accompany Pfc. Thompson's body to the point designated by relatives.

Pfc. Thompson, who attended Fort Hill High School, left here July 29, 1950, with the Marine Reserves. He received training at Camp LeJeune, N. C., and then went overseas. His death occurred almost two months to the day the contingent departed from Cumberland.

Surviving, besides his parents, are two brother, Paul and Edward Thompson, and six sisters, Thelma and Nettie Thompson, Mrs. Pauline DeLawder, Mrs. Charlotte Hamilton, Mrs. Margaret Truett and Mrs. Frances Poole.

April River Flow Is Above Normal

The mean daily flow of the North Branch of the Potomac River at Cumberland during April was 2,689 cubic feet per second, 118 per cent of the normal flow.

The daily flow varied from 1,360 cubic feet per second on April 28 to 5,740 cubic feet per second on April 13. The flow at the end of the month was 3,770 cubic feet per second.

Under normal conditions of rainfall, the average runoff for the North Branch here during May is expected to be about 115 per cent of normal, or 1,880 cubic feet per second. Under adverse conditions of little or no rainfall, it is expected to be about 36 per cent of normal, or 590 cubic feet per second.

After the Savage River Dam is placed in operation, some time during the middle of the summer, the flow of the stream will be kept at a point above normal by releasing of water from the huge reservoir located above Westernport.

Water Use Increases

Water consumption in the Cumberland metropolitan area averaged 12,762,000 gallons a day last week, more than a million gallons over the same period in 1950, when 11,576,000 gallons a day were consumed. Water was running over the crests of both Lake Koon and Gordon.

FORT HILL DISPLAYS TROPHIES—Coach William P. Hahn, right, is shown holding a large trophy and Lynn Beightol, center, displays the gold wrist watch he received at the University of Maryland track and field meet Saturday at College Park. The trophy went to the Sentinels for winning the meet of 10 events with 48 points. Beightol received the watch for pacing the individual scorers with 11 points. Donald Brake, left, and Beightol are co-captains. The former ran on the winning mile relay team and finished 2nd in the 440 yards run. In addition to the trophy and watch, Fort Hill athletes earned 14 medals.

Wilson White Captures Rifle League Title

Wins W. Md. Trophy, Edges Norman White

Wilson White, of Mountain Lake Park, was the champion in the 2nd Annual Western Maryland Gallery Tournament, fired Sunday at the Bowman's Addition smallbore range. White's aggregate score of 856 points copped match No. 5 and earned the Western Maryland League trophy. He edged Norman White, of Cumberland, one point to capture the match championship.

Match No. 1 of the .22 caliber anysight program, 20 shots in the prone position, was taken by Leo Leasure's 200-19x. High Expert went to George Porter with 200-18x. LaVale's Jim Kerr won the Sharpshooter class with 199-17x. Randall Sims, of Mountain Lake Park, tallied high Marksman with 198-18x.

White Wins Trophy

The Fort Hill Rifle Club Trophy fell to Norman White's 185 points in Match No. 2, 20 shots standing. George Porter again took Expert Class with 176. Hayes Robertson's 170 made high Sharpshooter, and Randall Sims scored 146 to win the Marksman Class.

Wilson White hit his stride in Match No. 3 and won the 10 shots prone and 10 shots standing event easily with 192 markers. Classification victors were: Expert—Leo Leasure, 185; Sharpshooter — Harry Ranker, 184; and Marksman—Randall Sims, 168.

Match No. 4, 10 shots each in the prone, kneeling, and standing positions, also went to White with a score of 288. Bill Whitson's 285 was good for the Expert Class, while Don Helbig took over Sharpshooter Class with 276 points. Randall Sims added another victory in the Marksman Class by posting 274.

Match No. 5, the Western Maryland Rifle League Trophy event, consisting of the grand aggregate of the first four matches, dropped to Wilson White's consistant gunnery on 856 points. Expert Class winner was George Porter with a score of 835. Harry Ranker captured Sharpshooter with 817 markers, and Randall Sims made a clean sweep in the Marksman Class by totaling 786.

Fire In NRA Tests

As a special event on the program, four riflemen from the Mountain Top Club fired their team entry in the National Rifle Association's 1950-1 Gallery League State and National Championships. The course of fire consisted of 20 shots prone and 20 shots standing at 50 feet, any sights. The scores:

	Prone		Stand		Total
	I	II	I	II
Donald Helbig	100	100	90	85	375
Wilson White	100	100	90	83	373
Carrol Miller	99	99	85	87	370
George Porter	100	100	87	75	362
Team Total					1480

Results of this match in relationship to the state and national standings will not be known until after May 15th, deadline for team entries in this competition.

The gallery tournament was conducted under the direction of Arthur S. Hoffa, executive officer. John R. Cook supervised the scoring as statistical officer. Range officer was David H. Durst, and Chief Target Officer was Merle W. Shumaker. Harry Morgan represented the NRA as official referee.

Russia To Vie In Olympics Starting At Oslo In 1952

Committee Votes 31 To 0 In Favor

VIENNA, May 7 (AP)—Russia was admitted to the Olympic Games today after agreeing in writing to abandon politics on the field of sports.

The vote of the International Olympic Committee was 31 to 0 in favor. Three members did not vote.

During a three-hour discussion the IOC was told by its executive commission that the Russian Olympic Committee had agreed in writing to abide by the Olympic rule.

Rules include the promise to bring together the youth of the world without regard to race, religion or politics.

Russia is now eligible to take part in the Olympic Games starting with the winter session at Oslo in February, 1952, and the summer games at Helsinki in July and August 1952.

Konstantin Andrianov, president of the Russian Olympic Committee, was named to represent his country on the IOC.

He heads a Russian delegation which came to Vienna seeking admission to the games.

Andrianov appeared before the IOC this afternoon to offer his thanks.

He gave assurance of sincere and strong cooperation between his committee and the IOC. He said he was sure of a strong feeling of friendship on the part of the Russian Olympic Committee with the Olympic movement and with the peace in the world.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, vice-president of the Olympic committee, declared that "the duty of the Olympic Games is to bring together the youth of the world without regard to race, religion or politics. Since the Russian Olympic Committee has fulfilled our requirement and have written down that they will continue to abide by them there is no reason not to accept the committee."

Brundage and Brooks B. Parker of Philadelphia, the other United States delegate, both voted in favor of the admission.

The 34 delegates present at today's meeting represent 28 countries including two from behind the iron curtain — Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The action on Russia took up most of the first day of the three-day IOC session.

The question of admitting Western Germany — the other major piece of business scheduled for the Vienna meeting—was crowded off today's agenda. It will come up tomorrow.

The recognition of Russia brings to an end a period of sports isolation between the west and the Communists which had existed since the days of the revolution.

Russia took a minor part in the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm but otherwise has stayed entirely apart from the Olympic program.

LaVale, Corgs Chalk Up Wins

Brelsford, Kauffman Are Winning Hurlers

LaVale and Corriganville went into a tie for first place in the County Softball League by chalking up victories yesterday. The deadlocked leaders now boast 2-0 records.

LaVale nosed out Ellerslie in the last of the 7th when Bill Raupach's double broke a 3-3 tie.

Hinkle of LaVale belted a home run while Jim Gaffney of LaVale and R. Waltman of Ellerslie had two hits each.

Glen Kauffman, like Brelsford of LaVale, posted his second win of the season as Corriganville took Stringtown into camp, 14-6. Price homered for the Corgs in the second inning. Hill was the losing pitcher.

Wet grounds forced postponement of the Potomac Valley-Wellersburg game. The scores:

Bearden Snaps Winning Streak Of Yanks, 10-6

Stars In Relief Role And Wallops Home Run

DETROIT, May 7 (AP) — Gene Bearden, a castoff relief pitcher halted the New York Yankees eight-game winning streak today. He sparked the Detroit Tigers to a 10-6 victory with a home run and seven innings of sharp relief pitching.

The Tigers broke up a tight ball game in the eighth inning, when Bearden, Hoot Evers, and Dick Kryhoski homered. Earlier, Yogi Berra and Gene Woodling homered for New York.

Bearden, who came to the Tigers from Washington a few weeks ago, relieved starter Saul Rogovin and allowed only five hits in seven innings to win his first game. Relief pitcher Fred Sanford of the Yankees lost his first game.

The Yankees, who had scored 80 runs off 25 pitchers since their streak began, got only three runs off Bearden, the glamour boy who pitched the Cleveland Indians to a pennant in 1948. Box:

Chuck Stobbs Returns For Second Physical

RICHMOND, Va., May 7 (AP) — Chuck Stobbs, Boston Red Sox left-handed pitcher, today was back in Richmond for his second pre-induction physical examination.

Stobbs was sent here by his Norfolk County, Va., draft board. Earlier, he had been deferred because of an asthmatic condition.

Stobbs was sent from the Richmond Induction Center around noon today to Camp Lee to be reexamined by army doctors.

"We can't tell a thing about Stobbs' status until he has been examined by the GI doctors," said Lieutenant Raymond Carlock, processing officer at the induction center here.

Stobbs has a 3-0 record with the Red Sox.

Cresaptown Wins

Cresaptown defeated First Baptist by the score of 9-6 yesterday in the opening game of the Central YMCA Sunday School Softball League at Campobello.

Raines Fans Twelve, Beats LaSalle, 7-4

Runs Strikeout Total To 59; Four Bi-State Games On Tap Today

Coach Woody Woodson's Bruce High School tossers moved to within one game of the front-running and undefeated Beall High School nine yesterday by handing LaSalle High School a 7-4 setback at Westernport in a Bi-State Conference tilt.

Bruce spotted the Explorers four runs in the first three innings, tied it up at 4-4 on Arnone in the last of the 3rd stanza and defeated Relief pitcher Ackerman with a three-run outburst in the 4th.

The victory was the 4th straight in the conference for the Westernport nine which now has a 4-1 record. Beall leads with 5-0.

Bobby Raines posted his 4th straight triumph of the campaign, holding the Cumberland team to five hits, all singles. The Bruce ace failed to issue a pass and fired the third strike past an even dozen to soar his season's total to 59. "Moose" Arnone of Beall (4-0) trails Raines with 50 victims.

Smith and Foley garnered four of Bruce's six safeties.

Four league games are scheduled for today. The Central at Fort Hill contest here is set for 3:15 because of the Fort Hill Sports Award Dinner at Centre Street Methodist Church at 6:15.

The other games, Beall at LaSalle (Stitcher Field), Bruce at Hyndman and Barton at Allegany are scheduled to get under way at 4 p. m. Box:

Illinois Bars Nate Bolden

Offered $1,000 Bribes To Gain Reinstatement

CHICAGO, May 7 (INS)—Former middleweight boxer Nate Bolden was barred from boxing for life today by the Illinois Athletic Commission in Chicago after the fighter admitted "offering some people money."

The commission heard testimony by examining physician Dr. J. M. Houston and assistant chief inspector Harold Ryan that Bolden had offered them bribes of $500 each to help him gain reinstatement.

Bolden was retired indefinitely by the commission two years ago as a result of a heart condition and had applied for reinstatement.

Chairman Joseph Triner said Bolden applied for reinstatement last Monday and Thursday telephoned Houston to offer him $500 "if you will pass me medically."

Triner said Houston's secretary was on a telephone extension and provided a transcript of their conversation.

Ryan reported that Bolden had offered him a similar amount to use his "influence" in getting the reinstatement.

Triner said the commission order would bar Bolden from all activities in boxing in Illinois, including gymnasiums, the commission offices and dressing rooms.

Bolden told the commission:

"I have been offering some people money and I haven't a dime to my name."

Triner said the evidence would be submitted to State's Attorney John Boyle for legal action under the state law against offering bribes.

Detroit Broadcasts Protested By Flint

FLINT, Mich., May 7 (AP)—The Central League today protested to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler an alleged violation of the Flint team's territorial rights by a Detroit Tiger broadcast.

League President T. J. Halligan wired Chandler that the Tigers broadcast was carried by radio stations WCAR in Pontiac and WFYC in Alma, at a time when Flint was playing Muskegon.

Both stations, Halligan said, are within 50 miles of Flint, and come within the area controlled by Flint according to baseball law. Flint's own station, WTAC, did not carry the broadcast.

The Goebel Brewing Co., sponsor of the Detroit program, had instructed all stations within 50 miles of Flint not to air Sunday's game, since the Flint Arrows had not given permission for the broadcast.

Jackets Trip Keyser, 3-1, Annex Series

Winners Move Within Half Game Of Romney

KEYSER, May 7—Moorefield High School moved within a half game of Romney High's pace-setters in the Potomac Valley Conference race by defeating Keyser High School here today by the score of 3-1.

The victory gave Coach Johnny Baugh's Yellow Jackets a clean sweep of the two-game series. Moorefield won the opener by the score of 11-4.

Bobby Myers limited KHS to three hits. Wilson obtained three of the Moorefield six hits yielded by Jimmy Householder. Barr and Myers rapped doubles.

Moorefield won the game by scoring two runs in the 4th stanza. Myers doubled after one away and scored on Wilson's single. The latter raced to third on the throw to the plate and scored on Hardy's fly ball to centerfield.

Keyser scored its lone run in the 7th frame when Householder walked, stole second and came home when Baldwin threw wildly past third base.

The win was Moorefield's 7th in eight starts. Romney High leads with an 8-1 record.

Keyser concludes its season Friday by playing at Romney High. Box:

Reds Option Post

CINCINNATI, May 7 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds today optioned rookie outfielder Wally Post to Buffalo of the international league. He will be subject to a 24-hour recall.

Post played with Tulsa of the Texas league last year and hit .294 in 136 games. He had appeared in six Cincinnati games this season and had one hit in two times at bat.

Dodgers Farm Barney

NEW YORK, May 7 (INS)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today sent right-hander Rex Barney to their Fort Worth Club in the Texas League on a 24-hour recall option.

The erratic hurler, who has been unable to shake off mound wildness, was waived out of the majors before the Dodgers could send him to their farm team.

Bosox Blank Browns

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP) —Willard Nixon pitched a two-hitter and hit a home run for the Boston Red Sox tonight to give them a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The opposing hurler, Ned Garver, yielded four hits. Score:

Con Dempsey, rookie pitcher with the Pittsburgh Pirates, was the leading hurler in the Pacific Coast League in 1948. As a member of the San Francisco club he won 16 and lost 11 with an earned run average of 2.10.

Paige To Pitch In Negro League

Satchel To Join American Giants

CHICAGO, May 7 (AP)—Le Roy (Satchel) Paige, legendary negro pitcher who had a 1948-49 fling with the Cleveland Indians, today agreed to join the Chicago American Giants of the Negro American League.

To keep Paige eligible for a possible major league offer, the American Giants issued him several shares of stock instead of signing him a contract. As an "owner," under league regulations, Paige is ineligible to sign a player contract.

Paige will hurl the American Giants home opener at Comiskey Park against the Birmingham Black Barons May 20.

The American Giants reported that Paige had recovered from a stomach ailment which slowed him in 1949 and that last year, in 62 exhibition games, Satchel's financial returns "were enormous and far exceeded his major league stipend."

Paige, who started pitching some 27 years ago, still is coy about his age. "Let 'em guess," says Paige, "But there's still plenty of pitchin' left in this old soup-bone o'mine."

The guesses vary from early 40's to late 40's.

Pitching mainly in relief Paige had a 6-1 record for the Indians in 1948 and 4-7 in 1949.

Bassett Scores KO

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (AP) — Percy Bassett, high-ranking featherweight contender, spoiled the Philadelphia debut of Charley Riley tonight, knocking out the St. Louis fighter in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round scrap at the arena.

Bassett, bidding for a shot at Sandy Saddler's 126-pound crown, weighed 126½ pounds. Riley tipped the scales at 128.

The hard-hitting Philadelphian floored Riley for the full count after one minute and nine seconds of the fourth chapter.

Ditto For McAllister, Jackson "Dive" Tops

Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Lee Sala and Jimmy McAllister followed the script to the letter last night and scored knockouts at the expense of a trio of inferior opponents in the first professional boxing show staged here in a year at the State Armory before 1,017 cash customers.

Starkey, Wiley Ford, W. Va., light-heavyweight, belted out Billy Stemmler, of Windsor, Canada, New York and New Jersey, in 1:24 of the 5th of a sloppy match.

Stemmler proved to be a real canvas kisser and was down for eight and nine counts on one knee in the first, second and third stanzas. Starkey showed little improvement since his appearance a year ago when he chilled Rudy Williams in three heats. He was awkward, stumbled over his own feet several times and was easy to clout with a right hand. It was his 22nd straight pro victory.

Jackson Goes Into Tank

The classic of the evening came in the 2nd eight-rounder on the card, when "Buddy" Jackson, 160, of Beacon, N. Y., went into the "tank" in exactly 2:54 of the first round of his affair with the highly touted Lee Sala, Donora, Pa., middleweight, who has been taking on a flock of preliminary boys after the awful warping he received in Harrisburg, Pa., at the hands of Gene Hairston, the deaf mute. Jackson took a perfect dive out of a clinch when hit by Sala. He fell hard and rolled over to make it look like the real thing.

Jimmy McAllister, Baltimore negro featherweight, carried Manuel Batista, of New York, for four rounds then dumped him for keeps in 2:16 of the 5th stanza. This was a honey of a waltz while it lasted.

Four negro boxers figured in the first two matches on the card which was held under the joint promotion of Peter J. "Bunny" Buntag, Pittsburgh, manager of Sala and Starkey; Benny Trotta, Baltimore, and Charles (Call Me Chuck) Hensell, of Cumberland.

In the curtain raiser, Billy Richardson, 140, Baltimore, stopped Art Lynch, 148, Brooklyn, in 1:42 of the first round.

Harold Purvis, 140, Baltimore, gained a 2-1 nod over Carroll Bunting, 135, Washington, D. C., in the other four, a pretty good taffy pull.

Three Referees Used

Buddy McQuaid, Baltimore, refereed the Starkey-Stemmler affair. James E. Kelley, Jr., worked three bouts and Jack Rorick was in there for "the thing" in which Sala and Jackson were the principals. The three officials judged when not in the ring.

Nelson W. Russler was official announcer and John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, official timer.

Bosox Sell Guerra To Washington Team

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox today sold catcher Mike Guerra to the Washington Senators for an undisclosed price.

When Guerra became Boston property, on purchase from the Philadelphia Athletics, it was reported he would join the Senators and become interpreter for Manager Bucky Harris' crew of Cuban pitchers.

This the Sox denied.

Guerra became Boston property shortly after the well liked veteran receiver, Birdie Tebbetts, had been sold to Cleveland.

FORT HILL DISPLAYS TROPHIES—Coach William P. Hahn, right, is shown holding a large trophy and Lynn Beightol, center, displays the gold wrist watch he received at the University of Maryland track and field meet Saturday at College Park. The trophy went to the Sentinels for winning the meet of 10 events with 48 points. Beightol received the watch for pacing the individual scorers with 11 points. Donald Brake, left, and Beightol are co-captains. The former ran on the winning mile relay team and finished 2nd in the 440 yards run. In addition to the trophy and watch, Fort Hill athletes earned 14 medals.

Wilson White Captures Rifle League Title

Wins W. Md. Trophy, Edges Norman White

Wilson White, of Mountain Lake Park, was the champion in the 2nd Annual Western Maryland Gallery Tournament, fired Sunday at the Bowman's Addition smallbore range. White's aggregate score of 856 points copped match No. 5 and earned the Western Maryland League trophy. He edged Norman White, of Cumberland, one point to capture the match championship.

Match No. 1 of the .22 caliber any-sight program, 20 shots in the prone position, was taken by Leo Leasure's 200-19x. High Expert went to George Porter with 200-18x. LaVale's Jim Kerr won the Sharpshooter class with 199-17x. Randall Sims, of Mountain Lake Park, tallied high Marksman with 198-18x.

White Wins Trophy

The Fort Hill Rifle Club Trophy fell to Norman White's 185 points in Match No. 2, 20 shots standing. George Porter again took Expert Class with 176. Hayes Robertson's 170 made high Sharpshooter, and Randall Sims scored 146 to win the Marksman Class.

Wilson White hit his stride in Match No. 3 and won the 10 shots prone and 10 shots standing event easily with 192 markers. Classification victors were: Expert—Leo Leasure, 185; Sharpshooter — Harry Ranker, 184; and Marksman—Randall Sims, 168.

Match No. 4, 10 shots each in the prone, kneeling, and standing positions, also went to White with a score of 288. Bill Whitson's 285 was good for the Expert Class, while Don Helbig took over Sharpshooter Class with 276 points. Randall Sims added another victory in the Marksman Class by posting 274.

Match No. 5, the Western Maryland Rifle League Trophy event, consisting of the grand aggregate of the first four matches, dropped to Wilson White's consistant gunnery on 856 points. Expert Class winner was George Porter with a score of 835. Harry Ranker captured Sharpshooter with 817 markers, and Randall Sims made a clean sweep in the Marksman Class by totaling 786.

Fire In NRA Tests

As a special event on the program, four riflemen from the Mountain Top Club fired their team entry in the National Rifle Association's 1950-1 Gallery League State and National Championships. The course of fire consisted of 20 shots prone and 20 shots standing at 50 feet, any sights. The scores:

	Prone I	Prone II	Stand I	Stand II	Total
Donald Helbig	100	100	90	85	375
Wilson White	100	100	90	83	373
Carrol Miller	99	99	85	87	370
George Porter	100	100	87	75	362
Team Total					1480

Results of this match in relationship to the state and national standings will not be known until after May 15th, deadline for team entries in this competition.

The gallery tournament was conducted under the direction of Arthur S. Hoffa, executive officer. John R. Cook supervised the scoring as statistical officer. Range officer was David H. Durst, and Chief Target Officer was Merle W. Shumaker. Harry Morgan represented the NRA as official referee.

Russia To Vie In Olympics Starting At Oslo In 1952

Committee Votes 31 To 0 In Favor

VIENNA, May 7 (AP)—Russia was admitted to the Olympic Games today after agreeing in writing to abandon politics on the field of sports.

The vote of the International Olympic Committee was 31 to 0 in favor. Three members did not vote.

During a three-hour discussion the IOC was told by its executive commission that the Russian Olympic Committee had agreed in writing to abide by the Olympic rule.

Rules include the promise to bring together the youth of the world without regard to race, religion or politics.

Russia is now eligible to take part in the Olympic Games starting with the winter session at Oslo in February, 1952, and the summer games at Helsinki in July and August 1952.

Konstantin Andrianov, president of the Russian Olympic Committee, was named to represent his country on the IOC.

He heads a Russian delegation which came to Vienna seeking admission to the games.

Andrianov appeared before the IOC this afternoon to offer his thanks.

He gave assurance of sincere and strong cooperation between his committee and the IOC. He said he was sure of a strong feeling of friendship on the part of the Russian Olympic Committee with the Olympic movement and with the peace in the world.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, vice-president of the Olympic committee, declared that "the duty of the Olympic Games is to bring together the youth of the world without regard to race, religion or politics. Since the Russian Olympic Committee has fulfilled our requirement and have written down that they will continue to abide by them there is no reason not to accept the committee."

Brundage and Brooks B. Parker of Philadelphia, the other United States delegate, both voted in favor of the admission.

The 34 delegates present at today's meeting represent 28 countries including two from behind the iron curtain — Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The action on Russia took up most of the first day of the three-day IOC session.

The question of admitting Western Germany — the other major piece of business scheduled for the Vienna meeting—was crowded off today's agenda. It will come up tomorrow.

The recognition of Russia brings to an end a period of sports isolation between the west and the Communists which had existed since the days of the revolution.

Russia took a minor part in the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm but otherwise has stayed entirely apart from the Olympic program.

LaVale, Corgs Chalk Up Wins

Brelsford, Kauffman Are Winning Hurlers

LaVale and Corriganville went into a tie for first place in the County Softball League by chalking up victories yesterday. The deadlocked leaders now boast 2-0 records.

LaVale nosed out Ellerslie in the last of the 7th when Bill Raupach's double broke a 3-3 tie.

Hinkle of LaVale belted a home run while Jim Gaffney of LaVale and R. Waltman of Ellerslie had two hits each.

Glen Kauffman, like Brelsford of LaVale, posted his second win of the season as Corriganville took Stringtown into camp, 14-6. Price homered for the Corgs in the second inning. Hill was the losing pitcher.

Wet grounds forced postponement of the Potomac Valley-Wellersburg game. The scores:

Chuck Stobbs Returns For Second Physical

RICHMOND, Va., May 7 (AP) — Chuck Stobbs, Boston Red Sox left-handed pitcher, today was back in Richmond for his second pre-induction physical examination.

Stobbs was sent here by his Norfolk County, Va., draft board. Earlier, he had been deferred because of an asthmatic condition.

Stobbs was sent from the Richmond Induction Center around noon today to Camp Lee to be reexamined by army doctors.

"We can't tell a thing about Stobbs' status until he has been examined by the GI doctors," said Lieutenant Raymond Carlock, processing officer at the induction center here.

Stobbs has a 3-0 record with the Red Sox.

Bearden Snaps Winning Streak Of Yanks, 10-6

Stars In Relief Role And Wallops Home Run

DETROIT, May 7 (AP) — Gene Bearden, a castoff relief pitcher halted the New York Yankees eight-game winning streak today. He sparked the Detroit Tigers to a 10-6 victory with a home run and seven innings of sharp relief pitching.

The Tigers broke up a tight ball game in the eighth inning, when Bearden, Hoot Evers, and Dick Kryhoski homered. Earlier, Yogi Berra and Gene Woodling homered for New York.

Bearden, who came to the Tigers from Washington a few weeks ago, relieved starter Saul Rogovin and allowed only five hits in seven innings to win his first game. Relief pitcher Fred Sanford of the Yankees lost his first game.

The Yankees, who had scored 80 runs off 25 pitchers since their streak began, got only three runs off Bearden, the glamour boy who pitched the Cleveland Indians to a pennant in 1948. Box:

Raines Fans Twelve, Beats LaSalle, 7-4

Runs Strikeout Total To 59; Four Bi-State Games On Tap Today

Coach Woody Woodson's Bruce High School tossers moved to within one game of the front-running and undefeated Beall High School nine yesterday by handing LaSalle High School a 7-4 setback at Westernport in a Bi-State Conference tilt.

Bruce spotted the Explorers four runs in the first three innings, tied it up at 4-4 on Arnone in the last of the 3rd stanza and defeated Relief pitcher Ackerman with a three-run outburst in the 4th.

The victory was the 4th straight in the conference for the Westernport nine which now has a 4-1 record. Beall leads with 5-0.

Bobby Raines posted his 4th straight triumph of the campaign, holding the Cumberland team to five hits, all singles. The Bruce ace failed to issue a pass and fired the third strike past an even dozen to soar his season's total to 59. "Moose" Arnone of Beall (4-0) trails Raines with 50 victims.

Smith and Foley garnered four of Bruce's six safeties.

Four league games are scheduled for today. The Central at Fort Hill contest here is set for 3:15 because of the Fort Hill Sports Award Dinner at Centre Street Methodist Church at 6:15.

The other games, Beall at LaSalle (Stitcher Field), Bruce at Hyndman and Barton at Allegany are scheduled to get under way at 4 p. m. Box:

Illinois Bars Nate Bolden

Offered $1,000 Bribes To Gain Reinstatement

CHICAGO, May 7 (INS)—Former middleweight boxer Nate Bolden was barred from boxing for life today by the Illinois Athletic Commission in Chicago after the fighter admitted "offering some people money."

The commission heard testimony by examining physician Dr. J. M. Houston and assistant chief inspector Harold Ryan that Bolden had offered them bribes of $500 each to help him gain reinstatement.

Bolden was retired indefinitely by the commission two years ago as a result of a heart condition and had applied for reinstatement.

Chairman Joseph Triner said Bolden applied for reinstatement last Monday and Thursday telephoned Houston to offer him $500 "if you will pass me medically."

Triner said Houston's secretary was on a telephone extension and provided a transcript of their conversation.

Ryan reported that Bolden had offered him a similar amount to use his "influence" in getting the reinstatement.

Triner said the commission order would bar Bolden from all activities in boxing in Illinois, including gymnasiums, the commission offices and dressing rooms.

Bolden told the commission:

"I have been offering some people money and I haven't a dime to my name."

Triner said the evidence would be submitted to State's Attorney John Boyle for legal action under the state law against offering bribes.

Detroit Broadcasts Protested By Flint

FLINT, Mich., May 7 (AP)—The Central League today protested to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler an alleged violation of the Flint team's territorial rights by a Detroit Tiger broadcast.

League President T. J. Halligan wired Chandler that the Tigers broadcast was carried by radio stations WCAR in Pontiac and WFYC in Alma, at a time when Flint was playing Muskegon.

Both stations, Halligan said, are within 50 miles of Flint, and come within the area controlled by Flint according to baseball law. Flint's own station, WTAC, did not carry the broadcast.

The Goebel Brewing Co., sponsor of the Detroit program, had instructed all stations within 50 miles of Flint not to air Sunday's game, since the Flint Arrows had not given permission for the broadcast.

Jackets Trip Keyser, 3-1, Annex Series

Winners Move Within Half Game Of Romney

KEYSER, May 7—Moorefield High School moved within a half game of Romney High's pace-setters in the Potomac Valley Conference race by defeating Keyser High School here today by the score of 3-1.

The victory gave Coach Johnny Waugh's Yellow Jackets a clean sweep of the two-game series. Moorefield won the opener by the score of 11-4.

Bobby Myers limited KHS to three hits. Wilson obtained three of the Moorefield six hits yielded by Jimmy Householder. Barr and Myers rapped doubles.

Moorefield won the game by scoring two runs in the 4th stanza. Myers doubled after one away and scored on Wilson's single. The latter raced to third on the throw to the plate and scored on Hardy's fly ball to centerfield.

Keyser scored its lone run in the 7th frame when Householder walked, stole second and came home when Baldwin threw wildly past third base.

The win was Moorefield's 7th in eight starts. Romney High leads with an 8-1 record.

Keyser concludes its season Friday by playing at Romney High. Box:

Reds Option Post

CINCINNATI, May 7 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds today optioned rookie outfielder Wally Post to Buffalo of the international league. He will be subject to a 24-hour recall.

Post played with Tulsa of the Texas league last year and hit .294 in 136 games. He had appeared in six Cincinnati games this season and had one hit in two times at bat.

Dodgers Farm Barney

NEW YORK, May 7 (INS)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today sent right-hander Rex Barney to their Fort Worth Club in the Texas League on a 24-hour recall option.

The erratic hurler, who has been unable to shake off mound wildness, was waived out of the majors before the Dodgers could send him to their farm team.

Bosox Blank Browns

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP) —Willard Nixon pitched a two-hitter and hit a home run for the Boston Red Sox tonight to give them a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The opposing hurler, Ned Garver, yielded four hits. Score:

Paige To Pitch In Negro League

Satchel To Join American Giants

CHICAGO, May 7 (AP)—Le Roy (Satchel) Paige, legendary negro pitcher who had a 1948-49 fling with the Cleveland Indians, today agreed to join the Chicago American Giants of the Negro American League.

To keep Paige eligible for a possible major league offer, the American Giants issued him several shares of stock instead of signing him a contract. As an "owner," under league regulations, Paige is ineligible to sign a player contract.

Paige will hurl the American Giants home opener at Comiskey Park against the Birmingham Black Barons May 20.

The American Giants reported that Paige had recovered from a stomach ailment which slowed him in 1949 and that last year, in 62 exhibition games, Satchel's financial returns "were enormous and far exceeded his major league stipend."

Paige, who started pitching some 27 years ago, still is coy about his age. "Let 'em guess," says Paige, "But there's still plenty of pitchin' left in this old soup-bone o'mine."

The guesses vary from early 40's to late 40's.

Pitching mainly in relief Paige had a 6-1 record for the Indians in 1948 and 4-7 in 1949.

Bassett Scores KO

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (AP) — Percy Bassett, high-ranking featherweight contender, spoiled the Philadelphia debut of Charley Riley tonight, knocking out the St. Louis fighter in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round scrap at the arena.

Bassett, bidding for a shot at Sandy Saddler's 126-pound crown, weighed 126½ pounds. Riley tipped the scales at 128.

The hard-hitting Philadelphian floored Riley for the full count after one minute and nine seconds of the fourth chapter.

Ditto For McAllister, Jackson "Dive" Tops

Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Lee Sala and Jimmy McAllister followed the script to the letter last night and scored knockouts at the expense of a trio of inferior opponents in the first professional boxing show staged here in a year at the State Armory before 1,017 cash customers.

Starkey, Wiley Ford, W. Va., light-heavyweight, belted out Billy Stemmler, of Windsor, Canada, New York and New Jersey, in 1:24 of the 5th of a sloppy match.

Stemmler proved to be a real canvas kisser and was down for eight and nine counts on one knee in the first, second and third stanzas. Starkey showed little improvement since his appearance a year ago when he chilled Rudy Williams in three heats. He was awkward, stumbled over his own feet several times and was easy to clout with a right hand. It was his 22nd straight pro victory.

Jackson Goes Into Tank

The classic of the evening came in the 2nd eight-rounder on the card, when "Buddy" Jackson, 160, of Beacon, N. Y., went into the "tank" in exactly 2:54 of the first round of his affair with the highly touted Lee Sala, Donora, Pa., middleweight, who has been taking on a flock of preliminary boys after the awful warping he received in Harrisburg, Pa., at the hands of Gene Hairston, the deaf mute. Jackson took a perfect dive out of a clinch when hit by Sala. He fell hard and rolled over to make it look like the real thing.

Jimmy McAllister, Baltimore negro featherweight, carried Manuel Batista, of New York, for four rounds then dumped him for keeps in 2:16 of the 5th stanza. This was a honey of a waltz while it lasted.

Four negro boxers figured in the first two matches on the card which was held under the joint promotion of Peter J. "Bunny" Buntag, Pittsburgh, manager of Sala and Starkey; Benny Trotta, Baltimore, and Charles (Call Me Chuck) Hensell, of Cumberland.

In the curtain raiser, Billy Richardson, 140, Baltimore, stopped Art Lynch, 148, Brooklyn, in 1:42 of the first round.

Harold Purvis, 140, Baltimore, gained a 2-1 nod over Carroll Bunting, 135, Washington, D. C., in the other four, a pretty good taffy pull.

Three Referees Used

Buddy McQuaid, Baltimore, refereed the Starkey-Stemmler affair. James E. Kelley, Jr., worked three bouts and Jack Rorick was in there for "the thing" in which Sala and Jackson were the principals. The three officials judged when not in the ring.

Nelson W. Russler was official announcer and John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, official timer.

The trophy went to the Sentinels for winning the meet of 10 events with 48 points. Beightol received the watch for pacing the individual scorers with 11 points. Donald Brake, left, and Beightol are co-captains. The former ran on the winning mile relay team and finished 2nd in the 440 yards run. In addition to the trophy and watch, Fort Hill athletes earned 14 medals.

Wilson White Captures Rifle League Title

Wins W. Md. Trophy, Edges Norman White

Wilson White, of Mountain Lake Park, was the champion in the 2nd Annual Western Maryland Gallery Tournament, fired Sunday at the Bowman's Addition smallbore range. White's aggregate score of 856 points copped match No. 5 and earned the Western Maryland League trophy. He edged Norman White, of Cumberland, one point to capture the match championship.

Match No. 1 of the .22 caliber anysight program, 20 shots in the prone position, was taken by Leo Leasure's 200-19x. High Expert went to George Porter with 200-18x. LaVale's Jim Kerr won the Sharpshooter class with 199-17x. Randall Sims, of Mountain Lake Park, tallied high Marksman with 198-18x.

White Wins Trophy

The Fort Hill Rifle Club Trophy fell to Norman White's 185 points in Match No. 2, 20 shots standing. George Porter again took Expert Class with 176. Hayes Robertson's 170 made high Sharpshooter, and Randall Sims scored 146 to win the Marksman Class.

Wilson White hit his stride in Match No. 3 and won the 10 shots prone and 10 shots standing event easily with 192 markers. Classification victors were: Expert—Leo Leasure, 185; Sharpshooter — Harry Ranker, 184; and Marksman—Randall Sims, 168.

Match No. 4, 10 shots each in the prone, kneeling, and standing positions, also went to White with a score of 288. Bill Whitson's 285 was good for the Expert Class, while Don Helbig took over Sharpshooter Class with 276 points. Randall Sims added another victory in the Marksman Class by posting 274.

Match No. 5, the Western Maryland Rifle League Trophy event, consisting of the grand aggregate of the first four matches, dropped to Wilson White's consistant gunnery on 856 points. Expert Class winner was George Porter with a score of 835. Harry Ranker captured Sharpshooter with 817 markers, and Randall Sims made a clean sweep in the Marksman Class by totaling 786.

Fire In NRA Tests

As a special event on the program, four riflemen from the Mountain Top Club fired their team entry in the National Rifle Association's 1950-1 Gallery League State and National Championships. The course of fire consisted of 20 shots prone and 20 shots standing at 50 feet, any sights. The scores:

	Prone I	Prone II	Stand I	Stand II	Total
Donald Helbig	100	100	90	85	375
Wilson White	100	100	90	83	373
Carrol Miller	99	99	85	87	370
George Porter	100	100	87	75	362
Team Total					1480

Results of this match in relationship to the state and national standings will not be known until after May 15th, deadline for team entries in this competition.

The gallery tournament was conducted under the direction of Arthur S. Hoffa, executive officer. John R. Cook supervised the scoring as statistical officer. Range officer was David H. Durst, and Chief Target Officer was Merle W. Shumaker. Harry Morgan represented the NRA as official referee.

Russia To Vie In Olympics Starting At Oslo In 1952

Committee Votes 31 To 0 In Favor

VIENNA, May 7 (AP)—Russia was admitted to the Olympic Games today after agreeing in writing to abandon politics on the field of sports.

The vote of the International Olympic Committee was 31 to 0 in favor. Three members did not vote.

During a three-hour discussion the IOC was told by its executive commission that the Russian Olympic Committee had agreed in writing to abide by the Olympic rule.

Rules include the promise to bring together the youth of the world without regard to race, religion or politics.

Russia is now eligible to take part in the Olympic Games starting with the winter session at Oslo in February, 1952, and the summer games at Helsinki in July and August 1952.

Konstantin Andrianov, president of the Russian Olympic Committee, was named to represent his country on the IOC.

He heads a Russian delegation which came to Vienna seeking admission to the games.

Andrianov appeared before the IOC this afternoon to offer his thanks.

He gave assurance of sincere and strong cooperation between his committee and the IOC. He said he was sure of a strong feeling of friendship on the part of the Russian Olympic Committee with the Olympic movement and with the peace in the world.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, vice-president of the Olympic committee, declared that "the duty of the Olympic Games is to bring together the youth of the world without regard to race, religion or politics. Since the Russian Olympic Committee has fulfilled our requirement and have written down that they will continue to abide by them there is no reason not to accept the committee."

Brundage and Brooks B. Parker of Philadelphia, the other United States delegate, both voted in favor of the admission.

The 34 delegates present at today's meeting represent 28 countries including two from behind the iron curtain — Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The action on Russia took up most of the first day of the three-day IOC session.

The question of admitting Western Germany — the other major piece of business scheduled for the Vienna meeting—was crowded off today's agenda. It will come up tomorrow.

The recognition of Russia brings to an end a period of sports isolation between the west and the Communists which had existed since the days of the revolution.

Russia took a minor part in the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm but otherwise has stayed entirely apart from the Olympic program.

LaVale, Corgs Chalk Up Wins

Brelsford, Kauffman Are Winning Hurlers

LaVale and Corriganville went into a tie for first place in the County Softball League by chalking up victories yesterday. The deadlocked leaders now boast 2-0 records.

LaVale nosed out Ellerslie in the last of the 7th when Bill Raupach's double broke a 3-3 tie.

Hinkle of LaVale belted a home run while Jim Gaffney of LaVale and R. Waltman of Ellerslie had two hits each.

Glen Kauffman, like Brelsford of LaVale, posted his second win of the season as Corriganville took Stringtown into camp, 14-6. Price homered for the Corgs in the second inning. Hill was the losing pitcher.

Wet grounds forced postponement of the Potomac Valley-Wellersburg game. The scores:

Chuck Stobbs Returns For Second Physical

RICHMOND, Va., May 7 (AP) — Chuck Stobbs, Boston Red Sox left-handed pitcher, today was back in Richmond for his second pre-induction physical examination.

Stobbs was sent here by his Norfolk County, Va., draft board. Earlier, he had been deferred because of an asthmatic condition.

Stobbs was sent from the Richmond Induction Center around noon today to Camp Lee to be reexamined by army doctors.

"We can't tell a thing about Stobbs' status until he has been examined by the GI doctors," said Lieutenant Raymond Carlock, processing officer at the induction center here.

Stobbs has a 3-0 record with the Red Sox.

Bearden Snaps Winning Streak Of Yanks, 10-6

Stars In Relief Role And Wallops Home Run

DETROIT, May 7 (AP) — Gene Bearden, a castoff relief pitcher halted the New York Yankees eight-game winning streak today. He sparked the Detroit Tigers to a 10-6 victory with a home run and seven innings of sharp relief pitching.

The Tigers broke up a tight ball game in the eighth inning, when Bearden, Hoot Evers, and Dick Kryhoski homered. Earlier, Yogi Berra and Gene Woodling homered for New York.

Bearden, who came to the Tigers from Washington a few weeks ago, relieved starter Saul Rogovin and allowed only five hits in seven innings to win his first game. Relief pitcher Fred Sanford of the Yankees lost his first game.

The Yankees, who had scored 80 runs off 25 pitchers since their streak began, got only three runs off Bearden, the glamour boy who pitched the Cleveland Indians to a pennant in 1948. Box:

Bosox Sell Guerra To Washington Team

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox today sold catcher Mike Guerra to the Washington Senators for an undisclosed price.

When Guerra became Boston property, on purchase from the Philadelphia Athletics, it was reported he would join the Senators and become interpreter for Manager Bucky Harris' crew of Cuban pitchers.

This the Sox denied.

Guerra became Boston property shortly after the well liked veteran receiver, Birdie Tebbetts, had been sold to Cleveland.

Raines Fans Twelve, Beats LaSalle, 7-4

Runs Strikeout Total To 59; Four Bi-State Games On Tap Today

Coach Woody Woodson's Bruce High School tossers moved to within one game of the front-running and undefeated Beall High School nine yesterday by handing LaSalle High School a 7-4 setback at Westernport in a Bi-State Conference tilt.

Bruce spotted the Explorers four runs in the first three innings, tied it up at 4-4 on Arnone in the last of the 3rd stanza and defeated Relief pitcher Ackerman with a three-run outburst in the 4th.

The victory was the 4th straight in the conference for the Westernport nine which now has a 4-1 record. Beall leads with 5-0.

Bobby Raines posted his 4th straight triumph of the campaign, holding the Cumberland team to five hits, all singles. The Bruce ace failed to issue a pass and fired the third strike past an even dozen to soar his season's total to 59. "Moose" Arnone of Beall (4-0) trails Raines with 50 victims.

Smith and Foley garnered four of Bruce's six safeties.

Four league games are scheduled for today. The Central at Fort Hill contest here is set for 3:15 because of the Fort Hill Sports Award Dinner at Centre Street Methodist Church at 6:15.

The other games, Beall at LaSalle (Stitcher Field), Bruce at Hyndman and Barton at Allegany are scheduled to get under way at 4 p. m. Box:

Illinois Bars Nate Bolden

Offered $1,000 Bribes To Gain Reinstatement

CHICAGO, May 7 (INS)—Former middleweight boxer Nate Bolden was barred from boxing for life today by the Illinois Athletic Commission in Chicago after the fighter admitted "offering some people money."

The commission heard testimony by examining physician Dr. J. M. Houston and assistant chief inspector Harold Ryan that Bolden had offered them bribes of $500 each to help him gain reinstatement.

Bolden was retired indefinitely by the commission two years ago as a result of a heart condition and had applied for reinstatement.

Chairman Joseph Triner said Bolden applied for reinstatement last Monday and Thursday telephoned Houston to offer him $500 "if you will pass me medically."

Triner said Houston's secretary was on a telephone extension and provided a transcript of their conversation.

Ryan reported that Bolden had offered him a similar amount to use his "influence" in getting the reinstatement.

Triner said the commission order would bar Bolden from all activities in boxing in Illinois, including gymnasiums, the commission offices and dressing rooms.

Bolden told the commission:

"I have been offering some people money and I haven't a dime to my name."

Triner said the evidence would be submitted to State's Attorney John Boyle for legal action under the state law against offering bribes.

Detroit Broadcasts Protested By Flint

FLINT, Mich., May 7 (AP)—The Central League today protested to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler an alleged violation of the Flint team's territorial rights by a Detroit Tiger broadcast.

League President T. J. Halligan wired Chandler that the Tigers broadcast was carried by radio stations WCAR in Pontiac and WFYC in Alma, at a time when Flint was playing Muskegon.

Both stations, Halligan said, are within 50 miles of Flint, and come within the area controlled by Flint according to baseball law. Flint's own station, WTAC, did not carry the broadcast.

The Goebel Brewing Co., sponsor of the Detroit program, had instructed all stations within 50 miles of Flint not to air Sunday's game, since the Flint Arrows had not given permission for the broadcast.

Jackets Trip Keyser, 3-1, Annex Series

Winners Move Within Half Game Of Romney

KEYSER, May 7—Moorefield High school moved within a half game of Romney High's pace-setters in the Potomac Valley Conference race by defeating Keyser High School here today by the score of 3-1.

The victory gave Coach Johnny Waugh's Yellow Jackets a clean sweep of the two-game series. Moorefield won the opener by the score of 11-4.

Bobby Myers limited KHS to three hits. Wilson obtained three of the Moorefield six hits yielded by Jimmy Householder. Barr and Myers rapped doubles.

Moorefield won the game by scoring two runs in the 4th stanza. Myers doubled after one away and scored on Wilson's single. The latter raced to third on the throw to the plate and scored on Hardy's fly ball to centerfield.

Keyser scored its lone run in the 6th frame when Householder walked, stole second and came home when Baldwin threw wildly past third base.

The win was Moorefield's 7th in eight starts. Romney High leads with an 8-1 record.

Keyser concludes its season Friday by playing at Romney High. Box:

Reds Option Post

CINCINNATI, May 7 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds today optioned rookie outfielder Wally Post to Buffalo of the international league. He will be subject to a 24-hour recall.

Post played with Tulsa of the Texas league last year and hit .294 in 136 games. He had appeared in six Cincinnati games this season and had one hit in two times at bat.

Dodgers Farm Barney

NEW YORK, May 7 (INS)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today sent right-hander Rex Barney to their Fort Worth Club in the Texas League on a 24-hour recall option.

The erratic hurler, who has been unable to shake off mound wildness, was waived out of the majors before the Dodgers could send him to their farm team.

Bosox Blank Browns

ST. LOUIS, May 7 (AP) —Willard Nixon pitched a two-hitter and hit a home run for the Boston Red Sox tonight to give them a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The opposing hurler, Ned Garver, yielded four hits. Score:

Boston	002	000	000—2	4	0
St. Louis	000	000	000—0	1	3

Nixon and Rosar; Garver and Lollar.
HR: Bos—Nixon.

Con Dempsey, rookie pitcher with the Pittsburgh Pirates, was the leading hurler in the Pacific Coast League in 1948. As a member of the San Francisco club he won 16 and lost 11 with an earned run average of 2.10.

Paige To Pitch In Negro League

Satchel To Join American Giants

CHICAGO, May 7 (AP)—Le Roy (Satchel) Paige, legendary negro pitcher who had a 1948-49 fling with the Cleveland Indians, today agreed to join the Chicago American Giants of the Negro American League.

To keep Paige eligible for a possible major league offer, the American Giants issued him several shares of stock instead of signing him a contract. As an "owner," under league regulations, Paige is ineligible to sign a player contract.

Paige will hurl the American Giants home opener at Comiskey Park against the Birmingham Black Barons May 20.

The American Giants reported that Paige had recovered from a stomach ailment which slowed him in 1949 and that last year, in 62 exhibition games, Satchel's financial returns "were enormous and far exceeded his major league stipend."

Paige, who started pitching some 27 years ago, still is coy about his age. "Let 'em guess," says Paige, "But there's still plenty of pitchin' left in this old soup-bone o'mine."

The guesses vary from early 40's to late 40's.

Pitching mainly in relief Paige had a 6-1 record for the Indians in 1948 and 4-7 in 1949.

Starkey, Sala Score Kayoes Before 1,017

Ditto For McAllister, Jackson "Dive" Tops

Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Lee Sala and Jimmy McAllister followed the script to the letter last night and scored knockouts at the expense of a trio of inferior opponents in the first professional boxing show staged here in a year at the State Armory before 1,017 cash customers.

Starkey, Wiley Ford, W. Va., light-heavyweight, belted out Billy Stemmler, of Windsor, Canada, New York and New Jersey, in 1:24 of the 5th of a sloppy match.

Stemmler proved to be a real canvas kisser and was down for eight and nine counts on one knee in the first, second and third stanzas. Starkey showed little improvement since his appearance a year ago when he chilled Rudy Williams in three heats. He was awkward, stumbled over his own feet several times and was easy to clout with a right hand. It was his 22nd straight pro victory.

Jackson Goes Into Tank

The classic of the evening came in the 2nd eight-rounder on the card, when "Buddy" Jackson, 160, of Beacon, N. Y., went into the "tank" in exactly 2:54 of the first round of his affair with the highly touted Lee Sala, Donora, Pa., middleweight, who has been taking on a flock of preliminary boys after the awful warping he received in Harrisburg, Pa., at the hands of Gene Hairston, the deaf mute. Jackson took a perfect dive out of a clinch when hit by Sala. He fell hard and rolled over to make it look like the real thing.

Jimmy McAllister, Baltimore negro featherweight, carried Manuel Batista, of New York, for four rounds then dumped him for keeps in 2:16 of the 5th stanza. This was a honey of a waltz while it lasted.

Four negro boxers figured in the first two matches on the card which was held under the joint promotion of Peter J. "Bunny" Buntag, Pittsburgh, manager of Sala and Starkey; Benny Trotta, Baltimore, and Charles (Call Me Chuck) Hensell, of Cumberland.

In the curtain raiser, Billy Richardson, 140, Baltimore, stopped Art Lynch, 148, Brooklyn, in 1:42 of the first round.

Harold Purvis, 140, Baltimore, gained a 2-1 nod over Carroll Bunting, 135, Washington, D. C., in the other four, a pretty good taffy pull.

Three Referees Used

Buddy McQuaid, Baltimore, refereed the Starkey-Stemmler affair. James E. Kelley, Jr., worked three bouts and Jack Rorick was in there for "the thing" in which Sala and Jackson were the principals. The three officials judged when not in the ring.

Nelson W. Russler was official announcer and John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, official timer.

Bassett Scores KO

PHILADELPHIA, May 7 (AP) — Percy Bassett, high-ranking featherweight contender, spoiled the Philadelphia debut of Charley Riley tonight, knocking out the St. Louis fighter in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round scrap at the arena.

Bassett, bidding for a shot at Sandy Saddler's 126-pound crown, weighed 126½ pounds. Riley tipped the scales at 128.

The hard-hitting Philadelphian floored Riley for the full count after one minute and nine seconds of the fourth chapter.

Fusari And Janiro To Fight In June

NEWARK, N. J., May 7 (AP) — Charley Fusari, Irvington, N. J., welterweight will meet Tony Janiro of Youngstown, Ohio, in an outdoor bout in early June, it was announced today.

The promoters, Willie Gilzenberg, Thomas J. (Babe) Culnan and Angelo Pucci, said the site, date and distance of the match are expected to be decided in the next 72 hours after contracts are presented to boxing Commissioner Abe J. Greene.

The match will be held at Ruppert Stadium, Newark, N. J. or Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City.

Teams Practice

The Lions Club of the Hot Stove League, managed by Jim Stevenson, will practice at Locust Grove Field today and Wednesday at 5:30 and Friday at 4:30.

Cunningham's Grocers of the Recreation Softball League will hold practice today at 6 p. m. at Locust Grove.

The Tigers of the Little League will practice at Stitcher Field today at 6:30.

Vic Hebb's Braves of the Little League will practice today and Thursday at 4:30, Saturday at 10 a. m. and Sunday at 2 p. m. at Naval Reserve Field.

The Brooklyn Dodgers' Opening Day attendance has exceeded 30,000 three times in its National League history. In each instance the Giants furnished the opposition.

when you buy a pair of shoes, you don't ask the advice of your barber

it's just plain COMMON SENSE

when you buy a beer take the advice of men who know

....the brewers themselves

CUMBERLAND BREWING CO. · CUMBERLAND, MD.

WE GIVE YOU PROOF, NOT CLAIMS! OLD EXPORT IS THE ONLY BEER IN AMERICA TO WIN PUBLIC PRAISE FROM BREWERS OF OTHER BEERS!

Yes, no ifs . . . ands . . . or maybes, but public acclaim from brewers themselves. What more can we say? Not a single thing you won't discover for yourself when you raise swell-tasting Old Export to your lips. It's a swell beer! Mountain Water makes the difference. Today, tomorrow sure, say Old Export. It's just plain common sense!

JOHN F. DIEHL, of the Christ. Diehl Brewing Company says, "My family have been brewers for years and I'll say there's no question about it, Old Export is a swell beer!"

LOUIS A. WEHLE, Chairman of the Board and Founder of the Genesee Brewing Company, Rochester, New York, says, "I sure found a swell beer in Old Export."

JOHN A. BERGHOFF, from a long line of brewers of Fort Wayne, Indiana, states, "With a record of more than 60 years of popularity, and a smooth, mellow taste, Old Export is certainly a swell beer!"

JAMES P. HOLIHAN, President and General Manager of Diamond Spring Brewery, Lawrence, Mass. says, "In New England we think before we speak, and I think Old Export Beer is swell!"

Say.. Old Export "A SWELL BEER"

Mountain water makes the difference

Six Former Champs Vie In U. S. Open

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Although 410 entries have been recieved for the United States Open Golf Championship two weeks before the closing date, the name of 1950 champion Ben Hogan is not yet on the list.

Hogan's entry is expected well before the closing time, 5 p. m. (EDT) Monday, May 21, Harry Robert, assistant secretary of the U. S. Golf Association, said today. Lloyd Mangrum and George Fazio, who lost to Hogan in a playoff last year, already have filed their entries.

The open tournament will be played at the Oakland Hills Club, Detroit, June 14 to 16.

Six former open champions who already have entered are Gene Sarasen, Craig Wood, Lawson Little, Tommy Armour, Tony Manero and Lew Worsham. Chandler Harper, the PGA champion; amateur champion Sammy Urzetta and Frank Stranahan, the British amateur champion also have filed entries.

Legion Team Meets

Manager Charles "Bud" Edenhart has called a meeting of the post committee and boys desiring a tryout with the Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 American Legion junior baseball team for Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the local post home.

Legion Team Drills

The American Legion junior baseball team representing Knobley Mountain Post of Ridgeley will practice today at 5 . m. at Carpenter Field.

Women Will Engage In Putting Contest

Women golfers of the Cumberland Country Club will engage in a putting contest today at 10 a. m. over the local course.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Golf Association is set for 12:30 p. m.

The women's spring handicap tourney starts one week from today and those interested in playing are asked to register at the golf shop.

Fusari And Janiro To Fight In June

NEWARK, N. J., May 7 (AP) — Charley Fusari, Irvington, N. J., welterweight will meet Tony Janiro of Youngstown, Ohio, in an outdoor bout in early June, it was announced today.

The promoters, Willie Gilzenberg, Thomas J. (Babe) Culnan and Angelo Pucci, said the site, date and distance of the match are expected to be decided in the next 72 hours after contracts are presented to boxing Commissioner Abe J. Greene.

The match will be held at Ruppert Stadium, Newark, N. J. or Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City.

Teams Practice

The Lions Club of the Hot Stove League, managed by Jim Stevenson, will practice at Locust Grove Field today and Wednesday at 5:30 and Friday at 4:30.

Cunningham's Grocers of the Recreation Softball League will hold practice today at 6 p. m. at Locust Grove.

The Tigers of the Little League will practice at Stitcher Field today at 6:30.

Vic Hebb's Braves of the Little League will practice today and Thursday at 4:30, Saturday at 10 a. m. and Sunday at 2 p. m. at Naval Reserve Field.

The Brooklyn Dodgers' Opening Day attendance has exceeded 30,000 three times in its National League history. In each instance the Giants furnished the opposition.

when you buy a pair of shoes, you don't ask the advice of your barber

it's just plain COMMON SENSE

when you buy a beer take the advice of men who know

WE GIVE YOU PROOF, NOT CLAIMS! OLD EXPORT IS THE ONLY BEER IN AMERICA TO WIN PUBLIC PRAISE FROM BREWERS OF OTHER BEERS!

Yes, no ifs . . . ands . . . or maybes, but public acclaim from brewers themselves. What more can we say? Not a single thing you won't discover for yourself when you raise swell-tasting Old Export to your lips. It's a swell beer! Mountain Water makes the difference. Today, tomorrow sure, say Old Export. It's just plain common sense!

JOHN F. DIEHL, of the Christ. Diehl Brewing Company says, "My family have been brewers for years and I'll say there's no question about it, Old Export is a swell beer!"

LOUIS A. WEHLE, Chairman of the Board and Founder of the Genesee Brewing Company, Rochester, New York, says, "I sure found a swell beer in Old Export."

JOHN A. BERGHOFF, from a long line of brewers of Fort Wayne, Indiana, states, "With a record of more than 60 years of popularity, and a smooth, mellow taste, Old Export is certainly a swell beer!"

JAMES P. HOLIHAN, President and General Manager of Diamond Spring Brewery, Lawrence, Mass. says, "In New England we think before we speak, and I think Old Export Beer is swell!"

Say.. Old Export

"A SWELL BEER"

Six Former Champs Vie In U. S. Open

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Although 410 entries have been recieved for the United States Open Golf Championship two weeks before the closing date, the name of 1950 champion Ben Hogan is not yet on the list.

Hogan's entry is expected well before the closing time, 5 p. m. (EDT) Monday, May 21, Harry Robert, assistant secretary of the U. S. Golf Association, said today. Lloyd Mangrum and George Fazio, who lost to Hogan in a playoff last year, already have filed their entries.

The open tournament will be played at the Oakland Hills Club, Detroit, June 14 to 16.

Six former open champions who already have entered are Gene Sarazen, Craig Wood, Lawson Little, Tommy Armour, Tony Manero and Lew Worsham. Chandler Harper, the PGA champion; amateur champion Sammy Urzetta and Frank Stranahan, the British amateur champion also have filed entries.

Legion Team Meets

Manager Charles "Bud" Edenhart has called a meeting of the post committee and boys desiring a try-out with the Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 American Legion junior baseball team for Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the local post home.

Legion Team Drills

The American Legion junior baseball team representing Knobley Mountain Post of Ridgeley will practice today at 5 . m. at Carpenter Field.

Women Will Engage In Putting Contest

Women golfers of the Cumberland Country Club will engage in a putting contest today at 10 a. m. over the local course.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Golf Association is set for 12:30 p. m.

The women's spring handicap tourney starts one week from today and those interested in playing are asked to register at the golf shop.

MacARTHUR—MAN OF ACTION

By FRANK KELLEY and CORNELIUS RYAN

5. West Point, Washington, Philippines

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has always had one weakness: Hats. He arrived at West Point in his cadet days wearing a 10-gallon Stetson. During World War I he removed the wire stiffener and his field cap hung fakishly over one eye. Returning to the United States in 1919, MacArthur refused to purchase a new hat. He liked his old battered hat; he was rather sentimental about it too. "I can't be bothered fussing around with hats," he told a close friend; "I like this one." Years later, during the Pacific struggle, his scrambled-egg hat became famous the world over. Today he still wears it, and it is doubtful if he has more than one.

There are several versions as to how he came by this particular design. Some say—the great majority—that he designed it himself. Others tell this story: In the Philippines in 1938 MacArthur sent back to Washington for a new full-dress uniform for evening wear. About that time the full-dress uniform had been redesigned, and when MacArthur received it the scrambled-egg hat was included. According to the story MacArthur thought that this new hat was "regulation." He took a liking to it and has worn it ever since. Whatever the truth, in more than one way hats tell the story of MacArthur's barometric change in character.

Gen. Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff before Gen. Pershing, had a job for young MacArthur which was going to put a lot of stiffness in his backbone—and incidentally into his floppy, bedraggled hat. March told him to take over West Point.

He took command on June 12, 1919, and arrived at the academy wearing the famous hat. Maj. Gen. Charles P. Thompson, also on the staff (he was only a major then), a close friend of MacArthur, finally said this to the General: "My God, MacArthur, that hat—you'll simply have to buy a new one, remember you are the superintendent of West Point." Reluctantly and probably a little nostalgically MacArthur bought a new hat.

MacArthur bought something else—a new lease on life for West Point. Something of the spirit of West Point had disappeared. Furthermore, the famous West Point honor system had gone with the spirit. The situation was chaotic.

Writes Academy Code

It was into this situation that MacArthur was thrown: To save West Point.

What MacArthur's aims were can best be described in the code he wrote for the Academy: "To hold fast to those policies typified in the motto of the Academy—Duty, Honor, Country, to cling to thoroughness as to a lode star, to continue to inculcate the habit of industry, to implant as of old the gospel of cleanliness—to be clean, to live clean, to think clean—and yet to introduce a new atmosphere of liberalization in doing away with provincialism, a substitution of subjective for objective discipline, a progressive increase of cadet responsibility tending to develop initiative and force of character rather than automatic performance of stereotyped functions, to broaden the curriculum so as to be abreast of the best modern thought on education, to bring West Point into a new and closer relationship with the Army at large. . . ."

MacArthur streamlined the activities of the Academy and laid great emphasis on athletics.

MacArthur always displayed a good sense of humor at West Point and knew when to close an eye to the behavior of his charges. Even as a senior classman during his student years he had shown this quality. Once, as Officer of the Day, he caught several young plebes, who had left a formal West Point dance, playing poker in the locker room. MacArthur said: "Gentlemen, one look at this gathering convinces me that you have in hand matters more serious than the promenade you have just left. However, if I were you, I would refrain from studying military tactics after classes and enjoy the romantic recreation prepared for you."

MacArthur then saluted and left the room. The incident was not reported. Now, as superintendent, the General hadn't changed.

He revitalized the Academy; he fought for it in Washington; he gave it back its spirit.

Douglas MacArthur inherited an Army that was at a peacetime low.

MacArthur presented a table showing that as the wealthiest nation in the world we nevertheless maintained the lowest number of soldiers per billion dollars of national wealth. He showed that each of 16 other nations—we were the wealthiest and fourth in the world population—maintained a military establishment exceeding in strength the aggregate of our Regular Army, National Guard, and Organized Reserves.

Deducting various "overheads" in officers and men required for military schools, the War Department, rivers and harbors, et cetera, MacArthur found that for tactical purposes—namely, defense of the Continental United States—we had just 3,000 officers and 55,000 men. These were scattered through the country. It was doubtful whether we could have put into the field in an emergency even a small, well-balanced force.

And yet Congress was seriously considering a 2,000-man cut in total officer strength.

MacArthur, pacing his office next to the White House and chain-smoking through a 10-inch carved Oriental cigaret holder, said:

"I have humiliated myself. . . . I have almost licked the boots of some gentlemen to get funds for the motorization and mechanization of the Army. Unless we move quickly we will be a beaten nation, paying huge indemnities after the next war. The Army is below the danger line."

It remained that way until Pearl Harbor. It was again in that condition at the time of Korea.

For his troubles MacArthur was called a warmonger by none other than the late Senator Nye, who was to become one of the outstanding isolationists of our time.

Under his stewardship the Army woke up to tank warfare and to mechanization in general.

"Every part of the Army," MacArthur reported, "will adopt mechanization—and motorization—as far as it is practicable and desirable. To the greatest extent possible machines will be used to increase the mobility, security, and striking power of every ground arm, but no separate corps will be established in the vain hope that through a utilization of machines it can absorb the missions, and duplicate the capabilities, of all others."

In the same report, MacArthur laid down the fundamentals of a general mobilization plan. In its elements, the plan was the same with which we went to war in 1941. It set forth the Selective Service System; procurement programs that would be dovetailed with those of the Navy to avoid waste; allocation of plants and commodity committees to acquire the strategic materiel of war; priorities in material, price controls in the event of war; labor administration to bring worker and job together and to keep them together.

Coordinated Air Force

MacArthur clearly understood, as had Bernard Baruch in World War I (later in World War II, now in the Korean War) the necessity for mobilization of all our resources. Time and again the General emphasized the responsibility of each citizen, under our Constitution, for bearing arms in defense of our liberties. If a man could not bear arms, MacArthur held at least he could do his share in other directions.

Possibly his greatest achievement was the establishment of a general headquarters air force, the first concentration of fighter and bomber planes within the United States. As he envisaged the planes of this force, "they are to be used just as you would use a slingshot. They are to be thrown at the point where they will be the most damaging. For cohesion, coordination, and to prevent their dissipation on minor missions, they are held together as a great general reserve under the commanding general in the field."

In the summer of 1932, it befell him as Chief of Staff to head the troops that routed, under higher orders, the ragged, half-starved army of bonus marchers from the national capital.

For two months, almost in the shadow of the Capitol, the bonus army—with some Communist inspiration—lived in the hope of persuading Congress to pay out immediately nearly $2,500,000,000.

The bonus marchers lived in half-wrecked buildings on Pennsylvania avenue. MacArthur suspected that men from his old Rainbow Division of World War I might be among the needy; characteristically, he ordered mobile kitchens out to feed the men. The wiseacres dubbed the shanty town "Hooverville" in derision of a President who endured a depression not of his making.

On July 24 a rag, tag, and bobtail mob of vets began to march toward the White House, through the capital's business district. Police and detectives tried to break them up. At the Treasury, adjoining the White House grounds, a brief scuffle grew into a melee with the police, who drove the marchers back a block. One group of veterans made an end run around to a White House gate where the sight of police ready with tear-gas guns froze them in their tracks.

Tension mounted in the next few days. There were new clashes with police, who could not cope with the bonus army without risking bloodshed.

The worst day of all was July 28. About 200 marchers on lower Pennsylvania Avenue were joined at noon by 5,000 others who had escaped rope barriers flung up by the police. In mid-afternoon, in blistering heat, about 1,000 policemen attempted to drive the horde back from the center of the city. Wild scrimmages ensued. Defending themselves against rocks and bats, the police had to open fire; two marchers were killed and 50 were injured.

Police said they could not maintain order. Accordingly the district commissioners (who govern Washington after a fashion) asked Mr. Hoover for help.

At 3 p. m. immediate orders were issued to MacArthur by Patrick J. Hurley, then Secretary of War, who told the General that the President had heard from the district commissioners of their inability to keep order.

"You will have United States troops proceed immediately to the scene of disorder," said Hurley. "Co-operate fully with the District of Columbia police force which is now in charge. Surround the affected area and clear it without delay.

"Turn over all prisoners to the civil authorities.

"In your orders, insist that any women and children who may be in the affected area be accorded every consideration and kindness. Use all humanity consistent with the due execution of this order."

Puts On Uniform

MacArthur wasted no time. From Fort Meade, Maryland, he ordered five small tanks put on trucks and deployed with mounted cavalrymen to the White House area. Discarding a white summer suit, he put on a bemedaled uniform.

In late afternoon MacArthur mounted a white horse and led the troops down Pennsylvania Avenue. Someone heaved a rock at him. He turned, ordered bayonets out. The soldiers advanced toward the battered old buildings that still housed some marchers. Protected by gas masks, the troops lobbed tear-gas shells into the gaping structures. Wind blew some of the gas into the mob of 10,000 spectators who had gathered. There was a mild stampede.

Next the Army burned the old buildings and moved on to other areas of the city where the bonus marchers were camping. One by one the areas were cleared, the shacks burned. MacArthur called a halt for supper; he fed not only his own troops but the bonus marchers.

Late that night MacArthur and his men arrived at Anacostia Flats, along the Potomac river, site of another bonus army camp. The pitiful "army" asked for half an hour to clear out. MacArthur gave them an hour. And he gave gasoline and oil to those who had battered old cars, so that they might drive out of the city toward their homes. Then he had the camp burned.

MacArthur was violently condemned in the next few months as a brute and a bully. He remained silent. He had carried out his orders.

However, FDR had a problem about the placing of MacArthur. He was still too young to let go. Roosevelt is quoted as having told a Washington official: "I must always find a way to keep Douglas close to me. If we ever have another AEF, he's the man to take over." Thus it was that as MacArthur's last year—an extra year; he should have relinquished his term of office midnight Nov. 20, 1934—came to a close Roosevelt listened attentively to a plea from Manuel Quezon, first President of the Philippines. "Loan me MacArthur as military adviser to the Philippines," was what he asked.

The plan was presented to MacArthur. According to one account it took MacArthur less than five minutes to agree.

He was ordered forthwith to the Philippines.

While the MacArthurs have always been close to the Philippines, many felt that Douglas MacArthur wanted to retire when he finished his tenure of office as Chief of Staff. However, his new appointment excited him, for he was convinced even then that Japanese aggression would not stop with China.

MacArthur developed a 10-year Philippine defense plan, which called for speedy PT-boat type naval units, a fast, maneuverable, compact air force, a regular army of 400,000, and defense works and fortifications throughout the islands.

The lights burned often and late in the air-conditioned penthouse apartment in Manila. The General, as was his habit, did a lot of thinking and planning while pacing up and down through his long book-lined living room. His only relaxation was an occasional trip to a movie; an occasional drink; 60 per cent orange juice, 40 per cent gin. He rarely entered into Manila's social life, but occasionally warmly entertained a few guests. Sometimes, so the story goes, a guest on the floor below at the hotel would hear the General's pacing at 2 a. m. and would call the desk clerk to complain: "Doesn't that guy know what time it is?"

MacArthur knew what time it was, but the Philippine Government didn't. For one thing, President Quezon had difficulty in persuading his government to make the appropriations he had promised MacArthur. He was fair game for Filipino politicians who did not like the inroads that military expenditures made into their favorite pork-barrel projects. The Japanese, too, did what they could to try to get Quezon to send home that "arrogant MacArthur."

MacArthur was 61 when on July 28, 1941, President Roosevelt, with the crisis mounting in the Far East, recalled him to active service as a lieutenant general and placed him in command of the United States Army Forces in the Far East (USAFFE). His little Philippine Army was brought into the Federal service. Also in the islands and placed under MacArthur's new command were 19,000 U. S. Army troops and about 8,000 Army Air Force personnel equipped with about 250 planes—35 Flying Fortresses and 107 P-40 fighters among them.

The General who had been called "washed up" had been called upon again by his country. He was there to carry the colors when on Dec. 7 the Japanese hit Pearl Harbor.

NEXT: "I Shall Return."

MacArthur, pacing his office next to the White House and chain-smoking through a 10-inch carved Oriental cigaret holder, said:

"I have humiliated myself. . . . I have almost licked the boots of some gentlemen to get funds for the motorization and mechanization of the Army. Unless we move quickly we will be a beaten nation, paying huge indemnities after the next war. The Army is below the danger line."

It remained that way until Pearl Harbor. It was again in that condition at the time of Korea.

For his troubles MacArthur was called a warmonger by none other than the late Senator Nye, who was to become one of the outstanding isolationists of our time.

Under his stewardship the Army woke up to tank warfare and to mechanization in general.

"Every part of the Army," MacArthur reported, "will adopt mechanization—and motorization—as far as it is practicable and desirable. To the greatest extent possible machines will be used to increase the mobility, security, and striking power of every ground arm, but no separate corps will be established in the vain hope that through a utilization of machines it can absorb the missions, and duplicate the capabilities, of all others."

In the same report, MacArthur laid down the fundamentals of a general mobilization plan. In its elements, the plan was the same with which we went to war in 1941. It set forth the Selective Service System; procurement programs that would be dovetailed with those of the Navy to avoid waste; allocation of plants and commodity committees to acquire the strategic materiel of war; priorities in material, price controls in the event of war; labor administration to bring worker and job together and to keep them together.

Coordinated Air Force

MacArthur clearly understood, as had Bernard Baruch in World War I (later in World War II, now in the Korean War) the necessity for mobilization of all our resources. Time and again the General emphasized the responsibility of each citizen, under our Constitution, for bearing arms in defense of our liberties. If a man could not bear arms, MacArthur held at least he could do his share in other directions.

Possibly his greatest achievement was the establishment of a general headquarters air force, the first concentration of fighter and bomber planes within the United States. As he envisaged the planes of this force, "they are to be used just as you would use a slingshot. They are to be thrown at the point where they will be the most damaging. For cohesion, coordination, and to prevent their dissipation on minor missions, they are held together as a great general reserve under the commanding general in the field."

In the summer of 1932, it befell him as Chief of Staff to head the troops that routed, under higher orders, the ragged, half-starved army of bonus marchers from the national capital.

For two months, almost in the shadow of the Capitol, the bonus army—with some Communist inspiration—lived in the hope of persuading Congress to pay out immediately nearly $2,500,000,000.

The bonus marchers lived in half-wrecked buildings on Pennsylvania avenue. MacArthur suspected that men from his old Rainbow Division of World War I might be among the needy; characteristically, he ordered mobile kitchens out to feed the men. The wiseacres dubbed the shanty town "Hooverville" in derision of a President who endured a depression not of his making.

On July 24 a rag, tag, and bobtail mob of vets began to march toward the White House, through the capital's business district. Police and detectives tried to break them up. At the Treasury, adjoining the White House grounds, a brief scuffle grew into a melee with the police, who drove the marchers back a block. One group of veterans made an end run around to a White House gate where the sight of police ready with tear-gas guns froze them in their tracks.

Tension mounted in the next few days. There were new clashes with police, who could not cope with the bonus army without risking bloodshed.

The worst day of all was July 28. About 200 marchers on lower Pennsylvania Avenue were joined at noon by 5,000 others who had escaped rope barriers flung up by the police. In mid-afternoon, in blistering heat, about 1,000 policemen attempted to drive the horde back from the center of the city. Wild scrimmages ensued. Defending themselves against rocks and bats, the police had to open fire; two marchers were killed and 50 were injured.

Police said they could not maintain order. Accordingly the district commissioners (who govern Washington after a fashion) asked Mr. Hoover for help.

At 3 p. m. immediate orders were issued to MacArthur by Patrick J. Hurley, then Secretary of War, who told the General that the President had heard from the district commissioners of their inability to keep order.

"You will have United States troops proceed immediately to the scene of disorder," said Hurley. "Co-operate fully with the District of Columbia police force which is now in charge. Surround the affected area and clear it without delay.

"Turn over all prisoners to the civil authorities.

"In your orders, insist that any women and children who may be in the affected area be accorded every consideration and kindness. Use all humanity consistent with the due execution of this order."

Puts On Uniform

MacArthur wasted no time. From Fort Meade, Maryland, he ordered five small tanks put on trucks and deployed with mounted cavalrymen to the White House area. Discarding a white summer suit, he put on a bemedaled uniform.

In late afternoon MacArthur mounted a white horse and led the troops down Pennsylvania Avenue. Someone heaved a rock at him. He turned, ordered bayonets out. The soldiers advanced toward the battered old buildings that still housed some marchers. Protected by gas masks, the troops lobbed tear-gas shells into the gaping structures. Wind blew some of the gas into the mob of 10,000 spectators who had gathered. There was a mild stampede.

Next the Army burned the old buildings and moved on to other areas of the city where the bonus marchers were camping. One by one the areas were cleared, the shacks burned. MacArthur called a halt for supper; he fed not only his own troops but the bonus marchers.

Late that night MacArthur and his men arrived at Anacostia Flats, along the Potomac river, site of another bonus army camp. The pitiful "army" asked for half an hour to clear out. MacArthur gave them an hour. And he gave gasoline and oil to those who had battered old cars, so that they might drive out of the city toward their homes. Then he had the camp burned.

MacArthur was violently condemned in the next few months as a brute and a bully. He remained silent. He had carried out his orders.

However, FDR had a problem about the placing of MacArthur. He was still too young to let go. Roosevelt is quoted as having told a Washington official: "I must always find a way to keep Douglas close to me. If we ever have another AEF, he's the man to take over." Thus it was that as MacArthur's last year—an extra year; he should have relinquished his term of office midnight Nov. 20, 1934—came to a close Roosevelt listened attentively to a plea from Manuel Quezon, first President of the Philippines. "Loan me MacArthur as military adviser to the Philippines," was what he asked.

The plan was presented to MacArthur. According to one account it took MacArthur less than five minutes to agree.

He was ordered forthwith to the Philippines.

While the MacArthurs have always been close to the Philippines, many felt that Douglas MacArthur wanted to retire when he finished his tenure of office as Chief of Staff. However, his new appointment excited him, for he was convinced even then that Japanese aggression would not stop with China.

MacArthur developed a 10-year Philippine defense plan, which called for speedy PT-boat type naval units, a fast, maneuverable, compact air force, a regular army of 400,000, and defense works and fortifications throughout the islands.

The lights burned often and late in the air-conditioned penthouse apartment in Manila. The General, as was his habit, did a lot of thinking and planning while pacing up and down through his long book-lined living room. His only relaxation was an occasional trip to a movie; an occasional drink; 60 per cent orange juice, 40 per cent gin. He rarely entered into Manila's social life, but occasionally warmly entertained a few guests. Sometimes, so the story goes, a guest on the floor below at the hotel would hear the General's pacing at 2 a. m. and would call the desk clerk to complain: "Doesn't that guy know what time it is?"

MacArthur knew what time it was, but the Philippine Government didn't. For one thing, President Quezon had difficulty in persuading his government to make the appropriations he had promised MacArthur. He was fair game for Filipino politicians who did not like the inroads that military expenditures made into their favorite pork-barrel projects. The Japanese, too, did what they could to try to get Quezon to send home that "arrogant MacArthur."

MacArthur was 61 when on July 28, 1941, President Roosevelt, with the crisis mounting in the Far East, recalled him to active service as a lieutenant general and placed him in command of the United States Army Forces in the Far East (USAFFE). His little Philippine Army was brought into the Federal service. Also in the islands and placed under MacArthur's new command were 19,000 U. S. Army troops and about 8,000 Army Air Force personnel equipped with about 250 planes—35 Flying Fortresses and 107 P-40 fighters among them.

The General who had been called "washed up" had been called upon again by his country. He was there to carry the colors when on Dec. 7 the Japanese hit Pearl Harbor.

MacARTHUR —MAN OF ACTION

By FRANK KELLEY and CORNELIUS RYAN

5. West Point, Washington, Philippines

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has always had one weakness: Hats. He arrived at West Point in his cadet days wearing a 10-gallon Stetson. During World War I he removed the wire stiffener and his field cap hung rakishly over one eye. Returning to the United States in 1919, MacArthur refused to purchase a new hat. He liked his old battered hat; he was rather sentimental about it too. "I can't be bothered fussing around with hats," he told a close friend; "I like this one." Years later, during the Pacific struggle, his scrambled-egg hat became famous the world over. Today he still wears it, and it is doubtful if he has more than one.

There are several versions as to how he came by this particular design. Some say—the great majority—that he designed it himself. Others tell this story: In the Philippines in 1938 MacArthur sent back to Washington for a new full-dress uniform for evening wear. About that time the full-dress uniform had been redesigned, and when MacArthur received it the scrambled-egg hat was included. According to the story MacArthur thought that this new hat was "regulation." He took a liking to it and has worn it ever since. Whatever the truth, in more than one way hats tell the story of MacArthur's barometric change in character.

Gen. Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff before Gen. Pershing, had a job for young MacArthur which was going to put a lot of stiffness in his backbone—and incidentally into his floppy, bedraggled hat. March told him to take over West Point.

He took command on June 12, 1919, and arrived at the academy wearing the famous hat. Maj. Gen. Charles P. Thompson, also on the staff (he was only a major then), a close friend of MacArthur, finally said this to the General: "My God, MacArthur, that hat—you'll simply have to buy a new one, remember you are the superintendent of West Point." Reluctantly and probably a little nostalgically MacArthur bought a new hat.

MacArthur bought something else—a new lease on life for West Point. Something of the spirit of West Point had disappeared. Furthermore, the famous West Point honor system had gone with the spirit. The situation was chaotic.

Writes Academy Code

It was into this situation that MacArthur was thrown: To save West Point.

What MacArthur's aims were can best be described in the code he wrote for the Academy: "To hold fast to those policies typified in the motto of the Academy—Duty, Honor, Country, to cling to thoroughness as to a lode star, to continue to inculcate the habit of industry, to implant as of old the gospel of cleanliness—to be clean, to live clean, to think clean—and yet to introduce a new atmosphere of liberalization in doing away with provincialism, a substitution of subjective for objective discipline, a progressive increase of cadet responsibility tending to develop initiative and force of character rather than automatic performance of stereotyped functions, to broaden the curriculum so as to be abreast of the best modern thought on education, to bring West Point into a new and closer relationship with the Army at large. . . ."

MacArthur streamlined the activities of the Academy and laid great emphasis on athletics.

MacArthur always displayed a good sense of humor at West Point and knew when to close an eye to the behavior of his charges. Even as a senior classman during his student years he had shown this quality. Once, as Officer of the Day, he caught several young plebes, who had left a formal West Point dance, playing poker in the locker room. MacArthur said: "Gentlemen, one look at this gathering convinces me that you have in hand matters more serious than the promenade you have just left. However, if I were you, I would refrain from studying military tactics after classes and enjoy the romantic recreation prepared for you."

MacArthur then saluted and left the room. The incident was not reported. Now, as superintendent, the General hadn't changed.

He revitalized the Academy; he fought for it in Washington; he gave it back its spirit.

Douglas MacArthur inherited an Army that was at a peacetime low.

MacArthur presented a table showing that as the wealthiest nation in the world we nevertheless maintained the lowest number of soldiers per billion dollars of national wealth. He showed that each of 16 other nations—we were the wealthiest and fourth in the world population—maintained a military establishment exceeding in strength the aggregate of our Regular Army, National Guard, and Organized Reserves.

Deducting various "overheads" in officers and men required for military schools, the War Department, rivers and harbors, et cetera, MacArthur found that for tactical purposes—namely, defense of the Continental United States—we had just 3,000 officers and 55,000 men. These were scattered through the country. It was doubtful whether we could have put into the field in an emergency even a small, well-balanced force.

And yet Congress was seriously considering a 2,000-man cut in total officer strength.

MacArthur, pacing his office next to the White House and chain-smoking through a 10-inch carved Oriental cigaret holder, said:

"I have humiliated myself. . . . I have almost licked the boots of some gentlemen to get funds for the motorization and mechanization of the Army. Unless we move quickly we will be a beaten nation, paying huge indemnities after the next war. The Army is below the danger line."

It remained that way until Pearl Harbor. It was again in that condition at the time of Korea.

For his troubles MacArthur was called a warmonger by none other than the late Senator Nye, who was to become one of the outstanding isolationists of our time.

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOWEST WINNER IS A 5

THE LOWEST card that can possibly win a trick, when everybody follows suit, is a 5-spot. The player with a bit of Scotch blood in his veins may get a kick out of winning with such a low card, but there can be times when such economy is the height of extravagance. Use of a higher card on that trick, preserving the little fellow for a lead toward some card in the opposite hand, may prove utterly necessary in making the contract. It may furnish the only chance to create a needed entry.

	♠ A Q 8 2 ♥ J 2 ♦ 8 6 4 ♣ J 9 6 5
♠ 10 9 7 5 ♥ K 8 ♦ K 10 7 ♣ Q 10 8 2	N W E S	♠ 6 4 3 ♥ Q 10 7 4 3 ♦ J 5 3 2 ♣ 3
	♠ K J ♥ A 9 6 5 ♦ A Q 9 ♣ A K 7 4

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Several pairs in the Atlantic Championship tournament aboard the great American peace ship Independence, on its maiden Mediterranean cruise, bid that deal the same way. Spades were led against the contract in most cases, but at two tables West opened the club 2. In both instances the 5 was played from the dummy and East put on his singleton 3.

One of these declarers, thrilled with the chance to take the cheapest trick possible No Trump trick on which all follow suit, put his 4 on the trick. Then he studied his situation, but could find no happy answer. Desperate, he tried the low finesse of the heart 9, which fell to the K. He took the returned spade with the J and scored the K. Hoping to get back in dummy, he led the club 7 toward the J, but West won with the Q. Blocked from dummy, the spade A and Q were useless, so he went down two.

Darius V. Phillips, of Washington, Deputy Director of Radio Free Europe, who won the tournament, did not indulge in the extravagance of winning the first trick too cheaply. He took it in his own hand with the club A, so he could preserve his two low clubs. He cashed the spade K and J, then led the club 4. You will see that this made him sure of nine tricks, with four in spades, three in clubs and one each with the red aces. As he said after the hand, the lead of the club 2 marked the Q as with West, so that he knew the J would be a dummy entry.

Tomorrow's Problem

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

May sons resent being waited on?

Answer: Yes, and often justifiably. A mother who is at heart unwilling to see her son become independent of her may unconsciously try to prolong his childish helplessness by "waiting on him hand and foot." She believes it is unselfish love that makes her do this and feels bitterly aggrieved if the boy lets her know that it annoys him. But he is not really ungrateful—he is trying to defend himself against an urge (which has its echo in his own heart) that seeks to retard or to deprive him of his manhood. A man who enjoys such ministrations too much is a poor risk as a husband.

Is "style" achieved deliberately?

Answer: Usually not in creative work like writing, painting or composing music. In a recent radio interview, a composer known for his "distinctive style" said that he never thought of anything when writing music except how best to express the feeling he was trying to convey, and the same is true in general of painters and of writers in words. Thinking about styles tends to make you feel selfconscious and seems insincere and artificial. Once you have learned the technique of your medium, you will be most original when you try least to be so.

Is prejudice waning?

Answer: It would seem so, reports Rose Zeligs in the Journal of Genetic Psychology, on the basis of the difference between answers given to questionnaires by twelve-year-old school children in 1943-4 and those given in 1931. Explaining their attitudes toward members of other groups, both sets of children cited "customs, costumes, cleanliness, language, religion, character qualities and civilization," but "the recent trends are away from prejudice because of racial and physical differences." The change has been slow but is greater than is generally realized.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (INS)—When I called Ann Southern to ask her if she were going all the way to jolly old England to make her movie comeback after her long illness, she laughed:

"How did you know about that, Louella? It isn't definite yet—but it is true I've had an offer from John Woolf, the London producer.

"He wants me to co-star with John Mills in 'Red Pepper,' one of three Noel Coward short stories he is packaging in one picture on the order of 'Trio.' Victor Saville is set to direct after he finishes the Merle Oberon drama."

Ann is naturally excited about the deal—particularly about working with John Mills who was recently voted England's most popular actor. But Annie has to be sure of that August starting date. She has Hollywood commitments to fill.

• — • — •

Literally hundreds — and I mean hundreds — of young actors were interviewed by Bill Perlberg and George Seaton for the Benny Fields role in "Somebody Loves Me."

They want somebody not too well known to play opposite Betty Hutton who, as you know, is playing Blossom Seeley. Then, just by accident, somebody happened to mention Ralph Meeker — and at this writing he's not for the job. He's been testing for two days.

Who's he? Ralph has been on the MGM lot doing too much after playing a small part in "Teresa." He is six feet tall, good looking — and what's more important, a good actor.

• — • — •

Come June, Thelma Ritter, who hasn't been feeling well, will be right back in Hollywood to work for Charles Brackett in "Marriage Broker," Brackett's first for 20th.

Charlie talked to Thelma over long distance and she said she will be ready to work at that time. She'll rest until "Marriage Broker" is ready to go.

Another thing Charlie told me is that he was lucky enough to get George Cukor to direct "Marriage Broker." Since "Born Yesterday," every company has been courting George.

Humphrey Bogart and his Baby Bacall are having a fling in Rome. But they are so lonesome for their two-year-old Baby Bogart in Hollywood that they've cabled for little Stevie, his nurse, and grandmother (Lauren's mother) to meet them in London in June.

First, the Bogarts have some traveling to do which would be too hard on their son.

Next week they leave to join Katherine Hepburn and John Huston in Africa to start shooting "African Queen." Yes, the backing on that picture is now okay. For a while it was feared the money wouldn't be forthcoming.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Here's a sign of spring around the Crosby house that must make Bing feel a little older. His 18-year-old son, Gary, is telephoning Waverly Scott, Zachary's daughter, and buying her ice cream sodas.

Laurence Olivier is considering the Claude Rains role in "Darkness At Noon" in London. Claude is a terrific hit in this part on Broadway.

Rochester, Joe Louis and other prominent negroes are reported planning to manufacture a new sports model automobile.

It's redhaired Starlet Susan Morrow who brings Pat Dorian up from San Diego, where he's with the Navy, every weekend. Pat at one time had eyes only for Sharman Douglas.

Jane Wyman is talking about a European vacation after she completes "Blue Veil." Hear there's an attraction in London.

Lawrence Tierney, 20 pounds lighter, having a snack with Pat Buckner at the Gourmet-Beverly—and Cesar Romero with Beverly Stoner at the same place. This pair seems to be a steady woosome.

Although John Carroll flew to make a personal appearance in Shreveport, La., his physician, Dr. Joel Pressman, told him he had to take a rest when he returns to Hollywood from these one-day appearances. He hadn't recovered from a siege of virus when he went into the Flamingo at Las Vegas.

Joe Mankiewicz leaves Hollywood for his permanent residence in New York $88,000 richer. He's just sold his house in Holmby Hills.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

According to estimates, 1,000,000 persons die annually in the United States.

Rain gauges were used in Korea in 1442, some 200 years before rainfall records were kept in Europe.

Estimated workers employed in processing and delivering U. S. dairy products total 250,000.

LOWEST WINNER IS A 5

THE LOWEST card that can possibly win a trick, when everybody follows suit, is a 5-spot. The player with a bit of Scotch blood in his veins may get a kick out of winning with such a low card, but there can be times when such economy is the height of extravagance. Use of a higher card on that trick, preserving the little fellow for a lead toward some card in the opposite hand, may prove utterly necessary in making the contract. It may furnish the only chance to create a needed entry.

	♠ A Q 8 2 ♥ J 2 ♦ 8 6 4 ♣ J 9 6 5
♠ 10 9 7 5 ♥ K 8 ♦ K 10 7 ♣ Q 10 8 2	N W E S	♠ 6 4 3 ♥ Q 10 7 4 3 ♦ J 5 3 2 ♣ 3
	♠ K J ♥ A 9 6 5 ♦ A Q 9 ♣ A K 7 4

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Several pairs in the Atlantic Championship tournament aboard the great American peace ship Independence, on its maiden Mediterranean cruise, bid that deal the same way. Spades were led against the contract in most cases, but at two tables West opened the club 2. In both instances the 5 was played from the dummy and East put on his singleton 3.

One of these declarers, thrilled with the chance to take the cheapest trick possible No Trump trick on which all follow suit, put his 4 on the trick. Then he studied his situation, but could find no happy answer. Desperate, he tried the low finesse of the heart 9, which fell to the K. He took the returned spade with the J and scored the K. Hoping to get back in dummy, he led the club 7 toward the J, but West won with the Q. Blocked from dummy, the spade A and Q were useless, so he went down two.

Darius V. Phillips, of Washington, Deputy Director of Radio Free Europe, who won the tournament, did not indulge in the extravagance of winning the first trick too cheaply. He took it in his own hand with the club A, so he could preserve his two low clubs. He cashed the spade K and J, then led the club 4. You will see that this made him sure of nine tricks, with four in spades, three in clubs and one each with the red aces. As he said after the hand, the lead of the club 2 marked the Q as with West, so that he knew the J would be a dummy entry.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ 10 8 6 5 ♥ Q J 8 ♦ A 7 6 4 ♣ A 10

How should South play for his 6-Spades after the club K lead?

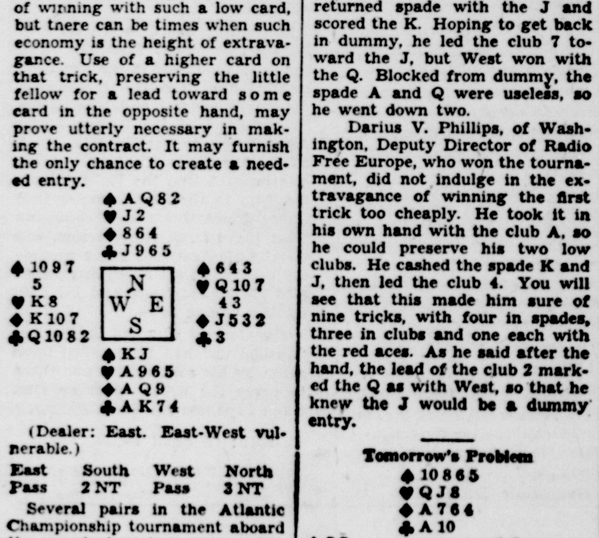
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



May sons resent being waited on?

Answer: Yes, and often justifiably. A mother who is at heart unwilling to see her son become independent of her may unconsciously try to prolong his childish helplessness by "waiting on him hand and foot." She believes it is unselfish love that makes her do this and feels bitterly aggrieved if the boy lets her know that it annoys him. But he is not really ungrateful—he is trying to defend himself against an urge (which has its echo in his own heart) that seeks to retard or to deprive him of his manhood. A man who enjoys such ministrations too much is a poor risk as a husband.

Is "style" achieved deliberately?

Answer: Usually not in creative work like writing, painting or composing music. In a recent radio interview, a composer known for his "distinctive style" said that he never thought of anything when writing music except how best to express the feeling he was trying to convey, and the same is true in general of painters and of writers in words. Thinking about styles tends to make you feel selfconscious and seems insincere and artificial. Once you have learned the technique of your medium, you will be most original when you try least to be so.

Is prejudice waning?

Answer: It would seem so, reports Rose Zeligs in the Journal of Genetic Psychology, on the basis of the difference between answers given to questionnaires by twelve-year-old school children in 1943-4 and those given in 1931. Explaining their attitudes toward members of other groups, both sets of children cited "customs, costumes, cleanliness, language, religion, character qualities and civilization," but "the recent trends are away from prejudice because of racial and physical differences." The change has been slow but is greater than is generally realized.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 (INS)—When I called Ann Southern to ask her if she were going all the way to jolly old England to make her movie comeback after her long illness, she laughed:

"How did you know about that, Louella? It isn't definite yet—but it is true I've had an offer from John Woolf, the London producer.

"He wants me to co-star with John Mills in 'Red Pepper,' one of three Noel Coward short stories he is packaging in one picture on the order of 'Trio.' Victor Saville is set to direct after he finishes the Merle Oberon drama."

Ann is naturally excited about the deal—particularly about working with John Mills who was recently voted England's most popular actor. But Annie has to be sure of that August starting date. She has Hollywood commitments to fill.

• — • — •

Literally hundreds — and I mean hundreds — of young actors were interviewed by Bill Perlberg and George Seaton for the Benny Fields role in "Somebody Loves Me."

They want somebody not too well known to play opposite Betty Hutton who, as you know, is playing Blossom Seeley. Then, just by accident, somebody happened to mention Ralph Meeker — and at this writing he's not for the job. He's been testing for two days.

Who's he? Ralph has been on the MGM lot doing too much after playing a small part in "Teresa." He is six feet tall, good looking — and what's more important, a good actor.

• — • — •

Come June, Thelma Ritter, who hasn't been feeling well, will be right back in Hollywood to work for Charles Brackett in "Marriage Broker," Brackett's first for 20th.

Charlie talked to Thelma over long distance and she said she will be ready to work at that time. She'll rest until "Marriage Broker" is ready to go.

Another thing Charlie told me is that he was lucky enough to get George Cukor to direct "Marriage Broker." Since "Born Yesterday," every company has been courting George.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

THERE were seven of them, hugging the mud of a courtyard in Frankfurt. It was March, 1945, and their head man, Gen. Patton, was plunging deep into Germany. Somewhere out of their sight a Kraut pulled a lanyard.

The shell landed in the middle of them. Five were killed right off. The sixth died the next day. The seventh, Jimmy Cohen, a Brooklyn kid, opened his eyes and saw the dead ones around him and the one who was too far gone.

Saw something else, too. A few feet away from him were his legs. He said only one thing before he passed out.

"Thank God," he said, "Could have been worse."

Cohen's a busy fellow these days, what with his family — his father Rabbi Nissim Cohen, his steadfast blonde wife, and his two fine boys. He has a crusade.

But before he could embrace the crusade, or do anything about it, there were the long months in hospitals, getting ready for and then learning to use the two prosthetic legs the Veterans Administration provided for him.

At the Army hospital in Atlantic City, Cohen helped form a small group of fellow amps, "The Bilateral Leg and Arm Amputee Club." He and the others became authorities on vets benefits, among other things, and fought a long and fine, though unsuccessful, battle to keep that Boardwalk Army hospital operating in the face of shrinking budgets.

His club scattered. But Cohen was still full of drive. He joined the National Amputation Foundation's chapter of the Disabled War Veterans in New York and since then he has had a job touring the hospitals of this general area, showing a lot of heartsick guys by his very presence that they're still a part of the team.

"When we were hospitalized, we didn't have much to turn to," he says. "Sure, people were sad and kind, but what we learned we had to learn the hard way. Well, there's no reason why any guy today should have to do what we did, when we're around to help them.

"They can talk to us. We answer the questions they won't ask the doctors or the nurses. Couple of weeks ago a bunch of us went to Washington, Walter Reed General. A lot of amps from Korea are down there. You should've seen the looks on their faces when they saw us walking, running and jumping around the place."

It isnt just a show-off job, to prove that artificial legs and arms actually work. The chapter and foundation has other ends in view. In the course of their extensive rehabilitation program they operate a placement service to enable amps to gain employment, and they keep a watchdog eye on legislation affecting amps.

It takes a little money to keep a fellow like Jimmy Cohen gainfully employed in a job which, like so few others, keeps not only him and his family going but is of striking importance to so many other men who have come back from war, and the roughest police action in history, wondering if it was worth while.

In New York, and I suppose this is true elsewhere in the country, Cohen and his associates in the amputation chapter are trying to build a clubhouse to serve their wingless and legless buddies.

A lot of good people are helping them do it, but, of course, there are never enough who remember. The boys themselves help the cause. Every year, since shortly after W. W. II, they've been playing a ball game in the Polo Grounds to raise a little dough for the clubhouse-to-be.

"It's going to be down-town when we get it," Cohen says. "It's going to have concrete ramps, a kitchen, a gym, a swimming pool, and everything else. It'll take us a long time, sure. So does heaven. But when it does come to pass, there won't be anything like it anywhere."

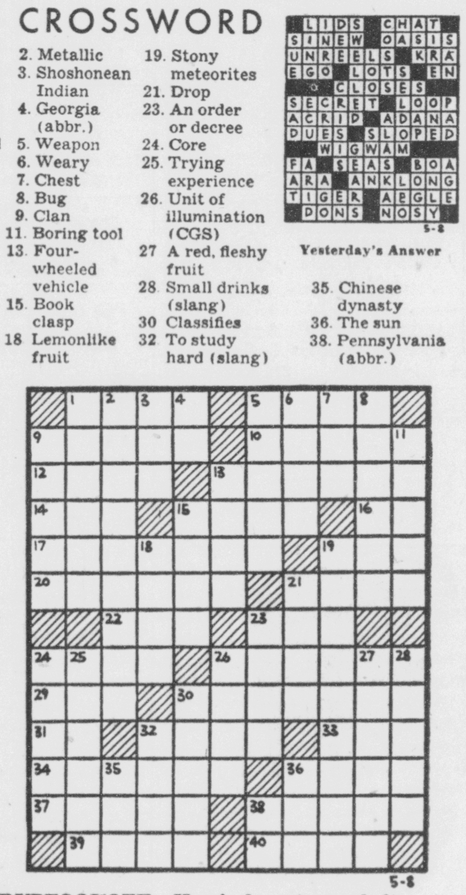
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

S K H S I A H X A V K W X K Y E N N E V M
I H W Z Y T N O T S R V A N N I A U Y E U L A O —
M E T S K A R.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

THERE were seven of them, hugging the mud of a courtyard in Frankfurt. It was March, 1945, and their head man, Gen. Patton, was plunging deep into Germany. Somewhere out of their sight a Kraut pulled a lanyard.

The shell landed in the middle of them. Five were killed right off. The sixth died the next day. The seventh, Jimmy Cohen, a Brooklyn kid, opened his eyes and saw the dead ones around him and the one who was too far gone.

Saw something else, too. A few feet away from him were his legs. He said only one thing before he passed out.

"Thank God," he said, "Could have been worse."

Cohen's a busy fellow these days, what with his family — his father Rabbi Nissim Cohen, his steadfast blonde wife, and his two fine boys. He has a crusade.

But before he could embrace the crusade, or do anything about it, there were the long months in hospitals, getting ready for and then learning to use the two prosthetic legs the Veterans Administration provided for him.

At the Army hospital in Atlantic City, Cohen helped form a small group of fellow amps, "The Bilateral Leg and Arm Amputee Club." He and the others became authorities on vets benefits, among other things, and fought a long and fine, though unsuccessful, battle to keep that Boardwalk Army hospital operating in the face of shrinking budgets.

His club scattered. But Cohen was still full of drive. He joined the National Amputation Foundation's chapter of the Disabled War Veterans in New York and since then he has had a job touring the hospitals of this general area, showing a lot of heartsick guys by his very presence that they're still a part of the team.

"When we were hospitalized, we didn't have much to turn to," he says. "Sure, people were sad and kind, but what we learned we had to learn the hard way. Well, there's no reason why any guy today should have to do what we did, when we're around to help them.

"They can talk to us. We answer the questions they won't ask the doctors or the nurses. Couple of weeks ago a bunch of us went to Washington, Walter Reed General. A lot of amps from Korea are down there. You should've seen the looks on their faces when they saw us walking, running and jumping around the place."

It isnt just a show-off job, to prove that artificial legs and arms actually work. The chapter and foundation has other ends in view. In the course of their extensive rehabilitation program they operate a placement service to enable amps to gain employment, and they keep a watchdog eye on legislation affecting amps.

It takes a little money to keep a fellow like Jimmy Cohen gainfully employed in a job which, like so few others, keeps not only him and his family going but is of striking importance to so many other men who have come back from war, and the roughest police action in history, wondering if it was worth while.

In New York, and I suppose this is true elsewhere in the country, Cohen and his associates in the amputation chapter are trying to build a clubhouse to serve their wingless and legless buddies.

A lot of good people are helping them do it, but, of course, there are never enough who remember. The boys themselves help the cause. Every year, since shortly after W. W. II, they've been playing a ball game in the Polo Grounds to raise a little dough for the clubhouse-to-be.

"It's going to be down-town when we get it," Cohen says. "It's going to have concrete ramps, a kitchen, a gym, a swimming pool, and everything else. It'll take us a long time, sure. So does heaven. But when it does come to pass, there won't be anything like it anywhere."

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, George S. Easton, who passed away one year ago today, May 8th, 1950.

As we loved you so we miss you
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
God knows how much we miss you,
Never shall your memory fade.
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
To the spot where you are laid.
Sadly missed by his Wife & Children

Cards of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all who were so kind to us following the death of our husband and father, Hendricks Lantz. We especially thank Rev. Linger, our friends and neighbors who sent floral tributes and expressions of sympathy, the choir, pallbearers, and those who donated the use of their cars.

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, George S. Easton, who passed away one year ago today, May 8th, 1950.

As we loved you so we miss you
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
God knows how much we miss you,
Never shall your memory fade.
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
To the spot where you are laid.
Sadly missed by his Wife & Children

Cards of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all who were so kind to us following the death of our husband and father, Hendricks Lantz. We especially thank Rev. Linger, our friends and neighbors who sent floral tributes and expressions of sympathy, the choir, pallbearers and those who donated the use of their cars.
Mrs. Hendricks Lantz & family

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, George S. Easton, who passed away one year ago today, May 8th, 1950.

As we loved you so we miss you
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
God knows how much we miss you,
Never shall your memory fade.
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
To the spot where you are laid.

Sadly missed by his Wife & Children

Cards of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all who were so kind to us following the death of our husband and father, Hendricks Lantz. We especially thank Rev. Linger, our friends and neighbors who sent floral tributes and expressions of sympathy, the choir, pallbearers and those who donated the use of their cars.

Mrs. Hendricks Lantz & family

Market Prices, Led By Oils, Steels And Rails, Decline

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP) —Prices drifted lower on the stock market today. A last minuet recovery lifted many issues from the low points of the day but didn't have quite the zip to shove them to the gain side.

Most of the losses were measured in fractions. There were deeper dives here and there, however. Douglas, for instance, lost $3.50 at $100.50 and Johns Manville dropped $1.25 at $57.75.

The gains were in equally small figures but Cities Service ran amuck with a $4.87 advance at $109.37.

The volume was 1,580,000 shares, the slowest day since the 1,520,000 of April 25.

The decline was nothing startling and most traders took the view that it was in the nature of a little shakedown after recent sharp advances.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 20 cents at $96.90. The sharpest drop was in the industrial category—30 cents. The rail average was down 20 cents and the utilities 10 cents.

Statistics showed 552 declines and 364 advances with 1,144 issues traded. There were 31 new 1951 highs and 28 stocks hit a new 1951 low.

There was not a great deal of news that had an immediate affect on the market.

Steel, oil, rail and motor stocks led the decline.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republican and Youngstown Sheet all lost fractions. Sinclair, Standard Oil (N J) and Texas were down while Gulf Oil advanced slightly.

Southern Railway dropped $1 at $55.50 and Nickel Plate gained $1 at $215. Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio and Union Pacific dropped fractions and New York Central and Pennsylvania were steady.

General Motors, Chrysler and Studebaker took losses of a few cents and Packard moved ahead 12 cents at $5.37.

Chicago Board Of Trade

CHICAGO, May 7 (AP)—Trading in grains today spun around a note Russia delivered to the American ambassador in Moscow.

The market was lower during the morning when it wasn't known what the note was about, and some traders felt it might open up an avenue for peaceable settlement of the Korean conflict. Later, when it became known the note discussed the Japanese peace treaty,

Market Prices, Led By Oils, Steels And Rails, Decline

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP) —Prices drifted lower on the stock market today. A last minuet recovery lifted many issues from the low points of the day but didn't have quite the zip to shove them to the gain side.

Most of the losses were measured in fractions. There were deeper dives here and there, however. Douglas, for instance, lost $3.50 at $100.50 and Johns Manville dropped $1.25 at $57.75.

The gains were in equally small figures but Cities Service ran amuck with a $4.87 advance at $109.37.

The volume was 1,580,000 shares, the slowest day since the 1,520,000 of April 25.

The decline was nothing startling and most traders took the view that it was in the nature of a little shakedown after recent sharp advances.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 20 cents at $96.90. The sharpest drop was in the industrial category—30 cents. The rail average was down 20 cents and the utilities 10 cents.

Statistics showed 552 declines and 364 advances with 1,144 issues traded. There were 31 new 1951 highs and 28 stocks hit a new 1951 low.

There was not a great deal of news that had an immediate affect on the market.

Steel, oil, rail and motor stocks led the decline.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republican and Youngstown Sheet all lost fractions. Sinclair, Standard Oil (N J) and Texas were down while Gulf Oil advanced slightly.

Southern Railway dropped $1 at $55.50 and Nickel Plate gained $1 at $215. Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio and Union Pacific dropped fractions and New York Central and Pennsylvania were steady.

General Motors, Chrysler and Studebaker took losses of a few cents and Packard moved ahead 12 cents at $5.37.

Chicago Board Of Trade

CHICAGO, May 7 (AP)—Trading in grains today spun around a note Russia delivered to the American ambassador in Moscow.

The market was lower during the morning when it wasn't known what the note was about, and some traders felt it might open up an avenue for peaceable settlement of the Korean conflict. Later, when it became known the note discussed the Japanese peace treaty, prices rallied.

Market Prices, Led By Oils, Steels And Rails, Decline

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP) —Prices drifted lower on the stock market today. A last minuet recovery lifted many issues from the low points of the day but didn't have quite the zip to shove them to the gain side.

Most of the losses were measured in fractions. There were deeper dives here and there, however. Douglas, for instance, lost $3.50 at $100.50 and Johns Manville dropped $1.25 at $57.75.

The gains were in equally small figures but Cities Service ran amuck with a $4.87 advance at $109.37.

The volume was 1,580,000 shares, the slowest day since the 1,520,000 of April 25.

The decline was nothing startling and most traders took the view that it was in the nature of a little shakedown after recent sharp advances.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 20 cents at $96.90. The sharpest drop was in the industrial category—30 cents. The rail average was down 20 cents and the utilities 10 cents.

Statistics showed 552 declines and 364 advances with 1,144 issues traded. There were 31 new 1951 highs and 28 stocks hit a new 1951 low.

There was not a great deal of news that had an immediate affect on the market.

Steel, oil, rail and motor stocks led the decline.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republican and Youngstown Sheet all lost fractions. Sinclair, Standard Oil (N J) and Texas were down while Gulf Oil advanced slightly.

Southern Railway dropped $1 at $55.50 and Nickel Plate gained $1 at $215. Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio and Union Pacific dropped fractions and New York Central and Pennsylvania were steady.

General Motors, Chrysler and Studebaker took losses of a few cents and Packard moved ahead 12 cents at $5.37.

Chicago Board Of Trade

CHICAGO, May 7 (AP)—Trading in grains today spun around a note Russia delivered to the American ambassador in Moscow.

The market was lower during the morning when it wasn't known what the note was about, and some traders felt it might open up an avenue for peaceable settlement of the Korean conflict. Later, when it became known the note discussed the Japanese peace treaty, prices rallied.

City Orders Five-Cents Tax On Adult Recreation Tickets

Funds Earmarked For Department Expansion

An ordinance placing a five cent tax on all adults attending recreation events, shows or entertainments within the city, earmarking proceeds for the use of the City Recreation Department, was passed by the Mayor and Council last night.

No opposition was voiced to the proposal from the time Commissioner William H. Buchholtz first moved for the adoption of the ordinance until its final and unanimous passage about 15 minutes later.

Officials pointed out that Commissioner Buchholtz had made an attempt several years ago to have the ordinance adopted in a move to make all departments as nearly self sustaining as possible.

The idea was originally suggested some years ago by Robert V. "Sparky" Chisholm as a means of helping finance the City Recreation Department.

Commends Plan

Prior to final passage, Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long pointed out that the plan has the approval of Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director, and many recreation groups in the city.

Commendation for the action was voiced by Albert S. Paye, representing the National Hot Stove League, who said amusements should help pay the way of a recreation program.

Paye predicted that within a few years the recreation program should become self-sustaining.

The ordinance provides that from and after May 15, there shall be charged and collected five cents as an admission tax for each adult attending any recreational event, show or entertainment held in the city limits.

It also provides a control system for admission tickets, with numbers registered with the city clerk.

Each person, firm, corporation or organization must remit to the City Clerk all sums collected for such admissions upon the 15th and last day of each month.

Fund Is Earmarked

No admission tax, however, is to be collected on tickets sold by any motion picture theater or for any lecture on scientific, historical, benevolent, artistic, religious, educational, political or literary subjects.

Sums derived from the tax will be maintained in a separate fund and paid to the Recreational Program Director of the city, in addition to such funds as may be appropriated from the general fund for the recreation department.

Violation of the ordinance calls for a fine of not less than $50 or more than $100 for each offense.

Agreement Reached

The passage of the adult tax on recreation events including bingo games, will allow the recreation department to keep its budget for next year at the $20,000 mark.

City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson estimated the adult admission tax should bring in about $8,000 a year.

Hoey reported receipts from Penn Avenue Field and other functions sponsored by the rec department should range from $7,000 to $10,000 a year.

Details of the agreement on the allocation of funds for recreation have been worked out in recent weeks between city officials, the rec department and officials of sports groups of the city.

Voluntary Price Group Named

Personnel of the Mayor's Volunteer Office of Price Stabilization were approved by the Mayor and Council last night.

They include Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, chairman; Howard M. Spiker, local real estate agent; John D. Liebau, manager of the Queen City Dairy; J. Goodloe Jackson, secretary of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland; Harry Williams, of the G. C. Murphy Company; Mrs. G. Melville Gemmill; F. Patrick Allender, business agent of Carpenters Local 1024, and Harry K. Poling, manager of the South End Market.

Formation of the local committee to fight inflation on the community level was suggested by Hugo Hoffman, state director of price stabilization.

The committee will keep the public informed on the progress in anti-inflationary moves and urge public action to keep prices down.

PMA Had 341 County Farms In 1950 Plan

70 Per Cent Of Land Improved

During 1950, soil and water conservation practices were carried out on 341 Allegany County farms by farmers cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation Program. These farms comprise about 70 per cent of all county farmland.

These farms contained 21,556 acres of crop land and orchards and 9,897 acres of permanent pasture in the county.

Practices Listed

Practices carried out by these farmers, Albert O'Neal, chairman of the Production and Marketing Administration committee, explained, were conducted on a share-the-cost basis. For the country as a whole, the government's share averaged about 50 per cent of the out-of-pocket cost. Each farmer paid his share of the cost and did most of the work. The practices had to conform to established standards and specifications before they were approved.

Among the conservation activities of the cooperating Allegany County farmers during the past year were—use of 5,227 tons of liming material and 519 tons of phosphate and 151 tons of potash, applied to permanent pasture. Hay crops were established as were cover crops in orchards.

In another activity, 18 farms established 246 acres of contour strip cropping, receiving technical advice from the Soil Conservation Service. Two farms, through guidance of the Soil Conservation Service, put in terraces to divert excess water.

Ditches Installed

Open and tile drainage ditches were installed on 12 farms. An estimated 550 acres of county farm land is drained by these ditches. As a protection to land over the winter, farmers seeded 109 acres of crimson clover, vetch and rye grass to hold their soil.

Other practices performed by Allegany County farmers through the 1950 Agricultural Conservation Program were sweet clover turned for green manure, 53 acres of weeds mowed in permanent pastures, 53 acres of new permanent pasture seeded, 1,200 forest trees planted as means of preventing erosion and providing windbreaks.

"I am proud of the conservation work accomplished during 1950 in Allegany County and the county may well be proud of it, too," Chairman O'Neal said. "This work has improved the farms of the county and made more permanent the agriculture of the whole area. Instead of our farms becoming less and less productive, erosion has been checked, organic matter restored to the soil and the productivity of the land improved.

"Now that the nation especially needs the backing of a strong agriculture, the conservation practices carried out have contributed a great deal toward giving our country the strength on the farm front that is needed," O'Neal concluded.

The chairman also reported that during the current national emergency the County PMA office at 37 Washington Street will remain open from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. on Saturdays, in addition to the hours from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Plans Square Dance

An old-fashioned square dance will be held Thursday evening from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock at Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, home, Union Street.

Members of the drum corps held a rehearsal last night and will attend a party this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Cumberland Brewery. Four members donated blood last night at Memorial Hospital. They include Robert Goss, Michael Logston, Raymond Wempe and Vermont Zollner.

North End Playground Group To Receive Charter Tonight

The North End Playground Association will receive its incorporation charter at a formal presentation this evening at 8 o'clock in the Field House. Norman E. Getty, will be guest speaker. The non-profit, non-stock organization is cooperating with the city recreation department.

County Commissioner James Orr will present the charter to Ralph Knieriem, president of the association. Other officers are Joseph Richards, vice-president, Mrs. William Roeder, second vice-president and corresponding secretary and Frank Kaplon, treasurer. A portion of the program will be broadcast by Mal Campbell and Russel Reynolds.

Guests will include Mayor Thomas S. Post and members of City Council, the Allegany County Commissioners, Edmund Hoey, director of city recreation and members of the recreation Board, Rev. Norman Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church, Rev. Simonitsch, St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, and Rabbi H. J. Wilner, B'er Chayim Congregation.

Edwin C. Horchler and Paul Fletcher, local attorneys, advised the association in legal matters. The North End Association weekly entertains an average of 500 children, and hopes to broaden its program during the summer months. Last year's Halloween Mardi Gras drew a crowd of 4,500 children. Although the association sponsors and organizes this affair, over 150 merchants contribute to its success annually.

The Field House serves as a meeting place for Brownies, 4-H Girls, Homemakers, and Civil Defense. The sub-teen and teen-age square dance groups meet weekly and dancing instruction is available on Saturdays. Friday night is "movie night" at the Field House.

Refreshments will be served tonight and all members and officials from other playgrounds are cordially invited.

NEW MAGISTRATE—William E. Meagher, 65, Cresap Park, has assumed his duties as trial magistrate at Cresaptown, succeeding Roy Bowman. Mr. Meagher, a native of Lonaconing, has been employed at the Celanese plant here for about 18 years and is a former resident of Valley Street, Cumberland. He is a past president of Celanese Local No. 1874, TWUA, and still holds office in the organization. Mr. Meagher has been a life-long member of the Republican party and this is the first time he has held public office.

Red Cross Begins Enlargement Of Canteen Service

School Lunch Groups To Take Training

The enlargement of the Allegany County Red Cross Chapter Canteen Service has begun this week with classes being held for the 104 workers in the county school hot lunch program to participate in the service.

The Board of Education has offered the facilities of the hot lunch program, school equipment and personnel for use in training additional persons in the canteen work, Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, said yesterday.

Mrs. Eaton In Charge

Mrs. Gladys M. Eaton, supervisor of the school hot lunch program, is in charge of the training classes which will be conducted throughout the county until all the school workers have received the required 10 hours of training for a certificate.

The expansion program for canteen service is a part of the overall Civil Defense setup in which the Red Cross is participating, including home nursing training and the plans for a new blood bank unit in the county.

At present the Red Cross canteen service has 20 canteens established in Cumberland in event of an emergency and each community in the county is also equipped for emergency service with trained personnel and facilities available.

After the current canteen program is set up it will become a part of the planned blood bank unit which is now in preliminary stages of construction.

Training Is Outlined

Among subjects to be taught in the training courses will be mass feeding and cooking, types of foods to be served, preparation in assuming responsibility in event of any emergency, kitchen schedules, sanitation, marketing, outdoor preparation, infant feeding, first aid and accident prevention and other pertinent emergency preparations.

Mrs. Witherup last night said the local chapter of the Red Cross is most appreciative of the cooperation given it by the Board of Education and its personnel.

Alumni To Honor Fort Hill Students

The Penn Avenue-Fort Hill Alumni Association will give recognition to senior students for scholastic and extra-curricular activities at a "Senior Letter" dinner today at 6:15 p. m. at the Centre Street Methodist Church.

Associate Judge George Henderson will be principal speaker.

Honor will be paid all athletes including the boys' and girls' bowling teams, Student Council (monitors and ushers), mimeograph, stage and projection crews, cheerleaders, vocal and instrumental music groups, the staff of the school paper "The Sentinel" and others.

Winfield H. Adam, executive secretary of Central YMCA, will be toastmaster, and Lester Hudson, president of the association, will preside. Mrs. Bertie Ranck will play dinner music.

A faculty quartet, composed of Philip Kester, John McVicker, Adell Haines and Frank Winsheimer, will sing. Miss Marilyn Ashbaugh will accompany the quartet.

Gephart Delegate To Attend PTA Meeting

Allegany County PTA will send a delegate from Gephart Grade School to the summer conference at College Park in July. An alternate has been chosen from Mount Royal Grade School.

The delegate was chosen last night at a meeting of the Council at West Side School. Midland will send a county delegate with Cresaptown as alternate.

Six partial-paid delegates will go from Beall Elementary, Cresaptown, Mt. Savage, Penn Avenue, State Teacher's Laboratory, and Virginia Avenue. These delegates are given the trip as reward to schools that had five representatives at council meetings during the past year.

South End Group To Raise $3,000 For Playgrounds

Three-Day Carnival To Begin Thursday

The South Cumberland Businessmen's Association will endeavor to raise $3,000 for six South End playgrounds with a "Fun Night" carnival this weekend at Penn Avenue field.

Open to the public the carnival will embrace rides, concessions, games, refreshment stands and special entertainment on each of the three nights beginning Thursday.

Includes Band Concerts

The program committee has arranged for pony rides, children's train rides, car rides and a merry-go-round, skill games, bingo and at least 12 concession stands. The special programs include a band concert Thursday night by the Fort Hill High School senior band; with a magician's show, concert by the Moose band and a small comical skit Friday night; and exhibition bouts in a boxing show Saturday evening. The carnival grounds will be open each night beginning at 7 p. m. and will close at 11 o'clock.

Tickets to the carnival will be on sale at the main gates while an advanced ticket sale is now in progress at any business establishment on Virginia Avenue.

Also a part of each evening's program will be round and square dancing with music provided by local musicians. Each dance will end with a "jam" session by the musicians, the program committee chairman noted.

A part of the evening's entertainment will be provided by numerous clowns who will parade throughout the grounds during the night.

Spiker Is Chairman

John I. Spiker is general chairman of the executive committee which is in charge of the overall planning of the program. James Weber is Finance Committee chairman; R. L. Spiker, publicity committee; George Millenson, personnel committee; Roy Knotts, music committee; Mrs. Gladys Fuller, costumes and property; H. Clifford Spiker, merchandise; Arthur C. Morgan, sideshows and booths; Roy Merritt, grounds; and Paul Shircliff, special events.

The six South End playgrounds which will receive proceeds from this benefit program are Lamont Street, Penn Avenue, Thomas Post, Virginia Avenue, Mapleside and Johnson Heights.

Council To Act On Thomas St. Relocation Plan

B & O Proposal To Be Aired Tomorrow

The Mayor and Council will hold a special meeting Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. to take definite action on a proposed agreement with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for improvements in the Thomas Street area.

Mayor Thomas S. Post, who requested the special meeting, said action to accept or reject the proposal will be taken at the meeting.

Action on the agreement was tabled last Monday to allow full council action since Commissioner George H. Tederick was absent.

Buchholtz Favors

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, who had asked immediate action on the issue last Monday again asked last night that the agreement be approved.

His motion, however, died for lack of a second.

Details of the project which would cost some $75,000 for construction and another $100,000 for land, were revealed last week.

The relocation work would include the elimination of two curves on Thomas Street to allow the B. and O. to straighten its tracks in the Thomas Street area.

The cost of the entire project would be borne by the railroad, with the agreement providing that certain properties on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street, owned by the city, be conveyed without cost to the railroad, with the railroad conveying, without cost to the city, land needed to relocate the street.

To Secure Property

In the plan, the B. and O. agrees to continue attempts to negotiate with property owners for rights of way with the city agreeing, when requested, to secure these properties by condemnation.

The B. and O. said the project is part of a long-range plan for improving its yards in Cumberland, one of its major terminals.

Banker's Art Exhibit Opens At Library

T. Victor Fier, trust officer of the First National Bank, left, and James Alfred Avirett look at several of the 43 paintings which the banker has included in his one-man exhibit at the Cumberland Free Public Library. Avirett, a member of the board of directors of the library, introduced Fier last night at a reception which marked the beginning of the show. Several hundred art enthusiasts examined the paintings last night. Fier's exhibit will run until Saturday, May 19. The exhibit includes 43 paintings, most of them done with watercolors, and nearly all scenes of the Tri-State Area. Although Fier has been painting only a few years his work is considered competent and he has sold some 15 of his paintings.

J. E. Winters Dies At Home In Midlothian

James Edward Winters, 80, Midlothian, died at his home yesterday afternoon following an illness of several months. He was a son of the late John and Ann Corrigan Winters.

A native and lifelong resident of Midlothian, he taught in Allegany County public schools for 42 years. He graduated from Beall High School under the late Judge Albert A. Doub, who was principal at the time. He attended many summer sessions at the University of Maryland. He served as Deputy Clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court and was a cashier at Grantsville State Bank for 12 years.

Survivors include one son, Stephen H. Winters, at home, two sisters, Miss Margaret H. Winters, at home, and Sister M. Joseph, Ursuline Order, Louisville, Ky. He was a member of St. Michael's Catholic Church, Frostburg.

Furniture Bids On Mt. Savage School Sought

Bids on all the furniture for the new Mt. Savage School, which will combine elementary, junior and senior high schools, will be received by the Board of Education until Tuesday, May 22, School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said yesterday.

Specifications have been sent to a large number of prospective bidders for their proposals.

Included among the furniture which the County Board of Education proposes to purchase are pupils' desks, tables and chairs, auditorium chairs, science laboratory furniture, library furniture and teachers desks and chairs.

Among the chief pupils' desks on which bids are sought are 460 17-inch unit chairs and 250 movable type 17-inch desk-chairs. A total of 550 auditorium chairs also are sought by the board.

Laboratory equipment includes two laboratory tables, two instructors' desks, one fume hood and one balance table. Chief among the library equipment which the board intends purchasing are 90 Bentwood chairs, 32 teachers' desks and 12 book shelves.

The Board of Education reserves the right to accept or reject bids on any single item or combination of items in these specifications. The bids also call for a delivery date and all bids must be firm.

Originally, Kopp said, it was hoped that the Mt. Savage School would be ready for occupancy when classes are resumed in September, but he doubts now that it can be used before the beginning of the second semester of the 1951-52 school year.

WEATHER

The weather yesterday was most unpredictable. Toward evening Cumberlanders got the impression that Fall was here. The weather station at Constitution Park showed a high of 61, a low of 44 and at 8:30 p. m. it was 55 degrees. The dew point was 49 and humidity 55 per cent. The forecast for today is fair and a little warmer in the afternoon.

Governor Vetoes State Coal And County Barbering Bills

McKeldin Says Mine Measure Discriminates

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 7—(AP)—Governor McKeldin threw out a Maryland-coal-for-Maryland bill today because it would discriminate against miners in a Garrett County community.

The measure would have required state institutions to burn coal mined in Maryland, except for emergencies.

McKeldin said in a speech last week he thought miners living in Crellin would suffer. That persuaded him to veto the act, although he he approved its general purpose.

Discriminatory Effect

He objected to "a discriminatory effect against certain people who live in Maryland and work for a Maryland concern that operates a mine that is partly in Maryland and partly in West Virginia.

"While ostensibly designed to enlarge work opportunities for Marylanders, this bill in fact would have the opposite effect," McKeldin said.

As promised, he also rejected a $5,000,000 state office building for Annapolis and almost self-government for the University of Maryland.

He also scrapped such proposals as a state youth commission, an assortment of sea food measures and several revisions in tax collecting.

Meeting the deadline for executive action, McKeldin signed 47 other measures into law that raised to 711 the number of new Maryland statutes as a result of the three-month session that ended in April. And it left 60 acts for the legislature to reconsider when it convenes again next February.

May Override Vetoes

The assembly may then exercise for the first time its right to override vetoes applied after the preceding session adjourned.

Altogether, McKeldin has rejected 65 acts of the 1951 assembly. He vetoed five during the session, and two were promptly overruled by the required three-fifths' majorities. The other three vetoes were undisturbed.

McKeldin did not sign the session's two prime horse racing measures. One boosts from 10 to 12 per cent the tax on bets at harness and half-mile tracks. It also increases track shares of the mutuels handle, but will produce an estimated $65,000 more for the state fair board and $60,000 for the general treasury.

Each of the four harness tracks will have to give the state all breakage left from paying off wagers to the next-lower dime. But the new taxing formula is expected to net each an additional $65,000 to $70,000.

The second racing act relieves mile tracks of a federal levy on their improvement funds. It changes the method of distributing the one-half of one per cent Pimlico, Laurel and Bowie must set aside from their betting pools for plant renovations.

State Collects Money

Now the state will collect the money as a tax and appropriate it as needed to the tracks. The racing commission may discontinue the tax, but until that time all improvement funds must be used within three years or yielded to the state.

McKeldin also resolved one high-level dispute over a liquor measure in favor of Comptroller J. Millard Tawes. The comptroller had backed legislation authorizing him to fix maximum discounts that may be allowed alcholic beverage retailers.

Attorney General Hall Hammond had attacked it as an unwise "price fixing" measure. Some senators had objected on the same grounds. McKeldin signed the act without comment.

Other bills passed included—HB 200—by Garrett delegation—specifying that no game regulation may be adopted which would open the squirrel season in Garrett County before October 10 of any year.

HB 407—By Whitworth—specifying that the town of Westernport shall be liable for damage suits for injury only if notice in writing is given to the mayor and council within 30 days after injury is suffered.

HB 474—by Allegany delegation—changing the date of Cumberland city elections from the third Tuesday of March to the third Tuesday of June of each even year, excepting that it will not affect the scheduled 1952 election.

HB 523—by Allegany delegation—authorizing the city of Cumberland by public referendum to amend its charter.

New York Chain Leases Store Site

Jules Chain Store Corporation, a New York corporation with headquarters at 641 Sixth Avenue, New York City, has acquired an eight-year and nine-month lease on the property at 82 Baltimore Street, according to a lease recorded yesterday in the office of the clerk of circuit court.

Allan T. Hirsh, Ellinor O. Hirsh and Jesse Hirsh, owners of the business property, entered into the lease with the New York firm.

Under terms of the lease, the New York corporation will pay $400 per month rent until January 31, 1955, and $500 per month from February 1, 1955, until the expiration of the lease on January 31, 1960.

Also filed in the clerk's office yesterday was a bill of sale under which the Jules Chain Store Corporation will purchase the chattels and fixtures of Debbie Apparel, Inc., at 82 Baltimore Street. The sale price for the chattels and fixtures is $4,500. Debbie Apparel, Inc., which formerly operated a store at the Baltimore Street location, has it headquarters at 37 West 35th Street, New York City.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Wesleyan Service Guild will hold a rummange sale today at 7 p. m. in the basement of Centre Street Methodist Church.

The M. Y. F. of Central Methodist Church will hold a bake sale at Coyle's Furniture Store, 45 Baltimore Street, at 10 a. m. Saturday.

The Auxiliary of the Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company will meet at 8 p. m. today at the Fire Hall.

The Western Maryland Wild Life Federation will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the Square Circle Association club house in Eckhart.

City Eligible List Filed With Council

Civil Service Board Shows Only One Man Passed Police Test

The Civil Service Commission yesterday certified the names of 21 persons as eligible for appointment to positions as fire chief, assistant fire chief and probationary police and firemen.

The list was accepted and ordered posted by unanimous action of the Mayor and Council. It includes, in order of their standings:

FIRE CHIEF—Virgil A. Parker, James A. Jackson, J. T. Defibaugh and Robert C. Long.

ASSISTANT FIRE CHIEF—Virgil A. Parker, James A. Jackson, Robert C. Long, Alvey Poole, Vincent H. Wegman and Thomas W. Lindner.

POLICE—Harry Lee Ises.

FIREMEN — Albert Snyder, James H. Hunter, Jacob W. Winters, Eugene P. Natale, Louis E. Hartung, Robert S. Wigfield, Carl E. Williams, Russell L. Livengood, Robert J. Washabaugh and Howard W. Cunningham.

The results of the examination will pave the way for permanent appointments in the Fire Department, where at present top officers are serving under temporary appointments.

Upon the retirement of Acting Fire Chief William L. Lindner in March, followed by the resignation of Assistant Fire Chief R. Paul Reid, Assistant Chief Defibaugh was named acting chief, with Lt. Long and Lt. Parker named acting assistant chiefs.

Only acting appointments could be made under Civil Service rules, since none of the officers were on the eligible list.

An eligibility test for posts of lieutenants and captains in the Fire Department will be held Friday, May 18, at 7 p. m. in City Hall. Ten men have signed up to take tests for captain and eight for lieutenant ratings.

Mine Victims Rites Tomorrow

The bodies of Harry E. Warnick and Peter J. Matthews, who were killed in a mine explosion Saturday night near Salisbury, Pa. have been brought to the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. James Matthews, Gilmore.

A funeral service will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the Assembly of God Church, Lonaconing. Rev. C. E. Hunt, pastor, will officiate. Interment will be in Laurel Hill Cemetery, Moscow.

An autopsy performed on the bodies of the two former Lonaconing men disclosed both died from the effects of a dynamite explosion. Dr. C. G. Saylor, Rockwood, Pa., who performed the autopsies at the request of Dr. A. M. Uphouse, Somerset county coroner, said his examination of the bodies showed dynamite caused their deaths. Mining authorities have also started a probe of the deaths.

The bodies of the two men were found Sunday in the John Tressler Mine Elktownship by Fred Warnick, brother of one of the victims. Sheriff Karl J. Hare said the bodies of the men were found several hundred feet inside the mine.

Mrs. Mary A. Burall Dies At Mt. Savage

MT. SAVAGE — Mrs. Mary A. Burall, 66, died yesterday evening at her home on Railroad Street. She had been in failing health for a year. Her husband, John P. Burall, died in 1918.

She was born in McKeesport, Pa., and was a daughter of the late Anthony and Margaret Nicodemus Meanyhan. She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, a Gold Star Mother, ladies auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Olive Rice, Akron, Ohio, Mrs. Lillian Rippeon, Frederick, Mrs. Helen Knepp, Miss Dolores Burall, at home, and four grandsons.

The body will remain at Hafer's Funeral Home, Cumberland.

City Chamber Of Commerce To Join Maryland Council

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will become a member of the newly organized Maryland Council of Chambers of Commerce at a meeting Saturday in Baltimore. Harold W. Smith, manager of the Cumberland Chamber, said yesterday the purpose of the conference is to elect officers and complete other business.

Membership is restrained to two designated delegates selected by local Chambers of Commerce or member organization. Each member will be entitled to one vote. Any group acting as a Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade, having representation in the United States Chamber of Commerce, and operating substantially in Maryland, is eligible for membership.

A chairman, vice chairman and secretary-treasurer will make up the roster of officers to be elected each year in April. The Board of Directors will consist of three officers plus four additional members. The board will meet no less than one meeting every two months, or more frequently when called to convene by the chairman. Membership meetings are to held no less than quarterly, each meeting at a separate location in Maryland.

Charles Kopeland made the motion before a meeting of representatives Saturday, April 14, that official headquarters of the Council will be at the address of the elected secretary-treasurer.

City Orders Five-Cents Tax On Adult Recreation Tickets

Funds Earmarked For Department Expansion

An ordinance placing a five cent tax on all adults attending recreation events, shows or entertainments within the city, earmarking proceeds for the use of the City Recreation Department, was passed by the Mayor and Council last night.

No opposition was voiced to the proposal from the time Commissioner William H. Buchholtz first moved for the adoption of the ordinance until its final and unanimous passage about 15 minutes later.

Officials pointed out that Commissioner Buchholtz had made an attempt several years ago to have the ordinance adopted in a move to make all departments as nearly self sustaining as possible.

The idea was originally suggested some years ago by Robert V. "Sparky" Chisholm as a means of helping finance the City Recreation Department.

Commends Plan

Prior to final passage, Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long pointed out that the plan has the approval of Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director, and many recreation groups in the city.

Commendation for the action was voiced by Albert S. Paye, representing the National Hot Stove League, who said amusements should help pay the way of a recreation program.

Paye predicted that within a few years the recreation program should become self-sustaining.

The ordinance provides that from and after May 15, there shall be charged and collected five cents as an admission tax for each adult attending any recreational event, show or entertainment held in the city limits.

It also provides a control system for admission tickets, with numbers registered with the city clerk.

Each person, firm, corporation or organization must remit to the City Clerk all sums collected for such admissions upon the 15th and last day of each month.

Fund Is Earmarked

No admission tax, however, is to be collected on tickets sold by any motion picture theater or for any lecture on scientific, historical, benevolent, artistic, religious, educational, political or literary subjects.

Sums derived from the tax will be maintained in a separate fund and paid to the Recreational Program Director of the city, in addition to such funds as may be appropriated from the general fund for the recreation department.

Violation of the ordinance calls for a fine of not less than $50 or more than $100 for each offense.

Agreement Reached

The passage of the adult tax on recreation events including bingo games, will allow the recreation department to keep its budget for next year at the $20,000 mark.

City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson estimated the adult admission tax should bring in about $8,000 a year.

Hoey reported receipts from Penn Avenue Field and other functions sponsored by the rec department should range from $7,000 to $10,000 a year.

Details of the agreement on the allocation of funds for recreation have been worked out in recent weeks between city officials, the rec department and officials of sports groups of the city.

Voluntary Price Group Named

Personnel of the Mayor's Volunteer Office of Price Stabilization were approved by the Mayor and Council last night.

They include Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, chairman; Howard M. Spiker, local real estate agent; John D. Liebau, manager of the Queen City Dairy; J. Goodloe Jackson, secretary of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland; Harry Williams, of the G. C. Murphy Company; Mrs. G. Melville Gemmill; F. Patrick Allender, business agent of Carpenters Local 1024, and Harry K. Poling, manager of the South End Market.

Formation of the local committee to fight inflation on the community level was suggested by Hugo Hoffman, state director of price stabilization.

The committee will keep the public informed on the progress in anti-inflationary moves and urge public action to keep prices down.

PMA Had 341 County Farms In 1950 Plan

70 Per Cent Of Land Improved

During 1950, soil and water conservation practices were carried out on 341 Allegany County farms by farmers cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation Program. These farms comprise about 70 per cent of all county farmland.

These farms contained 21,556 acres of crop land and orchards and 9,897 acres of permanent pasture in the county.

Practices Listed

Practices carried out by these farmers, Albert O'Neal, chairman of the Production and Marketing Administration committee, explained, were conducted on a share-the-cost basis. For the country as a whole, the government's share averaged about 50 per cent of the out-of-pocket cost. Each farmer paid his share of the cost and did most of the work. The practices had to conform to established standards and specifications before they were approved.

Among the conservation activities of the cooperating Allegany County farmers during the past year were—use of 5,227 tons of liming material and 519 tons of phosphate and 151 tons of potash, applied to permanent pasture. Hay crops were established as were cover crops in orchards.

In another activity, 18 farms established 246 acres of contour strip cropping, receiving technical advice from the Soil Conservation Service. Two farms, through guidance of the Soil Conservation Service, put in terraces to divert excess water.

Ditches Installed

Open and tile drainage ditches were installed on 12 farms. An estimated 550 acres of county farm land is drained by these ditches. As a protection to land over the winter, farmers seeded 109 acres of crimson clover, vetch and rye grass to hold their soil.

Other practices performed by Allegany County farmers through the 1950 Agricultural Conservation Program were sweet clover turned for green manure, 53 acres of weeds mowed in permanent pastures, 53 acres of new permanent pasture seeded, 1,200 forest trees planted as means of preventing erosion and providing windbreaks.

"I am proud of the conservation work accomplished during 1950 in Allegany County and the county may well be proud of it, too," Chairman O'Neal said. "This work has improved the farms of the county and made more permanent the agriculture of the whole area. Instead of our farms becoming less and less productive, erosion has been checked, organic matter restored to the soil and the productivity of the land improved.

"Now that the nation especially needs the backing of a strong agriculture, the conservation practices carried out have contributed a great deal toward giving our country the strength on the farm front that is needed," O'Neal concluded.

The chairman also reported that during the current national emergency the County PMA office at 37 Washington Street will remain open from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. on Saturdays, in addition to the hours from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Plans Square Dance

An old-fashioned square dance will be held Thursday evening from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock at Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, home, Union Street.

Members of the drum corps held a rehearsal last night and will attend a party this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Cumberland Brewery. Four members donated blood last night at Memorial Hospital. They include Robert Goss, Michael Logsston, Raymond Wempe and Vermont Zollner.

North End Playground Group To Receive Charter Tonight

The North End Playground Association will receive its incorporation charter at a formal presentation this evening at 8 o'clock in the Field House. Norman E. Getty, will be guest speaker. The non-profit, non-stock organization is cooperating with the city recreation department.

County Commissioner James Orr will present the charter to Ralph Knieriem, president of the association. Other officers are Joseph Richards, vice-president, Mrs. William Roeder, second vice-president and corresponding secretary and Frank Kaplon, treasurer. A portion of the program will be broadcast by Mal Campbell and Russel Reynolds.

Guests will include Mayor Thomas S. Post and members of City Council, the Allegany County Commissioners, Edmund Hoey, director of city recreation and members of the recreation Board, Rev. Norman Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church, Rev. Simonitsch, St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, and Rabbi H. J. Wilner, B'er Chayim Congregation.

Edwin C. Horchler and Paul Fletcher, local attorneys, advised the association in legal matters. The North End Association weekly entertains an average of 500 children, and hopes to broaden its program during the summer months. Last year's Halloween Mardi Gras drew a crowd of 4,500 children. Although the association sponsors and organizes this affair, over 150 merchants contribute to its success annually.

The Field House serves as a meeting place for Brownies, 4-H Girls, Homemakers, and Civil Defense. The sub-teen and teen-age square dance groups meet weekly and dancing instruction is available on Saturdays. Friday night is "movie night" at the Field House.

Refreshments will be served tonight and all members and officials from other playgrounds are cordially invited.

NEW MAGISTRATE — William E. Meagher, 65, Cresap Park, has assumed his duties as trial magistrate at Cresaptown, succeeding Roy Bowman. Mr. Meagher, a native of Lonaconing, has been employed at the Celanese plant here for about 18 years and is a former resident of Valley Street, Cumberland. He is a past president of Celanese Local No. 1874, TWUA, and still holds office in the organization. Mr. Meagher has been a life-long member of the Republican party and this is the first time he has held public office.

Red Cross Begins Enlargement Of Canteen Service

School Lunch Groups To Take Training

The enlargement of the Allegany County Red Cross Chapter Canteen Service has begun this week with classes being held for the 104 workers in the county school hot lunch program to participate in the service.

The Board of Education has offered the facilities of the hot lunch program, school equipment and personnel for use in training additional persons in the canteen work, Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, said yesterday.

Mrs. Eaton In Charge

Mrs. Gladys M. Eaton, supervisor of the school hot lunch program, is in charge of the training classes which will be conducted throughout the county until all the school workers have received the required 10 hours of training for a certificate.

The expansion program for canteen service is a part of the overall Civil Defense setup in which the Red Cross is participating, including home nursing training and the plans for a new blood bank unit in the county.

At present the Red Cross canteen service has 20 canteens established in Cumberland in event of an emergency and each community in the county is also equipped for emergency service with trained personnel and facilities available.

After the current canteen program is set up it will become a part of the planned blood bank unit which is now in preliminary stages of construction.

Training Is Outlined

Among subjects to be taught in the training courses will be mass feeding and cooking, types of foods to be served, preparation in assuming responsibility in event of any emergency, kitchen schedules, sanitation, marketing, outdoor preparation, infant feeding, first aid and accident prevention and other pertinent emergency preparations.

Mrs. Witherup last night said the local chapter of the Red Cross is most appreciative of the cooperation given it by the Board of Education and its personnel.

Alumni To Honor Fort Hill Students

The Penn Avenue-Fort Hill Alumni Association will give recognition to senior students for scholastic and extra-curricular activities at a "Senior Letter" dinner today at 6:15 p. m. at the Centre Street Methodist Church.

Associate Judge George Henderson will be principal speaker.

Honor will be paid all athletes including the boys' and girls' bowling teams, Student Council (monitors and ushers), mimeograph, stage and projection crews, cheerleaders, vocal and instrumental music groups, the staff of the school paper "The Sentinel" and others.

Winfield H. Adam, executive secretary of Central YMCA, will be toastmaster, and Lester Hudson, president of the association, will preside. Mrs. Bertie Ranck will play dinner music.

A faculty quartet, composed of Philip Kester, John McVicker, Adell Haines and Frank Winsheimer, will sing. Miss Marilyn Ashbaugh will accompany the quartet.

Gephart Delegate To Attend PTA Meeting

Allegany County PTA will send a delegate from Gephart Grade School to the summer conference at College Park in July. An alternate has been chosen from Mount Royal Grade School.

The delegate was chosen last night at a meeting of the Council at West Side School. Midland will send a county delegate with Cresaptown as alternate.

Six partial-paid delegates will go from Beall Elementary, Cresaptown, Mt. Savage, Penn Avenue, State Teacher's Laboratory, and Virginia Avenue. These delegates are given the trip as reward to schools that had five representatives at council meetings during the past year.

South End Group To Raise $3,000 For Playgrounds

Three-Day Carnival To Begin Thursday

The South Cumberland Businessmen's Association will endeavor to raise $3,000 for six South End playgrounds with a "Fun Night" carnival this weekend at Penn Avenue field.

Open to the public the carnival will embrace rides, concessions, games, refreshment stands and special entertainment on each of the three nights beginning Thursday.

Includes Band Concerts

The program committee has arranged for pony rides, children's train rides, car rides and a merry-go-round, skill games, bingo and at least 12 concession stands. The special programs include a band concert Thursday night by the Fort Hill High School senior band; with a magician's show, concert by the Moose band and a small comical skit Friday night; and exhibition bouts in a boxing show Saturday evening. The carnival grounds will be open each night beginning at 7 p. m. and will close at 11 o'clock.

Tickets to the carnival will be on sale at the main gates while an advanced ticket sale is now in progress at any business establishment on Virginia Avenue.

Also a part of each evening's program will be round and square dancing with music provided by local musicians. Each dance will end with a "jam" session by the musicians, the program committee chairman noted.

A part of the evening's entertainment will be provided by numerous clowns who will parade throughout the grounds during the night.

Spiker Is Chairman

John I. Spiker is general chairman of the executive committee which is in charge of the overall planning of the program. James Weber is Finance Committee chairman; R. L. Spiker, publicity committee; George Millenson, personnel committee; Roy Knotts, music committee; Mrs. Gladys Fuller, costumes and property; H. Clifford Spiker, merchandise; Arthur C. Morgan, sideshows and booths; Roy Merritt, grounds; and Paul Shircliff, special events.

The six South End playgrounds which will receive proceeds from this benefit program are Lamont Street, Penn Avenue, Thomas Post, Virginia Avenue, Mapleside and Johnson Heights.

Council To Act On Thomas St. Relocation Plan

B & O Proposal To Be Aired Tomorrow

The Mayor and Council will hold a special meeting Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. to take definite action on a proposed agreement with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for improvements in the Thomas Street area.

Mayor Thomas S. Post, who requested the special meeting, said action to accept or reject the proposal will be taken at the meeting.

Action on the agreement was tabled last Monday to allow full council action since Commissioner George H. Tederick was absent.

Buchholtz Favors

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, who had asked immediate action on the issue last Monday again asked last night that the agreement be approved.

His motion, however, died for lack of a second.

Details of the project which would cost some $75,000 for construction and another $100,000 for land, were revealed last week.

The relocation work would include the elimination of two curves on Thomas Street to allow the B. and O. to straighten its tracks in the Thomas Street area.

The cost of the entire project would be borne by the railroad, with the agreement providing that certain properties on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street, owned by the city, be conveyed without cost to the railroad, with the railroad conveying, without cost to the city, land needed to relocate the street.

To Secure Property

In the plan, the B. and O. agrees to continue attempts to negotiate with property owners for rights of way with the city agreeing, when requested, to secure these properties by condemnation.

The B. and O. said the project is part of a long-range plan for improving its yards in Cumberland, one of its major terminals.

Banker's Art Exhibit Opens At Library

T. Victor Fier, trust officer of the First National Bank, left, and James Alfred Avirett look at several of the 43 paintings which the banker has included in his one-man exhibit at the Cumberland Free Public Library. Avirett, a member of the board of directors of the library, introduced Fier last night at a reception which marked the beginning of the show. Several hundred art enthusiasts examined the paintings last night. Fier's exhibit will run until Saturday, May 19. The exhibit includes 43 paintings, most of them done with watercolors, and nearly all scenes of the Tri-State Area. Although Fier has been painting only a few years his work is considered competent and he has sold some 15 of his paintings.

J. E. Winters Dies At Home In Midlothian

James Edward Winters, 80, Midlothian, died at his home yesterday afternoon following an illness of several months. He was a son of the late John and Ann Corrigan Winters.

A native and lifelong resident of Midlothian, he taught in Allegany County public schools for 42 years. He graduated from Beall High School under the late Judge Albert A. Doub, who was principal at the time. He attended many summer sessions at the University of Maryland. He served as Deputy Clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court and was a cashier at Grantsville State Bank for 12 years.

Survivors include one son, Stephen H. Winters, at home, two sisters, Miss Margaret H. Winters, at home, and Sister M. Joseph, Ursuline Order, Louisville, Ky. He was a member of St. Michael's Catholic Church, Frostburg.

Furniture Bids On Mt. Savage School Sought

Bids on all the furniture for the new Mt. Savage School, which will combine elementary, junior and senior high schools, will be received by the Board of Education until Tuesday, May 22, School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said yesterday.

Specifications have been sent to a large number of prospective bidders for their proposals.

Included among the furniture which the County Board of Education proposes to purchase are pupils' desks, tables and chairs, auditorium chairs, science laboratory furniture, library furniture and teachers desks and chairs.

Among the chief pupils' desks on which bids are sought are 460 17-inch unit chairs and 250 movable type 17-inch desk-chairs. A total of 550 auditorium chairs also are sought by the board.

Laboratory equipment includes two laboratory tables, two instructors' desks, one fume hood and one balance table. Chief among the library equipment which the board intends purchasing are 90 Bentwood chairs, 32 teachers' desks and 12 book shelves.

The Board of Education reserves the right to accept or reject bids on any single item or combination of items in these specifications. The bids also call for a delivery date and all bids must be firm.

Originally, Kopp said, it was hoped that the Mt. Savage School would be ready for occupancy when classes are resumed in September, but he doubts now that it can be used before the beginning of the second semester of the 1951-52 school year.

WEATHER

The weather yesterday was most unpredictable. Toward evening Cumberlanders got the impression that Fall was here. The weather station at Constitution Park showed a high of 61, a low of 44 and at 8:30 p. m. it was 55 degrees. The dew point was 49 and humidity 55 per cent. The forecast for today is fair and a little warmer in the afternoon.

Governor Vetoes State Coal And County Barbering Bills

McKeldin Says Mine Measure Discriminates

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 7—(AP)—Governor McKeldin threw out a Maryland-coal-for-Maryland bill today because it would discriminate against miners in a Garrett County community.

The measure would have required state institutions to burn coal mined in Maryland, except for emergencies.

McKeldin said in a speech last week he thought miners living in Crellin would suffer. That persuaded him to veto the act, although he he approved its general purpose.

Discriminatory Effect

He objected to "a discriminatory effect against certain people who live in Maryland and work for a Maryland concern that operates a mine that is partly in Maryland and partly in West Virginia.

"While ostensibly designed to enlarge work opportunities for Marylanders, this bill in fact would have the opposite effect," McKeldin said.

As promised, he also rejected a $5,000,000 state office building for Annapolis and almost self-government for the University of Maryland.

He also scrapped such proposals as a state youth commission, an assortment of sea food measures and several revisions in tax collecting.

Meeting the deadline for executive action, McKeldin signed 47 other measures into law that raised to 711 the number of new Maryland statutes as a result of the three-month session that ended in April. And it left 60 acts for the legislature to reconsider when it convenes again next February.

May Override Vetoes

The assembly may then exercise for the first time its right to override vetoes applied after the preceding session adjourned.

Altogether, McKeldin has rejected 65 acts of the 1951 assembly. He vetoed five during the session, and two were promptly overruled by the required three-fifths' majorities. The other three vetoes were undisturbed.

McKeldin did not sign the session's two prime horse racing measures. One boosts from 10 to 12 per cent the tax on bets at harness and half-mile tracks. It also increases track shares of the mutuels handle, but will produce an estimated $65,000 more for the state fair board and $60,000 for the general treasury.

Each of the four harness tracks will have to give the state all breakage left from paying off wagers to the next-lower dime. But the new taxing formula is expected to net each an additional $65,000 to $70,000.

The second racing act relieves mile tracks of a federal levy on their improvement funds. It changes the method of distributing the one-half of one per cent Pimlico, Laurel and Bowie must set aside from their betting pools for plant renovations.

State Collects Money

Now the state will collect the money as a tax and appropriate it as needed to the tracks. The racing commission may discontinue the tax, but until that time all improvement funds must be used within three years or yielded to the state.

McKeldin also resolved one high-level dispute over a liquor measure in favor of Comptroller J. Millard Tawes. The comptroller had backed legislation authorizing him to fix maximum discounts that may be allowed alcholic beverage retailers.

Attorney General Hall Hammond had attacked it as an unwise "price fixing" measure. Some senators had objected on the same grounds. McKeldin signed the act without comment.

Other bills passed included—HB 200—by Garrett delegation—specifying that no game regulation may be adopted which would open the squirrel season in Garrett County before October 10 of any year.

HB 407—By Whitworth—specifying that the town of Westernport shall be liable for damage suits for injury only if notice in writing is given to the mayor and council within 30 days after injury is suffered.

HB 474—by Allegany delegation—changing the date of Cumberland city elections from the third Tuesday of March to the third Tuesday of June of each even year, excepting that it will not affect the scheduled 1952 election.

HB 523—by Allegany delegation—authorizing the city of Cumberland by public referendum to amend its charter.

New York Chain Leases Store Site

Jules Chain Store Corporation, a New York corporation with headquarters at 641 Sixth Avenue, New York City, has acquired an eight-year and nine-month lease on the property at 82 Baltimore Street, according to a lease recorded yesterday in the office of the clerk of circuit court.

Allan T. Hirsh, Ellinor O. Hirsh and Jesse Hirsh, owners of the business property, entered into the lease with the New York firm.

Under terms of the lease, the New York corporation will pay $400 per month rent until January 31, 1955, and $500 per month from February 1, 1955, until the expiration of the lease on January 31, 1960.

Also filed in the clerk's office yesterday was a bill of sale under which the Jules Chain Store Corporation will purchase the chattels and fixtures of Debbie Apparel, Inc., at 82 Baltimore Street. The sale price for the chattels and fixtures is $4,500. Debbie Apparel, Inc., which formerly operated a store at the Baltimore Street location, has it headquarters at 37 West 35th Street, New York City.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Wesleyan Service Guild will hold a rummange sale today at 7 p. m. in the basement of Centre Street Methodist Church.

The M. Y. F. of Central Methodist Church will hold a bake sale at Coyle's Furniture Store, 45 Baltimore Street, at 10 a. m. Saturday.

The Western Maryland Wild Life Federation will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the Square Circle Association club house in Eckhart.

City Eligible List Filed With Council

Civil Service Board Shows Only One Man Passed Police Test

The Civil Service Commission yesterday certified the names of 21 persons as eligible for appointment to positions as fire chief, assistant fire chief and probationary police and firemen.

The list was accepted and ordered posted by unanimous action of the Mayor and Council. It includes, in order of their standings:

FIRE CHIEF—Virgil A. Parker, James A. Jackson, J. T. Defibaugh and Robert C. Long.

ASSISTANT FIRE CHIEF—Virgil A. Parker, James A. Jackson, Robert C. Long, Alvey Poole, Vincent H. Wegman and Thomas W. Lindner.

POLICE—Harry Lee Isen.

FIREMEN — Albert Snyder, James H. Hunter, Jacob W. Winters, Eugene P. Natale, Louis E. Hartung, Robert S. Wigfield, Carl E. Williams, Russell L. Livengood, Robert J. Washabaugh and Howard W. Cunningham.

The results of the examination will pave the way for permanent appointments in the Fire Department, where at present top officers are serving under temporary appointments.

Upon the retirement of Acting Fire Chief William L. Lindner in March, followed by the resignation of Assistant Fire Chief R. Paul Reid, Assistant Chief Defibaugh was named acting chief, with Lt. Long and Lt. Parker named acting assistant chiefs.

Only acting appointments could be made under Civil Service rules, since none of the officers were on the eligible list.

An eligibility test for posts of lieutenants and captains in the Fire Department will be held Friday, May 18, at 7 p. m. in City Hall. Ten men have signed up to take tests for captain and eight for lieutenant ratings.

Mine Victims Rites Tomorrow

The bodies of Harry E. Warnick and Peter J. Matthews, who were killed in a mine explosion Saturday night near Salisbury, Pa. have been brought to the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. James Matthews, Gilmore.

A funeral service will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the Assembly of God Church, Lonaconing. Rev. C. E. Hunt, pastor, will officiate. Interment will be in Laurel Hill Cemetery, Moscow.

An autopsy performed on the bodies of the two former Lonaconing men disclosed both died from the effects of a dynamite explosion. Dr. C. G. Saylor, Rockwood, Pa., who performed the autopsies at the request of Dr. A. M. Uphouse, Somerset county coroner, said his examination of the bodies showed dynamite caused their deaths. Mining authorities have also started a probe of the deaths.

The bodies of the two men were found Sunday in the John Tressler Mine Elktownship by Fred Warnick, brother of one of the victims. Sheriff Karl J. Hare said the bodies of the men were found several hundred feet inside the mine.

Mrs. Mary A. Burall Dies At Mt. Savage

MT. SAVAGE — Mrs. Mary A. Burall, 66, died yesterday evening at her home on Railroad Street. She had been in failing health for a year. Her husband, John P. Burall, died in 1918.

She was born in McKeesport, Pa., and was a daughter of the late Anthony and Margaret Nicodemus Meanyhan. She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, a Gold Star Mother, ladies auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Olive Rice, Akron, Ohio, Mrs. Lillian Rippeon, Frederick, Mrs. Helen Knepp, Miss Dolores Burall, at home, and four grandsons.

The body will remain at Hafer's Funeral Home, Cumberland.

City Chamber Of Commerce To Join Maryland Council

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will become a member of the newly organized Maryland Council of Chambers of Commerce at a meeting Saturday in Baltimore. Harold W. Smith, manager of the Cumberland Chamber, said yesterday the purpose of the conference is to elect officers and complete other business.

Membership is restrained to two designated delegates selected by local Chambers of Commerce or member organization. Each member will be entitled to one vote. Any group acting as a Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade, having representation in the United States Chamber of Commerce, and operating substantially in Maryland, is eligible for membership.

A chairman, vice chairman and secretary-treasurer will make up the roster of officers to be elected each year in April. The Board of Directors will consist of three officers plus four additional members. The board will meet no less than one meeting every two months, or more frequently when called to convene by the chairman. Membership meetings are to held no less than quarterly, each meeting at a separate location in Maryland.

Charles Kopeland made the motion before a meeting of representatives Saturday, April 14, that official headquarters of the Council will be at the address of the elected secretary-treasurer.

City Orders Five-Cents Tax On Adult Recreation Tickets

Funds Earmarked For Department Expansion

An ordinance placing a five cent tax on all adults attending recreation events, shows or entertainments within the city, earmarking proceeds for the use of the City Recreation Department, was passed by the Mayor and Council last night.

No opposition was voiced to the proposal from the time Commissioner William H. Buchholtz first moved for the adoption of the ordinance until its final and unanimous passage about 15 minutes later.

Officials pointed out that Commissioner Buchholtz had made an attempt several years ago to have the ordinance adopted in a move to make all departments as nearly self sustaining as possible.

The idea was originally suggested some years ago by Robert V. "Sparky" Chisholm as a means of helping finance the City Recreation Department.

Commends Plan

Prior to final passage, Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long pointed out that the plan has the approval of Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director, and many recreation groups in the city.

Commendation for the action was voiced by Albert S. Paye, representing the National Hot Stove League, who said amusements should help pay the way of a recreation program.

Paye predicted that within a few years the recreation program should become self-sustaining.

The ordinance provides that from and after May 15, there shall be charged and collected five cents as an admission tax for each adult attending any recreational event, show or entertainment held in the city limits.

It also provides a control system for admission tickets, with numbers registered with the city clerk.

Each person, firm, corporation or organization must remit to the City Clerk all sums collected for such admissions upon the 15th and last day of each month.

Fund Is Earmarked

No admission tax, however, is to be collected on tickets sold by any motion picture theater or for any lecture on scientific, historical, benevolent, artistic, religious, educational, political or literary subjects.

Sums derived from the tax will be maintained in a separate fund and paid to the Recreational Program Director of the city, in addition to such funds as may be appropriated from the general fund for the recreation department.

Violation of the ordinance calls for a fine of not less than $50 or more than $100 for each offense.

Agreement Reached

The passage of the adult tax on recreation events including bingo games, will allow the recreation department to keep its budget for next year at the $20,000 mark.

City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson estimated the adult admission tax should bring in about $8,000 a year.

Hoey reported receipts from Penn Avenue Field and other functions sponsored by the rec department should range from $7,000 to $10,000 a year.

Details of the agreement on the allocation of funds for recreation have been worked out in recent weeks between city officials, the rec department and officials of sports groups of the city.

PMA Had 341 County Farms In 1950 Plan

70 Per Cent Of Land Improved

During 1950, soil and water conservation practices were carried out on 341 Allegany County farms by farmers cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation Program. These farms comprise about 70 per cent of all county farmland.

These farms contained 21,556 acres of crop land and orchards and 9,897 acres of permanent pasture in the county.

Practices Listed

Practices carried out by these farmers, Albert O'Neal, chairman of the Production and Marketing Administration committee, explained, were conducted on a share-the-cost basis. For the country as a whole, the government's share averaged about 50 per cent of the out-of-pocket cost. Each farmer paid his share of the cost and did most of the work. The practices had to conform to established standards and specifications before they were approved.

Among the conservation activities of the cooperating Allegany County farmers during the past year were—use of 5,227 tons of liming material and 519 tons of phosphate and 151 tons of potash, applied to permanent pasture. Hay crops were established as were cover crops in orchards.

In another activity, 18 farms established 246 acres of contour strip cropping, receiving technical advice from the Soil Conservation Service. Two farms, through guidance of the Soil Conservation Service, put in terraces to divert excess water.

Ditches Installed

Open and tile drainage ditches were installed on 12 farms. An estimated 550 acres of county farm land is drained by these ditches. As a protection to land over the winter, farmers seeded 109 acres of crimson clover, vetch and rye grass to hold their soil.

Other practices performed by Allegany County farmers through the 1950 Agricultural Conservation Program were sweet clover turned for green manure, 53 acres of weeds mowed in permanent pastures, 53 acres of new permanent pasture seeded, 1,200 forest trees planted as means of preventing erosion and providing windbreaks.

"I am proud of the conservation work accomplished during 1950 in Allegany County and the county may well be proud of it, too," Chairman O'Neal said. "This work has improved the farms of the county and made more permanent the agriculture of the whole area. Instead of our farms becoming less and less productive, erosion has been checked, organic matter restored to the soil and the productivity of the land improved.

"Now that the nation especially needs the backing of a strong agriculture, the conservation practices carried out have contributed a great deal toward giving our country the strength on the farm front that is needed," O'Neal concluded.

The chairman also reported that during the current national emergency the County PMA office at 37 Washington Street will remain open from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. on Saturdays, in addition to the hours from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Voluntary Price Group Named

Personnel of the Mayor's Volunteer Office of Price Stabilization were approved by the Mayor and Council last night.

They include Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, chairman; Howard M. Spiker, local real estate agent; John D. Liebau, manager of the Queen City Dairy; J. Goodloe Jackson, secretary of the Independent Retail Food Dealers Association of Western Maryland; Harry Williams, of the G. C. Murphy Company; Mrs. G. Melville Gemmill; F. Patrick Allender, business agent of Carpenters Local 1024, and Harry K. Poling, manager of the South End Market.

Formation of the local committee to fight inflation on the community level was suggested by Hugo Hoffman, state director of price stabilization.

The committee will keep the public informed on the progress in anti-inflationary moves and urge public action to keep prices down.

Plans Square Dance

An old-fashioned square dance will be held Thursday evening from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock at Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, home, Union Street.

Members of the drum corps held a rehearsal last night and will attend a party this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Cumberland Brewery. Four members donated blood last night at Memorial Hospital. They include Robert Goss, Michael Logsdon, Raymond Wempe and Vermont Zollner.

North End Playground Group To Receive Charter Tonight

The North End Playground Association will receive its incorporation charter at a formal presentation this evening at 8 o'clock in the Field House. Norman E. Getty, will be guest speaker. The non-profit, non-stock organization is cooperating with the city recreation department.

County Commissioner James Orr will present the charter to Ralph Knieriem, president of the association. Other officers are Joseph Richards, vice-president, Mrs. William Roeder, second vice-president and corresponding secretary and Frank Kaplon, treasurer. A portion of the program will be broadcast by Mal Campbell and Russel Reynolds.

Guests will include Mayor Thomas S. Post and members of City Council, the Allegany County Commissioners, Edmund Hoey, director of city recreation and members of the recreation Board, Rev. Norman Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church, Rev. Simonitsch, St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, and Rabbi H. J. Wilner, B'er Chayim Congregation.

Edwin C. Horchler and Paul Fletcher, local attorneys, advised the association in legal matters. The North End Association weekly entertains an average of 500 children, and hopes to broaden its program during the summer months. Last year's Halloween Mardi Gras drew a crowd of 4,500 children. Although the association sponsors and organizes this affair, over 150 merchants contribute to its success annually.

The Field House serves as a meeting place for Brownies, 4-H Girls, Homemakers, and Civil Defense. The sub-teen and teen-age square dance groups meet weekly and dancing instruction is available on Saturdays. Friday night is "movie night" at the Field House.

Refreshments will be served tonight and all members and officials from other playgrounds are cordially invited.

NEW MAGISTRATE — William E. Meagher, 65, Cresap Park, has assumed his duties as trial magistrate at Cresaptown, succeeding Roy Bowman. Mr. Meagher, a native of Lonaconing, has been employed at the Celanese plant here for about 18 years and is a former resident of Valley Street, Cumberland. He is a past president of Celanese Local No. 1874, TWUA, and still holds office in the organization. Mr. Meagher has been a life-long member of the Republican party and this is the first time he has held public office.

Red Cross Begins Enlargement Of Canteen Service

School Lunch Groups To Take Training

The enlargement of the Allegany County Red Cross Chapter Canteen Service has begun this week with classes being held for the 104 workers in the county school hot lunch program to participate in the service.

The Board of Education has offered the facilities of the hot lunch program, school equipment and personnel for use in training additional persons in the canteen work, Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, said yesterday.

Mrs. Eaton In Charge

Mrs. Gladys M. Eaton, supervisor of the school hot lunch program, is in charge of the training classes which will be conducted throughout the county until all the school workers have received the required 10 hours of training for a certificate.

The expansion program for canteen service is a part of the overall Civil Defense setup in which the Red Cross is participating, including home nursing training and the plans for a new blood bank unit in the county.

At present the Red Cross canteen service has 20 canteens established in Cumberland in event of an emergency and each community in the county is also equipped for emergency service with trained personnel and facilities available.

After the current canteen program is set up it will become a part of the planned blood bank unit which is now in preliminary stages of construction.

Training Is Outlined

Among subjects to be taught in the training courses will be mass feeding and cooking, types of foods to be served, preparation in assuming responsibility in event of any emergency, kitchen schedules, sanitation, marketing, outdoor preparation, infant feeding, first aid and accident prevention and other pertinent emergency preparations.

Mrs. Witherup last night said the local chapter of the Red Cross is most appreciative of the cooperation given it by the Board of Education and its personnel.

Alumni To Honor Fort Hill Students

The Penn Avenue-Fort Hill Alumni Association will give recognition to senior students for scholastic and extra-curricular activities at a "Senior Letter" dinner today at 6:15 p. m. at the Centre Street Methodist Church.

Associate Judge George Henderson will be principal speaker.

Honor will be paid all athletes including the boys' and girls' bowling teams, Student Council (monitors and ushers), mimeograph, stage and projection crews, cheerleaders, vocal and instrumental music groups, the staff of the school paper "The Sentinel" and others.

Winfield H. Adam, executive secretary of Central YMCA, will be toastmaster, and Lester Hudson, president of the association, will preside. Mrs. Bertie Ranck will play dinner music.

A faculty quartet, composed of Philip Kester, John McVicker, Adell Haines and Frank Winsheimer, will sing. Miss Marilyn Ashbaugh will accompany the quartet.

Gephart Delegate To Attend PTA Meeting

Allegany County PTA will send a delegate from Gephart Grade School to the summer conference at College Park in July. An alternate has been chosen from Mount Royal Grade School.

The delegate was chosen last night at a meeting of the Council at West Side School. Midland will send a county delegate with Cresaptown as alternate.

Six partial-paid delegates will go from Beall Elementary, Cresaptown, Mt. Savage, Penn Avenue, State Teacher's Laboratory, and Virginia Avenue. These delegates are given the trip as reward to schools that had five representatives at council meetings during the past year.

South End Group To Raise $3,000 For Playgrounds

Three-Day Carnival To Begin Thursday

The South Cumberland Businessmen's Association will endeavor to raise $3,000 for six South End playgrounds with a "Fun Night" carnival this weekend at Penn Avenue field.

Open to the public the carnival will embrace rides, concessions, games, refreshment stands and special entertainment on each of the three nights beginning Thursday.

Includes Band Concerts

The program committee has arranged for pony rides, children's train rides, car rides and a merry-go-round, skill games, bingo and at least 12 concession stands. The special programs include a band concert Thursday night by the Fort Hill High School senior band; with a magician's show, concert by the Moose band and a small comical skit Friday night; and exhibition bouts in a boxing show Saturday evening. The carnival grounds will be open each night beginning at 7 p. m. and will close at 11 o'clock.

Tickets to the carnival will be on sale at the main gates while an advanced ticket sale is now in progress at any business establishment on Virginia Avenue.

Also a part of each evening's program will be round and square dancing with music provided by local musicians. Each dance will end with a "jam" session by the musicians, the program committee chairman noted.

A part of the evening's entertainment will be provided by numerous clowns who will parade throughout the grounds during the night.

Spiker Is Chairman

John I. Spiker is general chairman of the executive committee which is in charge of the overall planning of the program. James Weber is Finance Committee chairman; R. L. Spiker, publicity committee; George Millenson, personnel committee; Roy Knotts, music committee; Mrs. Gladys Fuller, costumes and property; H. Clifford Spiker, merchandise; Arthur C. Morgan, sideshows and booths; Roy Merritt, grounds; and Paul Shircliff, special events.

The six South End playgrounds which will receive proceeds from this benefit program are Lamont Street, Penn Avenue, Thomas Post, Virginia Avenue, Mapleside and Johnson Heights.

Council To Act On Thomas St. Relocation Plan

B & O Proposal To Be Aired Tomorrow

The Mayor and Council will hold a special meeting Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. to take definite action on a proposed agreement with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for improvements in the Thomas Street area.

Mayor Thomas S. Post, who requested the special meeting, said action to accept or reject the proposal will be taken at the meeting.

Action on the agreement was tabled last Monday to allow full council action since Commissioner George H. Tederick was absent.

Buchholtz Favors

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, who had asked immediate action on the issue last Monday again asked last night that the agreement be approved.

His motion, however, died for lack of a second.

Details of the project which would cost some $75,000 for construction and another $100,000 for land, were revealed last week.

The relocation work would include the elimination of two curves on Thomas Street to allow the B. and O. to straighten its tracks in the Thomas Street area.

The cost of the entire project would be borne by the railroad, with the agreement providing that certain properties on Thomas Street, West Third Street and High Street, owned by the city, be conveyed without cost to the railroad, with the railroad conveying, without cost to the city, land needed to relocate the street.

To Secure Property

In the plan, the B. and O. agrees to continue attempts to negotiate with property owners for rights of way with the city agreeing, when requested, to secure these properties by condemnation.

The B. and O. said the project is part of a long-range plan for improving its yards in Cumberland, one of its major terminals.

Banker's Art Exhibit Opens At Library

T. Victor Fier, trust officer of the First National Bank, left, and James Alfred Avirett look at several of the 43 paintings which the banker has included in his one-man exhibit at the Cumberland Free Public Library. Avirett, a member of the board of directors of the library, introduced Fier last night at a reception which marked the beginning of the show. Several hundred art enthusiasts examined the paintings last night. Fier's exhibit will run until Saturday, May 19. The exhibit includes 43 paintings, most of them done with watercolors, and nearly all scenes of the Tri-State Area. Although Fier has been painting only a few years his work is considered competent and he has sold some 15 of his paintings.

J. E. Winters Dies At Home In Midlothian

James Edward Winters, 80, Midlothian, died at his home yesterday afternoon following an illness of several months. He was a son of the late John and Ann Corrigan Winters.

A native and lifelong resident of Midlothian, he taught in Allegany County public schools for 42 years. He graduated from Beall High School under the late Judge Albert A. Doub, who was principal at the time. He attended many summer sessions at the University of Maryland. He served as Deputy Clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court and was a cashier at Grantsville State Bank for 12 years.

Survivors include one son, Stephen H. Winters, at home, two sisters, Miss Margaret H. Winters, at home, and Sister M. Joseph, Ursuline Order, Louisville, Ky. He was a member of St. Michael's Catholic Church, Frostburg.

Furniture Bids On Mt. Savage School Sought

Bids on all the furniture for the new Mt. Savage School, which will combine elementary, junior and senior high schools, will be received by the Board of Education until Tuesday, May 22, School Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said yesterday.

Specifications have been sent to a large number of prospective bidders for their proposals.

Included among the furniture which the County Board of Education proposes to purchase are pupils' desks, tables and chairs, auditorium chairs, science laboratory furniture, library furniture and teachers desks and chairs.

Among the chief pupils' desks on which bids are sought are 460 17-inch unit chairs and 250 movable type 17-inch desk-chairs. A total of 550 auditorium chairs also are sought by the board.

Laboratory equipment includes two laboratory tables, two instructors' desks, one fume hood and one balance table. Chief among the library equipment which the board intends purchasing are 90 Bentwood chairs, 32 teachers' desks and 12 book shelves.

The Board of Education reserves the right to accept or reject bids on any single item or combination of items in these specifications. The bids also call for a delivery date and all bids must be firm.

Originally, Kopp said, it was hoped that the Mt. Savage School would be ready for occupancy when classes are resumed in September, but he doubts now that it can be used before the beginning of the second semester of the 1951-52 school year.

WEATHER

The weather yesterday was most unpredictable. Toward evening Cumberlanders got the impression that Fall was here. The weather station at Constitution Park showed a high of 61, a low of 44 and at 8:30 p. m. it was 55 degrees. The dew point was 49 and humidity 55 per cent. The forecast for today is fair and a little warmer in the afternoon.

Governor Vetoes State Coal And County Barbering Bills

McKeldin Says Mine Measure Discriminates

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 7—(AP)—Governor McKeldin threw out a Maryland-coal-for-Maryland bill today because it would discriminate against miners in a Garrett County community.

The measure would have required state institutions to burn coal mined in Maryland, except for emergencies.

McKeldin said in a speech last week he thought miners living in Crellin would suffer. That persuaded him to veto the act, although he he approved its general purpose.

Discriminatory Effect

He objected to "a discriminatory effect against certain people who live in Maryland and work for a Maryland concern that operates a mine that is partly in Maryland and partly in West Virginia.

"While ostensibly designed to enlarge work opportunities for Marylanders, this bill in fact would have the opposite effect," McKeldin said.

As promised, he also rejected a $5,000,000 state office building for Annapolis and almost self-government for the University of Maryland.

He also scrapped such proposals as a state youth commission, an assortment of sea food measures and several revisions in tax collecting.

Meeting the deadline for executive action, McKeldin signed 47 other measures into law that raised to 711 the number of new Maryland statutes as a result of the three-month session that ended in April. And it left 60 acts for the legislature to reconsider when it convenes again next February.

May Override Vetoes

The assembly may then exercise for the first time its right to override vetoes applied after the preceding session adjourned.

Altogether, McKeldin has rejected 65 acts of the 1951 assembly. He vetoed five during the session, and two were promptly overruled by the required three-fifths' majorities. The other three vetoes were undisturbed.

McKeldin did not sign the session's two prime horse racing measures. One boosts from 10 to 12 per cent the tax on bets at harness and half-mile tracks. It also increases track shares of the mutuels handle, but will produce an estimated $65,000 more for the state fair board and $60,000 for the general treasury.

Each of the four harness tracks will have to give the state all breakage left from paying off wagers to the next-lower dime. But the new taxing formula is expected to net each an additional $65,000 to $70,000.

The second racing act relieves mile tracks of a federal levy on their improvement funds. It changes the method of distributing the one-half of one per cent Pimlico, Laurel and Bowie must set aside from their betting pools for plant renovations.

State Collects Money

Now the state will collect the money as a tax and appropriate it as needed to the tracks. The racing commission may discontinue the tax, but until that time all improvement funds must be used within three years or yielded to the state.

McKeldin also resolved one high-level dispute over a liquor measure in favor of Comptroller J. Millard Tawes. The comptroller had backed legislation authorizing him to fix maximum discounts that may be allowed alcholic beverage retailers.

Attorney General Hall Hammond had attacked it as an unwise "price fixing" measure. Some senators had objected on the same grounds. McKeldin signed the act without comment.

Other bills passed included—HB 200—by Garrett delegation—specifying that no game regulation may be adopted which would open the squirrel season in Garrett County before October 10 of any year.

HB 407—By Whitworth—specifying that the town of Westernport shall be liable for damage suits for injury only if notice in writing is given to the mayor and council within 30 days after injury is suffered.

HB 474—by Allegany delegation—changing the date of Cumberland city elections from the third Tuesday of March to the third Tuesday of June of each even year, excepting that it will not affect the scheduled 1952 election.

HB 523—by Allegany delegation—authorizing the city of Cumberland by public referendum to amend its charter.

New York Chain Leases Store Site

Jules Chain Store Corporation, a New York corporation with headquarters at 641 Sixth Avenue, New York City, has acquired an eight-year and nine-month lease on the property at 82 Baltimore Street, according to a lease recorded yesterday in the office of the clerk of circuit court.

Allan T. Hirsh, Ellinor O. Hirsh and Jesse Hirsh, owners of the business property, entered into the lease with the New York firm.

Under terms of the lease, the New York corporation will pay $400 per month rent until January 31, 1955, and $500 per month from February 1, 1955, until the expiration of the lease on January 31, 1960.

Also filed in the clerk's office yesterday was a bill of sale under which the Jules Chain Store Corporation will purchase the chattels and fixtures of Debbie Apparel, Inc., at 82 Baltimore Street. The sale price for the chattels and fixtures is $4,500. Debbie Apparel, Inc., which formerly operated a store at the Baltimore Street location, has it headquarters at 37 West 35th Street, New York City.

City Eligible List Filed With Council

Civil Service Board Shows Only One Man Passed Police Test

The Civil Service Commission yesterday certified the names of 21 persons as eligible for appointment to positions as fire chief, assistant fire chief and probationary police and firemen.

The list was accepted and ordered posted by unanimous action of the Mayor and Council. It includes, in order of their standings:

FIRE CHIEF—Virgil A. Parker, James A. Jackson, J. T. Defibaugh and Robert C. Long.

ASSISTANT FIRE CHIEF—Virgil A. Parker, James A. Jackson, Robert C. Long, Alvey Poole, Vincent H. Wegman and Thomas W. Lindner.

POLICE—Harry Lee Ises.

FIREMEN — Albert Snyder, James H. Hunter, Jacob W. Winters, Eugene P. Natale, Louis E. Hartung, Robert S. Wigfield, Carl E. Williams, Russell L. Livengood, Robert J. Washabaugh and Howard W. Cunningham.

The results of the examination will pave the way for permanent appointments in the Fire Department, where at present top officers are serving under temporary appointments.

Upon the retirement of Acting Fire Chief William L. Lindner in March, followed by the resignation of Assistant Fire Chief R. Paul Reid, Assistant Chief Defibaugh was named acting chief, with Lt. Long and Lt. Parker named acting assistant chiefs.

Only acting appointments could be made under Civil Service rules, since none of the officers were on the eligible list.

An eligibility test for posts of lieutenants and captains in the Fire Department will be held Friday, May 18, at 7 p. m. in City Hall. Ten men have signed up to take tests for captain and eight for lieutenant ratings.

Mine Victims Rites Tomorrow

The bodies of Harry E. Warnick and Peter J. Matthews, who were killed in a mine explosion Saturday night near Salisbury, Pa. have been brought to the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. James Matthews, Gilmore.

A funeral service will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the Assembly of God Church, Lonaconing. Rev. C. E. Hunt, pastor, will officiate. Interment will be in Laurel Hill Cemetery, Moscow.

An autopsy performed on the bodies of the two former Lonaconing men disclosed both died from the effects of a dynamite explosion. Dr. C. G. Saylor, Rockwood, Pa., who performed the autopsies at the request of Dr. A. M. Uphouse, Somerset county coroner, said his examination of the bodies showed dynamite caused their deaths. Mining authorities have also started a probe of the deaths.

The bodies of the two men were found Sunday in the John Tressler Mine Elktownship by Fred Warnick, brother of one of the victims. Sheriff Karl J. Hare said the bodies of the men were found several hundred feet inside the mine.

Mrs. Mary A. Burall Dies At Mt. Savage

MT. SAVAGE — Mrs. Mary A. Burall, 66, died yesterday evening at her home on Railroad Street. She had been in failing health for a year. Her husband, John P. Burall, died in 1918.

She was born in McKeesport, Pa., and was a daughter of the late Anthony and Margaret Nicodemus Meanyhan. She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, a Gold Star Mother, ladies auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Olive Rice, Akron, Ohio, Mrs. Lillian Rippeon, Frederick, Mrs. Helen Knepp, Miss Dolores Burall, at home, and four grandsons.

The body will remain at Hafer's Funeral Home, Cumberland.

City Chamber Of Commerce To Join Maryland Council

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will become a member of the newly organized Maryland Council of Chambers of Commerce at a meeting Saturday in Baltimore. Harold W. Smith, manager of the Cumberland Chamber, said yesterday the purpose of the conference is to elect officers and complete other business.

Membership is restrained to two designated delegates selected by local Chambers of Commerce or member organization. Each member will be entitled to one vote. Any group acting as a Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade, having representation in the United States Chamber of Commerce, and operating substantially in Maryland, is eligible for membership.

A chairman, vice chairman and secretary-treasurer will make up the roster of officers to be elected each year in April. The Board of Directors will consist of three officers plus four additional members. The board will meet no less than one meeting every two months, or more frequently when called to convene by the chairman. Membership meetings are to held no less than quarterly, each meeting at a separate location in Maryland.

Charles Kopeland made the motion before a meeting of representatives Saturday, April 14, that official headquarters of the Council will be at the address of the elected secretary-treasurer.
